BLAZING PLANE KILLS NINE

BRITAIN'S KING TO OPEN WORLD PARLEY TODAY

66 Nations Seek to End Depression.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 11.—Notwithstanding the failure of President Roosevelt to obtain blanket powers of negotiation from congress, the American delegation, it was learned tonight, will present to the world economic conference a concrete program for lowering tariff and other international trade barriers. The conference will open tomorrow.

This was the course of action agreed upon at a meeting of the American delegation tonight. Secretary of State Cordell Hull, chairman of the delegation, will outline the American position on tariffs, exchange restrictions, currency stabilization and raising of commodity prices in a brief address to the conference.

Gets President's Support.

In a telephone conversation the President approved Hull's program and agreed to support it vigorously. There is every reason to believe that Mr. Roosevelt will endeavor to counteract his failure to obtain a tariff resolution from congress with a declaration of the administration's tariff reduction policy. This declaration may be issued in Washington or incorporated in Mr. Hull's speech to the conference.

King George V. will formally open the conference at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon [9 a. m., Chicago daylight saving time] with a brief address to the representatives of the 66 participating nations from the rostrum of the new Kensington geological survey museum. The king's address will be followed by a speech by Prime Minister MacDonald, president of the conference.

This is expected to conclude the oratory for the opening day. The conference will then devote itself to organization, which includes the formation of a steering committee and two other groups to shape the data on monetary stabilization and on tariff and other economic problems. These two committees will carry on the works of the conference.

Seat Delegates at Desks.

The delegates will be seated at green metal desks, placed closed together, in an austere auditorium which revives scholastic memories. Green fabric covers the large platform.

Considerable attention was given over the week-end to methods of procedure. There are two reasons for this—to prevent dragging out of the conference by excessive red tape and to guard against a deadlock as the result of conflicting viewpoints.

Meanwhile it transpired that Hull is making a strong bid to obtain for the United States the important position of leadership in the conference.

Seek Seats on Committees.

The American delegation is asking membership on each of the two chief committees and the chairmanship of one of them. If the chairmanship of the economic committee goes to America Hull will take it. Otherwise the Americans will seek the chairmanship of the monetary committee, with James M. Cox, former Democratic Ohio governor and vice chairman of the delegation, as the probable selection for the position.

In seeking such leadership the Americans have run into opposition due to doubts entertained by other delegations that the Roosevelt administration is in a position to carry out any substantial program of tariff reduction. Such doubts have been engendered by Mr. Roosevelt's failure to press for a tariff resolution which has been ascribed to the ominous opposition of Republicans and protective tariff Democrats in congress.

It looks to foreigners as if the President has lost his grip on congress on tariff reduction at least and might be unable to procure ratification of any program of that character adopted in London.

Deny Implication of Failure.

Members of the American delegation deny any implication of failure by Mr. Roosevelt to go through with his announced intention of getting tariff negotiation powers from congress. They say that the President would have won, but only at the expense of prolonging the congress session, which is one thing he desired to avoid. It is now explained that he does not need such express powers to negotiate and that he can enter into far-reaching tariff agreements in London which would be submitted to congress next winter for ratification.

May Fly to Chicago

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, June 11.—Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut Joaquin Collar, Spanish army flyers, who landed at Camaguey City, 300 miles southeast of here today after a successful crossing of the Atlantic in the first nonstop flight from Spain to Cuba, may fly on to Chicago.

By phone from Camaguey, Capt. Barberan said:

"We are glad to avail ourselves of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S columns to send the most cordial greetings of good will to President Roosevelt, the American people, and also the warmest greetings to Chicagoans and the American press.

"We are anxious to visit A Century of Progress Exposition and tonight sent to the Spanish general army staff a message requesting authorization to fly there in a nonstop flight from Havana. Originally we planned continuing to Mexico City, but want to make the Chicago visit in preference to New York or Mexico, providing the army grants our request. We expect a reply tomorrow."

CAMAGUEY, Cuba, June 11.—(AP)—Successfully completing their 4,533 mile Spain-to-Cuba non-stop flight, Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar, Spanish army flyers, landed at this mid-island city this afternoon at 3:35 o'clock [Chicago daylight saving time].

Because of unfavorable weather conditions to the west the two aviators announced that they would spend the night here before going on to Havana, which city they had hoped to reach before their airplane Cuatro Vientos descended on its transocean flight.

Tired but happy after their long air journey, the two flyers were borne off to the Camaguey Colonia Española center by throngs of shouting Spanish residents.

Turned Back by Storm.

Barberan and Collar said they wanted to start as early as possible tomorrow morning for Havana. They passed over Camaguey headed for the capital before landing, but turned back when threatening thunderstorms showed up in their course.

The Cuatro Vientos, an all-Spanish plane in which they made the crossing with almost mathematical precision, came down gracefully at Camaguey's large airport.

Barberan and Collar, who left the Tablada airport, Seville, Spain, at 4:45 a. m. Saturday [11:45 p. m., Friday, Chicago time] were in the air 39 hours and 50 minutes, averaging therefore about 115 miles an hour.

Not Sighted on Flight.

They carried 1,500 gallons of gasoline, which was estimated to be enough for 44 to 48 hours flying.

The flyers said they were ready to keep on after they brought their plane to earth.

"We had only 100 liters of gasoline left, however, and the weather didn't look good ahead," Capt. Barberan said. [One hundred liters is about 24 gallons.]

They might have ended their trip at Guantanamo, near the eastern tip of Cuba, the captain continued, but encountered bad weather there. They proceeded to Camaguey, along the route of the National Air company.

Sight Only Two Ships.

In all the crossing the aviators sighted only two vessels, both passenger ships.

"I don't expect they saw us, however, because we were flying very high," the captain said.

They met with no bad weather. The first land sighted on this side of the Atlantic was the island of Santo Domingo.

The 4,533 mile dash was believed to have set a new record for nonstop flight across water.

(At Havana Cuban army aviation officials said they estimated the total distance of the Spain-to-Cuba nonstop flight as 4,906 miles, of which some 4,500 miles were over water. Julio Blanco Herrera, manufacturer, said he would pay the flyers $5,000 for the first Spain-to-Cuba nonstop flight, although his long standing offer of this prize elapsed last January.)

Two other flying teams can contest the claim advanced for the Spanish

WOMAN SLAIN AND 2 MEN SHOT BY POLICE; CALLED A MISTAKE

Mrs. Anna Lupka, 21 years old, of 1749 West 17th street, was shot and fatally wounded and her husband, Leonard, 28 years old, and his brother, John, 24, of 2014 South Ashland avenue, were wounded in a gun fight with two policemen early this morning.

Investigation indicated that the shooting was an unfortunate tragedy in which the brothers fired on the policemen in the belief they were hoodlums and the policemen returned the fire under a similar impression. The policemen are Luttrell White and Edward Quinn of the Marquette station.

White and Quinn responded to an emergency call at 1707 West 19th street, just as a car containing the Lupkas was pulling away. James Leonard of 1705 West 19th street urged the policemen to follow the car because the men carried guns. This White and Quinn did. At 18th and Paulina streets the Lupka brothers jumped from their car and opened fire on the policemen. The policemen fired back, hitting Leonard in the right side, John in the right leg, and Mrs. Lupka in the head.

It appeared that earlier two men had tried to steal the automobile of the Lupkas. When they tried to interfere the men swung blackjacks. John Lupka then ran home and procured two revolvers, one of which he handed to Leonard. Meanwhile the blackjack thieves had fled. The Lupkas then started for home just as the police came up. Apparently they believed the policemen to be the two hoodlums.

Heiress Dies After Tragic "Hunt" Party

Miss Jean Alexander, 30 years old, daughter of John Alexander, millionaire lumberman of Aurora, died last night in Copley Memorial hospital in Aurora of injuries received early in the day in an automobile accident. Her death ended dramatic efforts to save her life in which Dr. Dean D. Lewis, newly elected president of the American Medical association, left the association's convention in Milwaukee and raced by motor to the hospital to aid her.

Miss Alexander and her brother, John Jr., both of whom are prominent socially in Aurora, had been taking part in a treasure hunt arranged by Mrs. Earl Power, whose husband is an official of the Lyon Metal Products company, and Mrs. Harold Boynton, whose husband is a Chicago woolen manufacturer. At the close of the hunt the brother and sister started for their country home west of Aurora.

Car Strikes Milk Wagon.

They were driving a large open roadster. In front of the Fitchhome dairy farm, two miles west of Aurora on the Galena road, their car struck a milk wagon driven by Lewis Richards of Aurora. Richards told authorities later that he saw the car was across the middle of the road as it approached him, and that he jumped and escaped injury.

The automobile, however, skidded into a ditch, broke off a telegraph pole, and turned over. Alexander was thrown free of the wreckage and escaped with minor injuries, but his sister was pinned in the wreckage. When he and Richards extricated her from the wrecked car, they found that her head had been pinned down by the windshield frame, fracturing her neck and inflicting a basal skull fracture.

Slight Hope of Recovery.

Miss Alexander was hurried to Copley Memorial hospital in Aurora. There Dr. H. A. Brennecke of Aurora examined her and found that she had slight hope of recovery. She was taken to her home later.

Donald P. Frazier, a sportsman pilot and friend of the Alexander family, took off in his plane for Milwaukee to bring back Dr. Lewis, who is a professor of surgery at Johns Hopkins university in Baltimore, and Dr. Edwin Ryerson of Chicago. Dr. Lewis, however, went to Aurora with Frazier by automobile. The noted surgeon left the city after giving directions for treatment.

Miss Alexander's brother, Walter, 24 years old, drowned at Plum Lake, Wis., four years ago. He was believed to have suffered a heart attack while swimming.

SHE PHONES STORY OF HER SUICIDE, LEAPS 17 STORIES

New York, June 11.—(AP)—Miss Catherine M. Dietz, 34, jumped to her death from a hotel in the theatrical district today ten minutes after she telephoned a newspaper office and asked:

"Do you want a story about a suicide?"

Then she calmly dictated:

"Mrs. Arthur F. Roy committed suicide today after taking 36 tablets of poison and then she leaped to her death from her room on the 18th floor."

The body fell 17 stories and landed on a second floor extension in a court. Guests who saw Miss Dietz falling notified the management.

A NEW YORKER LOST 30 HOURS IN A LARGE CITY

How a native New Yorker got lost in the big city of Chicago for thirty hours was revealed by police last night. The New Yorker is Henry Seeger, 54 years old, 503 West 149th street, New York City.

He arrived here Friday night, en route to Los Angeles, and decided to look the town over. He registered at the Virginia hotel, 15 Quincy street, and then started out to see the sights.

He saw the sights, but unfortunately could not find his hotel. Nor could he remember its name. Somewhat abashed, he appealed to police to help him find his hotel. A squad drove him around for hours, but to no avail. Yesterday another squad commanded by Sergt. William Murphy, resumed the search for the New Yorker's hotel. They succeeded. That was exactly thirty hours after Seeger had last left it.

"I take back all I thought of Chicago," said Seeger. "I thought it was a hick town."

SEIZED SMASHING NINE MIRRORS OF MOTHER-IN-LAW

Late Saturday night an unidentified man smashed in fourteen windows in the three flat building of Mrs. Alice Brennan at 2445 East 73d street.

Yesterday during her absence neighbors noticed a man in Mrs. Brennan's apartment smashing up the furniture and breaking mirrors. Police responded and arrested him. He identified himself as Frank von Thens, 30 years old, 3345 North Western avenue.

"I'm the husband of Mrs. Brennan's daughter," he explained. "We separated last week."

Police asked for no further explanation. They booked him for malicious mischief, including the breaking of the fourteen windows on Saturday night. In yesterday's wrecking job, Von Thens smashed nine mirrors,

Reveal Night of Terror in Justice Park

Twelve hours of terror experienced by a Chicago family in the village of Justice Park, at 79th street and Archer avenue, ended at noon yesterday when Village President Sam Audrich forced the door of the town's jail with a hammer and a cold chisel. The lock was broken to permit a physician to enter and give treatment to a member of the Chicago family prostrated by the stifling heat of the single sun baked cell.

The one who collapsed is James Cropp, 50 years old, 4536 South Turner avenue. With him in the cell was his son, Stanley, 24 years old, a graduate student at Northwestern university. Both were jailed on charges of disorderly conduct by a constable after protesting against arrest on a charge of speeding. Twice denied bail, the father and son were abandoned in the jail by the arresting constable and the justice of peace who commissioned him.

Car Stopped by Constable.

The difficulties of the Cropps began shortly before midnight Saturday, when their automobile was stopped by Constable Steve Walters in Justice Park. With Willard Fullerton, a University of Illinois medical student, they had been attending a barn dance given by friends in Willow Springs. Mrs. Cropp became ill and the family and Fullerton left the dance early.

Constable Walters on his motorcycle overtook the Cropp car shortly after the party left the barn dance. He charged Stanley Cropp, who was driving, with a speed of 55 miles an hour.

"Both father and I protested we were not speeding," young Cropp said yesterday. "I explained to the constable that mother was ill and we were taking her home at a moderate speed because we did not wish to excite her. The constable looked in on mother, who was sitting in the back seat with father.

Protest Constable's Charge.

"After a look," he said, 'She's just drunk.' I called him a liar. Father also joined in the protest. At length the constable announced that we were resisting an officer and would be jailed for disorderly conduct as well as for speeding.

"We were taken to the jail. Father and I were both put in a cell although I asked that I alone be jailed. I told my story to Justice of the Peace Si Lindeman, but he stood by Walters. No attention was paid to mother's condition."

At 2 a. m. a neighbor of the Cropps arrived to post a real estate bond for their release. This was refused, young Cropp said, because the neighbor owned the property in joint tenancy with his wife, who did not accompany him. After refusing this bond Constable Walters and Justice Lindeman left the jail for their homes.

Bond Is Again Refused.

At 5 a. m. another friend arrived to provide bond for the Cropps. Lindeman was roused from bed, but refused to dress and accept the bond. Mrs. Cropp reported him as saying, "Don't bother me. The morning will be all right." In the morning, she said, she found that both Lindeman and Walters had left the village. They did not visit the jail.

"The jail is a brick building about 10 by 12 feet, with one cell and a narrow aisle," young Cropp said. "There was no water. With the morning it became hotter and hotter. Mother and Fullerton brought water as the heat began to affect father. I tried to make it easy for him. Mother was hysterical. I was afraid she might collapse after her illness.

"Shortly before noon father collapsed. Mother ran for help. I could do nothing for father. I later learned the temperature outside at the time was 96 degrees. It must have been at least 10 degrees hotter in the jail."

Mrs. Cropp Gets Help.

Mrs. Cropp ran to several homes and finally was given the address of Village President Audrich. Audrich summoned a physician from Willow Springs and went to the jail with hammer and chisel.

After breaking in the door and liberating the prisoners, Audrich summoned Justice Ira Lambert of Summit. Justice Lambert accepted the second bond offered in behalf of the Cropps and set a trial for Wednesday.

"I was the only candidate elected on my ticket last April," President Audrich explained. "Lindeman and the trustees are of another faction. The result is I am powerless to act against such outrageous treatment. I do not even have a key to the jail. When I heard the story there was only one thing to do. I'd have chopped the jail down if necessary."

Young Cropp said he would ask the Chicago Motor club to take action on the matter today.

HUGE SIKORSKY CRASHES AFTER LEAVING FAIR

Seven passengers, a pilot and a mechanic were burned to death yesterday when a sightseeing plane, operating from the World's Fair grounds, crashed in the village of Glenview, and burst into flames. The accident occurred as the plane, a big Sikorsky amphibion, was making a dramatic race to safety after being crippled while trying to land on the choppy waters of Lake Michigan.

Two of the dead victims were women. Hundreds of motorists saw the crash, which occurred half a mile west of Waukegan road and just north of Harrison street, just within the village limits and near the Curtiss airport.

The crash was the worst Chicago air tragedy since 1919, when a dirigible balloon fell through the roof of the old Illinois Merchants' bank, killing two of its occupants and nine bank employés. The plane, which carried 9 to death yesterday, was the Northern Light, operated by the Palwaukee airport, holders of the airplane riding concession at the Fair.

Identification Is Difficult.

The crash occurred shortly after 5 p. m., but so badly burned were the bodies that at an early hour this morning the bodies of only six of the victims had been fully identified. One other body was partly identified. The list of identified dead follows:

EDWARD G. SCHALLER, 22 years old, a student at the University of Chicago, living in Phi Delta Theta house at 5737 Woodlawn avenue. He was a son of George J. Schaller of Storm Lake, Ia., a director of the Federal Reserve bank in Chicago.

JOSEPH G. ROBINSON, 21 years old, son of Herman Robinson, 565 5th avenue, New York City, a student at Washington and Lee university. The elder Mr. Robinson is an official of the Travelers' Life Insurance company. The Robinsons were staying at the Stevens.

EDWARD M. FAY, 1023 Irving Park boulevard.

MISS STEPHANIE OGOREK, 20 years old, of 5229 Hutchinson street, Chicago, companion of Fay. She worked as a clerk for R. G. Dun & Co., 300 West Adams street. Her identification was established through personal effects.

Of the remaining three victims one, a woman, was tentatively identified as Mrs. Ida Goodwin, 47 years old, formerly of Missoula, Mont., and more recently a dietitian in a private school on Long Island, N. Y. There were no positive clews whatever as to the two other victims, both men.

One reason why identification was difficult was because the concessionaires who operated the plane kept no register of the passengers.

School Chums Killed.

One of the tragedies of the disaster was the death of two old school chums who had met in a reunion at the World's Fair. They were Joseph G. Robinson, 21 years old, a student at Washington and Lee university, and Edward G. Schaller, 22, a student at the University of Chicago.

Both were graduated in 1930 from Culver Military academy. They continued correspondence since then. They met Wednesday when Robinson came to Chicago with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Robinson of 565 5th avenue, New York City. The family came to see the Fair and to attend the graduation of another son, Mark, from Culver.

Decide to Take Air Ride.

All day yesterday young Robinson and Schaller toured the Fair grounds. Late in the afternoon they mentioned a desire to take an air ride. Shortly afterward they boarded the ill-fated plane.

Their bodies were identified early this morning by Mr. Robinson. He telephoned Schaller's father, George J. Schaller of Storm Lake, Ia., a director of the Federal Reserve bank in Chicago. Young Schaller, it was learned, was a senior on the Midway and only last week had been elected business manager of the Daily Maroon, student paper.

Mr. Robinson was broken over the tragedy. He criticized Fair officials for not registering passengers on the airships.

"It's terrible to wait for hours before knowing whether a loved one was killed," he said. "They certainly should register each person going aboard their planes."

Long before the plane reached the fatal climax of its flight in a plowed field, 20 miles northwest of the Fair, the passengers aboard must have had a premonition of disaster. Pilot Vickery had left the lake front in an attempt to make a safe landing at some airport after his ship was crippled in an attempted landing near the ramp.

Sharp Drop in Temperature.

Vickery had started his daily routine of taking up sightseers at the Fair at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and the torrid day brought a rush of patrons anxious to escape the heat. Then, in midafternoon, came a sharp drop in temperature, accompanied by a shift of wind to the north, which sent several line squalls over the city and caused the Fair management to warn concessionaires to guard against storm damage.

Vickery was in the air when the first squall struck. It did not affect the big plane, but it whipped the lake into choppy waves. He made his landing at 4:25 p. m., however, and told Duncan Hodges, treasurer of the Palwaukee company and manager of the ramp, that he thought he could take another group aloft.

"I asked Vickery whether the swells on the lake were proving dangerous," Hodges said later. "He told me: 'Well, I'll make one more flight and see how it is to land.' It was the last one."

No Sign of Trouble.

He took aboard his load of passengers and lifted the heavy ship off the water without any sign of trouble. While he was in the air, however, a second squall struck the water. George Vest, department of commerce aviation inspector, who happened to be on the Fair grounds at the time, said later that for a while the wind tossed up waves ten feet high.

Vickery returned from his flight along the lake front and brought the ship down close to the water. As he did so a wave struck the right pontoon of the plane, smashing it. Although Vickery apparently did not realize it at the time, the same blow appears also to have weakened the supports of the right wing.

Pulls Plane Into Air.

Vickery pulled the plane back into the air. He probably thought, other flyers said later, that the plane would have been wrecked if he attempted to set it down on the water with its smashed pontoon and sought to make a landing at a land airport, using the retractable wheels with which the ship was equipped.

A few minutes later the plane appeared near the village of Glenview. Vickery was apparently trying to reach Curtiss-Reynolds airport, a mile and a half north of the village, when the fatal crash occurred in the sight of hundreds of motorists in Waukegan road and other nearby highways.

While the plane was flying at an altitude of about 600 feet, the weakened right wing appeared to crumble, witnesses said. The plane went into a tailspin and smashed down in a field just south of the village. At the moment of impact gasoline tanks in the wings burst into flames.

Rush to Burning Plane.

Among the first to reach the blazing plane were J. G. Mayer, operator of a roadside coffee shop, his brother-in-law, William Bilski of Lombard, and William Rugen of Glenview.

"It was horrible," said Mayer later. "When we ran across the field to the wreck we could see the arms and legs of people moving inside the cabin. We tried to smash an opening into the cabin to drag them out, but we had nothing to work with and in a few seconds the burning gasoline drove us back. I'm not sure any of the people were fully conscious. If any of them cried out, their voices were drowned by the roar of the flames."

Other eyewitnesses were Mrs. Henry Honald, wife of a farmer living in the vicinity, and Arthur Meyer, 3703 North Lawndale avenue, brother of Mrs. Honald, whom he was visiting at the time. The plane skimmed over the Honald barn a few moments before the crash, and Mrs. Honald said she heard a woman scream. The plane hit 1,000 feet from the barn.

"At least one man was alive after the crash," said Meyer. "I ran toward the wreck and got 25 feet away from it when it suddenly burst into flame and I was driven back. I saw a man at the window trying to get out. I believe he was the mechanic. He wore a red and white jumper."

Meyer and Mrs. Honald said that one wing of the plane was missing as it hit the earth.

Fire Department Arrives.

The Glenview fire department soon reached the scene, but could do little until the gasoline had burned itself out, leaving the plane a heap of charred ruins. Then the firemen threw water on the wreckage to cool it sufficiently that the bodies might be removed.

Nine bodies were recovered within a short time. When word reached the searchers that ten persons were believed to have been aboard the plane when it left the Fair grounds, the firemen placed chains on the wreckage and dragged it apart with their trucks, but the search failed to disclose the supposedly missing body.

Fay's identity was the first of the passengers to be established. His woman companion was not identified until early this morning. A parking ticket from a 7th street garage was found in her purse. This was traced and found to be for Fay's car. In her purse also were a compact, a broken string of rosary beads, gloves, and a telephone number. This number was traced to Miss Irma King, 4904 North Tripp avenue. Miss King was found in her home and gave clews which showed Miss Ogorek was the dead woman.

Friend Aids Identification.

The tentative identification of Mrs. Goodwin was made through a safe deposit box key in the First National bank of Missoula, Mont., her former home, and a scrap of paper bearing the name of Mrs. Gail Noll of that city.

Mr. Noll first told THE TRIBUNE by long distance telephone that he thought the woman was Mrs. E. G. Trainor of New York, his sister. Later Mrs. Trainor was located in New York, and Mr. Noll obtained Mrs. Goodwin's name from bank officials in Missoula. She had written the Nolls that she was leaving New York to visit them and might be accompanied by her son, Bean Goodwin, 23 years old, an aviator. So far as could be learned, however, he did not accompany her to Chicago, where she had stopped at the Stevens hotel.

The possibility that Mrs. Goodwin was not the victim was suggested early today when George Kish of Alpha, N. J., appeared at the Glenview undertaking rooms, where the bodies are. He said he feared that his sister, Mrs. Julia Szabo, 34 years old, and her husband, the Rev. Andrew Szabo, 36, both also of Alpha, were victims. The Rev. Mr. Szabo is a Presbyterian minister.

The Szabos and Kish arrived in Chicago yesterday to visit the Fair. Kish left them at 4 p. m., when they said they were going for an airplane ride. That was just before the fatal takeoff. Their plans, Kish said, was to register later at the North Park hotel. At 3 o'clock this morning the Szabos had not registered there.

Vickery a Veteran Pilot.

Vickery, the pilot, was a veteran aviator, and one of the most experienced flyers in the country in handling amphibian planes, which because of their weight require a highly expert pilot when they are landed on water. He was an army flyer during the war, and was trained to fly bombing planes in this country and France.

Later he accumulated some 6,000 hours in the air as a transport pilot. Three years ago he was employed for some time by Charles R. Walgreen, drug store chain owner, as the pilot of a Sikorsky plane which was a sister ship of the one he flew yesterday. His widow and a son, Donald, 12 years old, survive.

Aviation experts said following the accident that it may have been due partly to fatigue on the part of Vickery. Since the flying concession at the Fair opened Vickery had been on duty fourteen hours a day, from 10 a. m. to midnight, every day of the week, it was said by Owen Jones, president of the Palwaukee company.

At the time of the accident he had been handling the plane for nearly six hours, making frequent landings and takeoffs. Pilots on commercial air lines work only two out of three days, and then on runs which last only three or four hours at the most, the experts said.

Hodges, manager of the concession, said that Vivkery had alternated in piloting the Northern Light with Frank Ormesbee, pilot of another plane used on the concession, which was not in service yesterday. Vickery, however, made at least two consecutive trips, the one which ended in his death and the one immediately preceding it.

Pilot Vickery's widow, Mary, and his 10 year old son, Donald, were found last night in their home at 7658 Marquette road. Neighbors sought to comfort the woman. The boy kept silently near her.

Authorities started their investigation of the crash as soon as they could reach the scene. Chief Deputy Coroner Stephen Kolanowski was the first to arrive and ordered an inquest opened this afternoon at Glenview. Later he was joined by Maj. H. H. Woeltjen, deputy coroner in charge of air accidents, and O. W. Young and L. J. Holoubek, federal department of commerce aviation inspectors.

Utility Company Buys Plane.

The plane was a model S-38 Sikorsky amphibian, licensed to carry nine passengers and a crew of two. It was purchased in late 1929 or early 1930 by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois and for some time was used by that concern for inspection of its transmission lines and for transportation by officials of the company.

For nearly two years, however, the plane was in dead storage before being placed in service at the Fair. There was a dispute last night over the ownership of the craft. J. R. Pershall, advertising manager of the utility company, said that it was sold outright to the Palwaukee airport several months ago. President Jones of the airport, however, said that the plane was leased from C. B. Bennett, whom he identified as an official of the utility company.

Former Coast Guard Member.

Jacobs, the dead mechanic, had been employed at the airport for three years and was a member of the coast guard for six years before that. His widow, Mrs. Florence Koehler Jacobs, and a son, Allen, 3 years old, survive. His brother, nicknamed "Lucky" Jacobs, a flyer, was killed five years ago in a plane crash at Benton Harbor, Mich., home town of the brothers.

Officials of the World's Fair said that each passenger in the plane was covered by a $20,000 life insurance policy and that a $500,000 blanket liability insurance policy carried by the Fair itself might also apply in the accident.

Crash One of Worst in Chicago Area

Yesterday's air tragedy ranks among the worst airplane accidents in history, and the worst in the Chicago area. In number of deaths it falls short, of course, of a half dozen dirigible and blimp disasters, the latter including the Chicago crash of 1919 in which eleven persons lost their lives.

The worst airplane accident in recent years took a toll of sixteen lives. This occurred on Jan. 19, 1930, near Oceanside, Cal., when a giant airplane en route from Agua Caliente, Mexico, to Los Angeles, crashed and caught fire.

Other major accidents follow:

MARCH 28, 1933—Fifteen passengers and pilots die when a tri-motored British air liner catches fire in midair and crashes near Dixmude, Belgium.

MARCH 25, 1933—Transport plane crashes into a house near Hayward, Cal., killing nine persons in the house and three in the plane.

JAN. 2, 1930.—Ten killed in crash of motion picture planes near Catalina island.

JAN. 12, 1929—Army transport plane falls at Royalton, Pa., with loss of eight lives.

NOV. 4, 1928—Fourteen killed when plane crashes in harbor at Rio de Janeiro.

SEPT. 17, 1927—Sight seeing plane falls at Hadley field, New Jersey, killing seven persons.

Many other airplane accidents are recorded in which two to six persons lost their lives. Among the most recent was one at Valmeyer, Ill., in which six were killed.

BALLOON CABLE AT FAIR STRIKES ELECTRIC WIRE

The captive balloon, a concession at the World Fair, which carries passengers aloft while the gas filled bag remains anchored by cables to the ground, last night struck a high tension electric wire as workmen reeled in the cables to make the bag fast for the night. One of the cables struck the electric wire, causing a blinding flash and throwing a part of the Midway in darkness. The bag was dragged away from the wire without damage and anchored for the night. No one was in the passenger car at the time.

Five Men Arrested After Watchman Is Found Dead

Five men were being held by Des Plaines street police last night for investigation in the death of Michael L. Clancy, 48 years old, 662 Madison street, a watchman for the Kane patrol service. He was found dead yesterday in the rear of 14 North Des Plaines street. A skull fracture caused death. The five men held are George Loomis, Joe Daly, George Hawthorne, Edgar Harmon, and Louis Malton.

Passenger Killed When Plane Falls; Pilot Hurt

Cleveland, O., June 10.—(AP)—John Myello, 24, was killed and Richard C. Foster, 25, a private pilot, was injured late today when Foster's plane went into a spin and crashed near Cleveland airport. Myello was a passenger.

3 Men Rob Restaurant; 1 Is Wounded by Owner

One of three bandits was wounded last evening following a robbery of the North American restaurant at 470¢ North avenue. The trio stole $500 and jewelry valued at $125 from George Spiridakos, the owner, after menacing him, Joseph Krupner, a watchman, and Miss Mary Ratlisse, 954 Webster avenue, a waitress. As the three men fled, Spiridakos fired four shots at them. One of them cried out in pain. All escaped, however.

Tobey's
New Dining Groups of the Finest Character
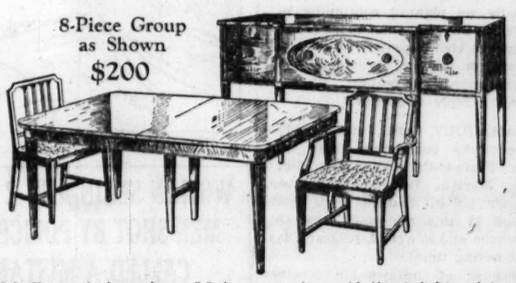
These new groups are from a maker who, in our opinion, creates today's finest dining furniture. Only expensive hand-made pieces, at two and three times the price, can equal it in its beauty of design, quality of cabinet work and finish.
Yet, because of our Common Sense Methods of selling for Cash, and the elimination of other useless items of expense it is priced extremely low considering its rare quality.
8-Piece Group as Shown $200



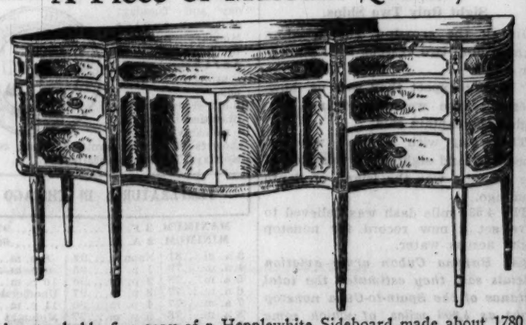
Of Central American Mahogany, beautifully inlaid with a lighter wood; cabinet work of the highest type and a superb finish; these pieces would grace the finest home. This grouping of the 8 foot extension table, sideboard, and 6 chairs is priced $200. Cabinet (not shown), $59. Pieces may be bought separately or in other groupings.

Three Piece Drop Leaf Table

The center table alone, at $49, is a charming piece of ample size for most families. With its drop leaves up it is 5½ feet long. Actually there are three tables which nest together, forming one 9 feet in length. The end pieces, each $38, are appropriate for servers or for console tables in a living room or hall. Pieces may be bought separately. Other similar tables to match other groups.

Group of 8 Pieces, $525
Exquisitely made of the finest mahogany, inlaid with satinwood on top, sides, edges, legs and stretchers—each line of inlay is actually five lines of the contrasting wood meticulously applied. The oval table is a fine copy of an old Hepplewhite. Pieces may be bought separately: Table, $168; Oblong table, $155; Cabinet or Sideboard, $195; Armchairs, $32; Side Chairs, $26.

A Piece of Museum Quality



A remarkably fine copy of a Hepplewhite Sideboard made about 1780 and now in a museum. The wood is the very choicest mahogany beautifully inlaid with satinwood. Its shaped front and rounded ends give it unusual distinction. Priced at $385. From the many choice pieces in this collection groupings may be arranged to suit most any desire.

PASS MEASURES AS THEY STAND, CONGRESS TOLD

Roosevelt Sticks to His Legislative Program.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 11.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt, conferring with congressional leaders tonight, laid down an emphatic insistence that there will be no further compromise on any issue remaining before the congress.

There was no doubt in his mind, nor in the minds of the leaders, that the measures pending in these last hours of the special session will be adopted But it was any one's gamble as to whether the session will be ended tomorrow, or Tuesday, or whether it might even drag on for still another day or two.

Confers with Leaders.

Discussing the situation tonight with Vice President Garner, Secretary of Commerce Roper, Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], Senator James Byrnes [Dem., S. C.], Speaker Rainey, and Representative Joseph Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], the President was told that further concessions on his part might assure an adjournment of congress tomorrow afternoon.

But when he said he would stand pat and insist upon the passage of all bills in their present form, Senator Harrison commended him and declared that even so he felt satisfied congress would adjourn some time tomorrow. The President declared that he would not withdraw the order of governmental reorganization, saving $25,000,000, which he sent to congress last night, and which has roused some opposition because of its eleventh hour presentation.

May Adjourn Tonight.

The President will heave a sigh of relief and perhaps a million American business men will, too, when the peril of further oratory and the passing of wild laws is over. Some leaders of the administration were dubious that adjournment will come before the middle of the week.

And yet from some of the rebels on Capitol Hill who led the senators last night in refusing to wind up the session then and there was obtained a prediction that the end may come by midnight tomorrow.

The senate is guided neither by the clock nor the calendar. Its members may talk as long as their speech holds out. Various senators announced today that they intend to be heard, some of them at length, in protest against passage of the remaining legislation before the chamber. As one senator put it today:

Business to be Enacted.

The matters before congress, to be disposed of before adjournment, are these:

The house has practically cleared its decks. It has only to approve a conference report on the independent offices appropriation bill which contains the veterans payments over which such a wild tempest raged.

The senate is to debate three major pieces of legislation, two of which have caused more battling and more resentment against the so-called Roosevelt "dictatorship" than any other legislation passed in this epochal session.

These two bills are the industry control-public works bill and the independent offices appropriation bill with its vexatious veterans' problem. The tempest has died in the house, but it will rage tomorrow in the senate, when the veterans' advocates will make the chamber ring with demands.

The third measure before the senate which apparently has no opposition, despite its monumental importance is the $3,459,000,000 deficiency appropriation bill, carrying the cost of the public works program and other emergency measures.

There is no doubt, even in the minds of senators who will put up the various fights, that the whole program will eventually be carried. But the senators declare they "wish to be heard" in their protests.

The one other matter before the congress which it may consider, is the executive order from the President abolishing some bureaus and commissions, consolidating others, proposing economies to the tune of $25,000,000 a year. The President apologized for sending it in at such a late hour, but he was accused of acting deliberately to prevent its serious consideration.

Under the law the order becomes effective 60 days after submission, unless congress can muster a two-thirds vote of disapproval. Since congress is fading out until January the order will be effective unless it is vetoed by congress before this adjournment.

Weighty Matters to Debate.

The matters which will bring forth bursts of oratory in the senate tomorrow are weighty.

The industry control bill, with its rider giving the President almost carte blanche authority to spend 3 billion 300 million dollars for public works, has been amended in conference to cull out the radical measures inserted in it by the senate and the senators who promoted those amendments are promising to register their protests.

The most important amendment is one proposed by Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.] which required all income tax returns to be available for public inspection. The senate passed this provision but in conference it was changed to give the President power to control the publication of returns, power so broad that he might direct that there be no p ublication at all.

Senator La Follette today said that he would protest against the mutilation of his amendment, and in this he will be supported by some of his radical colleagues.

Exemption Amendment Thrown Out.

Senator Bennett C. Clark [Dem., Mo.] is annoyed that the conferees eliminated entirely his amendment removing tax exemptions from all classes of federal and municipal securities. The amendment was discarded because the conferees and many other senators believed it was unconstitutional, but both Senator Clark and Senator La Follette declared there was a fair doubt about this and that the law should be tried out in the Supreme court.

These two protests undoubtedly will go unheeded by the majority of the senate but the debate on them will be long and heated.

Still more violent will be the debate on the cuts in veterans' appropriations. Although the President compromised from his original stand, and restored payments to the tune of $80,000,000 from his first cut of 460 million dollars, the advocates of the veterans' lobby demand even more.

Senator Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.] insists he will make a lengthy speech presenting the cause of the veterans and demanding defeat of the appropriations bill. He will be joined by another arch foe of the Roosevelt economy program, Senator Huey Long [Rad., La.] and by Senators Clark, Bronson Cutting [Rad., N. M.], La Follette and Frederick Steiwer [Rep., Ore.], all declaiming for higher veterans' payments.

Borah to Fight for Amendment.

Senator William Borah of Idaho announced today that he would argue for restoration of an amendment he had caused to be attached to the industry control bill which would have prevented any trade agreement being approved which sought to fix prices or provide a monopoly. The amendment in the conference was changed to make its effect valueless, Senator Borah declared.

Senator Borah, along with Senator Hiram Johnson [Rad., Cal.] and Senator David Reed [Rep., Pa.], have announced their opposition to the manner in which the President submitted his reorganization order and they will be heard on that subject.

With all this on the cards the doubts surrounding the adjournment of congress are patently seen. Despite the volume of oratory promised there was nowhere any indication that a filibuster would develop.

War Debt Issue in Offing.

Nor was there any feeling that unless the debate on the pending matters runs on that far, the senate would be kept in session long enough for some of the senators who are interested to observe the Roosevelt conduct on next Thursday when America's foreign debtors are scheduled to pay 140 million dollars in war debts.

Some senators have shown interest in reports that the President is considering acceptance of partial sums on account. They are also anxious to observe the nature of the program which the Roosevelt delegates will submit to the world economic conference opening tomorrow at London.

These matters are said to have weighed in the President's desire to force an immediate adjournment of congress before he was forced to disclose his foreign program.

SENATE FINANCE COMMITTEE IN NIGHT SESSION

With coats removed and collars unbuttoned, members of the senate finance committee held a late session Saturday in an effort to whip the industrial bill into shape for presentation to the senate. From left to right are Senators Pat Harrison of Mississippi, chairman; Walter George, Georgia; David Reed, Pennsylvania; William King, Utah, and Henry W. Keyes of New Hampshire. [Acme Photo.]

4 KNOWN DEAD AS STORM HITS MICHIGAN LAKE

Houghton Lake Village, Mich., June 11.—(AP)—Four persons were drowned and the lives of nearly two score others were imperiled during a violent windstorm which swept across Houghton lake late today.

Striking without warning while approximately 40 rowboats and launches were on the lake, the wind raised huge waves which capsized the craft. Witnesses said they saw waterspouts 20 feet high create swirling currents which drew the small boats beneath the surface.

Conservation officers and Roscommon county authorities tonight believed all those on the lake were accounted for except one unidentified man. The known dead are:

Robert Walcott, 30, Charlotte.
John Townsend, 38, of Alma.
Francis, 12, his son.
Mrs. Florence Labuda, 47, of Saginaw.

The body of Francis Townsend was the only one recovered.

Officers reported that 25 persons were rescued from the lake after the storm subsided. Some of them clung to overturned boats for two hours before being picked up.

The week of broiling temperatures that set June heat records in Chicago and throughout the middle west came to an end with dramatic suddenness yesterday afternoon, nine hours before the weather bureau expected the change.

From a high mark of 97 degrees at 3 p. m. the mercury dropped 17 degrees in an hour as a high pressure area moved in from the northwest and caused a shift in the southwest wind to the north. Coming off the cool waters of Lake Michigan, the breeze sent the temperature down to 80 degrees by 4 o'clock. At midnight the mercury had dropped to an unofficial 66.

Cool Today, Is Forecast.

Continued cool weather is in prospect for today and tomorrow, according to Forecaster J. R. Lloyd. Skies will be clear, he said.

The arrival of the high pressure area was accompanied by a squall that delivered torrents of rain and blew down trees on the north shore, and routed thousands of bathers from the lake beaches.

Trees were blown down in Waukegan and Highland Park and heavy rains fell in Lake Forest and the northern section of Waukegan. When the windstorm hit the Oak street beach, where 75,000 persons had sought relief, there was a general exodus across Lake Shore drive. The lawns and driveways of gold coast homes were filled with bathers from the west side.

One Saved from Lake.

When the squall struck No Man's Land a small sailboat containing Casey Smith, 1170 North Michigan avenue, capsized off the Sandloh beach, 8th street and Sheridan road. Smith was rescued by Jimmie Archer, life guard from the University of Chicago.

The coast guard at Wilmette towed in two sailboats that were being buffeted by wind whipped waves.

The lake wind's devastating effect on the heat was demonstrated in a spectacular manner for hundreds of visitors at A Century of Progress. The great red column in the 200 foot Havoline thermometer on the Fair grounds stood at an unofficial 100 degrees when the wind from the north swept in. As crowds of spectators watched the mercury began a descent, and in an hour it had touched the 83 degree mark.

The shift in the wind gave relief to cities west of Chicago, but the drop in temperatures was somewhat slower because they did not benefit from the direct lake breeze. Aurora reported a maximum temperature of 97 at noon and at 5 p. m. it was 85. At Elgin the mercury dropped from 98 at 2 p. m. to 81 at 5:30 p. m.

In Joliet, where a maximum of 98 was recorded at 2 p. m., it was 90 at 5:30. At Rockford the temperature dropped from 95 at noon to 85 at 5 p. m.

Other maximum temperatures from downstate cities were: Springfield, 98 degrees; Quincy, 101, and Canton, 103. In Quincy it was the hottest June day ever recorded there. Canton's 103 was the highest of the year so far in that city.

Three Deaths During Day.

Before the shift in the wind in Chicago, weather bureau officials were of the opinion that the mercury was headed for the 100 degree mark, which would have equaled the all-time June heat record established in the city last Wednesday.

Three deaths attributed in part to the heat occurred during the day. The victims were Henry Cook, 71 years old, formerly of Milwaukee, who died in his room at 817 North Dearborn street; Hjalmar V. Anderson, 65 years old, 1439 North Clark street, and Elinor Laapz, colored, 28 years old of Willow Springs.

Seven Band Members Collapse.

Seven members of the Menasha, Wis., High school band collapsed while marching into the Fair grounds at 22d street for a concert. The program of the 72 piece band was called off and the victims of heat prostration were taken to the exposition's emergency hospital for treatment by Dr. Frank Baylor. They are Walter Christensen, Catherine Streator, Mary Jean Sensenbrenner, Marie Yaley, Marine Levalle, Janet Judd, and Charlotte Heckrodt.

Lincoln park officials said that approximately 175,000 persons went to the beaches from Oak street to Devon avenue. South park officials estimated that more than 100,000 were on the beaches from 49th street to Jackson park.

The old expression, "Hot enough to fry eggs on the sidewalk," was literally true, as demonstrated by Mrs. T. H. Hunt on a sidewalk at Oak street beach.

AUTOISTS ROB FILLING STATION.

Three robbers had the tank of their automobile filled yesterday by William Gagenworth, owner of a filling station at 5053 South Western avenue, and then held him up and took $27 from him.

AIR SCHOONER GOES WEST 180 MILES AN HOUR

Pioneers New Era in Trans-U. S. Travel.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oakland, Cal., June 11.—[Special.]—In and down at the Oakland airport. Adventures end for the several de luxe pioneers who lounged across the continent today in the fastest passenger routing in history—United Air lines, twenty hour coast to coast service.

Something less than 16 hours from Chicago. The covered wagons of a hundred years ago, by the same schedule, would be about half way to Aurora. The transcontinental rail limited would be steaming into central Nebraska.

Banks Above Oakland Airport.

Pilot J. Greer ended the dash at 12:45 a. m. Chicago time as he banked steeply above the Oakland airport and slipped down expertly in the glare of the beacon to stop at the entrance of the California terminal. His passengers encountered the longest twilight as the ship sailed on from Salt Lake City.

As the plane raced westward the sun hung for hours on the horizon. At 10 o'clock Chicago time—7 o'clock Pacific time—it was setting. Purple shadows crept down the valleys below. A mother of pearl radiance illumined the cloud banks and faded slowly.

At 7,000 Foot Elevation.

At 11 o'clock Chicago time, with the western sky still faintly ruddy, the plane swept from its 7,000 foot elevation. Thousands of fireflies twinkled beyond, and the flashing beacon revealed them as the lights of Reno—next stop but one from Oakland. A moment's pause at Sacramento to check up on the mail, then into Oakland—across the bay to San Francisco, and the trip is done.

Streaks Away from Chicago.

A 1933 prairie schooner whirled down the runway of the Chicago municipal airport this morning and streaked away in the summer sunshine over a historic route to California. At three miles a minute, the newest model Boeing plane of the United Air Lines was only a speck in the sky before the handkerchiefs had ceased to flutter at the airport gate.

No bands. No flags. No grandiose gestures. Just a squad of hurrying red caps, a scurry of mail trucks, and a casual "all aboard" signaled the opening of the fastest passenger service in all history from the Atlantic to the Pacific shores.

Start of Regular Service.

In travel statistics, this epic of speed is today shrinking this country to one-fourth its natural size. In time element, it brings the east and west coasts to within twenty hours of each other. It is "racing the sun" across the continent, and it isn't a stunt—it's routine after today.

Sans ceremony, as indicated, the old order gave place to the new on the long concrete apron before the Chicago airport at 9 o'clock this morning [daylight saving time].

Drawn up in single file stood four planes—two low slung, streamlined metal monoplanes, snorting with impatience to be gone. Two longer, louder, larger ships in ivory and green motors panting as they landed for the last time from California and New York.

The two Boeing biplanes, sacrificed to the great god speed, were unloaded and taxied away to the hangar, as an old race horse is turned out to pasture. The two sleek monoplanes, yearlings, yearning for the course, turned their noses east and west, and were away like a shot. On each wing of either one, a Wasp motor each comprising the strength of 550 horses, is set half its length beyond the edge, following the latest engineering design to reduce wind resistance from the propeller against the broad tip of the wing span.

Mail Delays Plane.

More than an hour late in taking off because of mail plane connections from the east not being adjusted to schedule until tomorrow, the Frisco plane darted away like an arrow at 9:05, daylight saving time. Pilot Cliff Coppin of the Chicago port, with nine years of commercial and army flying behind him, settled down to make up that lost time.

Once off the ground, he climbed abruptly to 5,000 feet. Spacious highways narrowed to mere taut white cords against the darker background of fields and farm buildings. Homes and factories, churches and schools, dwindled in a twinkling to toy counter proportions. Still we climbed.

Seven thousand feet, houses are the sizes of walnuts, automobiles appear as fleas swarming along the white ropes of the roads, and the landscape unreels beneath us in the geometrical symmetry of a checkerboard, as the plane seems to hang motionless, suspended in the air.

That muddy, meandering brook just there, isn't any brook at all, the map says. It's the father of waters—Ol' Man Mississippi himself, rolling along. We're in Iowa now. The east forty and the west eighty are scenically restful if one only had time to pause and gaze.

Nebraska. Sliding down a long, long inclined plane from the sky to land at Omaha, a brief halt is called. The cabin, breezy and cool in the upper spaces, begins to glow and sizzle, as the earth's heat rushes up to envelop the plane. Everybody climbs out to cool off a bit.

Over Historic Route.

From Omaha on west every mile of the way teems with historic association.

"Westward the course of empire"—over this oldest of transcontinental trails, Indians followed the buffalo tracks. Then came the fur traders, then the indomitable Lewis and Clark. Brigham Young led his flock along this route, and recorded proudly on a buffalo skull that is still preserved, "pioneers camped here June 3, 1847, making fifteen miles today. All well."

On this June Sunday of 1933 we are rushing through space in the clouds above the old Mormon trail at the rate of fifteen miles in five minutes.

We had made up fifteen minutes as we volplaned down to snatch a sandwich and a smoke at Cheyenne.

A gleam in the sunlight like beaten gold, Great Salt Lake shimmered a welcome this afternoon to the plane as it rocketed across the walls of historic Immigration Pass and slid in a stop in a cloud of dust at the Municipal airport.

The trip from Cheyenne, Wyo., was one of scenic grandeur and glorious weather, majestic mountain ranges girdled solidly with snow, and smiling valleys.

From the venerable peak of Mount Elk, outside Cheyenne, more than 11,000 feet high, with its pine clad shoulders thrust upward into another mountain of fleecy clouds, to the first glimpse of Salt Lake City, each mile was more marvelous than the last. Then we are on our way to San Francisco.

SPANISH AIRMEN SET ATLANTIC FLIGHT RECORD

Mattern's Log

aviators that their flight was the longest ever made over water.

Hugh Herndon and Clyde Pangborn, and Capt. Arturo Ferrarin and Carlo P. Del Prete of Italy made longer nonstop flights which were mostly over water. The absence of data on how much of the distance actually was across the sea, however, makes it virtually impossible to settle the matter.

In the course of their world flight in 1931 Herndon and Pangborn flew from Samishiro beach, 280 miles north of Tokio, to Wenatchee, Wash., which is about 200 miles inland. The navy hydrographic bureau figured the distance at 4,877 miles and the aviation year book lists it at 4,558 miles.

Russell Boardman and John Polando flew non-stop from New York to Istanbul, Turkey, in 1931, a distance of 4,984 miles.

Mattern Reaches Khabarovsk.

MOSCOW, June 11.—(AP)—Jimmie Mattern, making the first solo flight around the world, arrived early today at Khabarovsk, Siberia, jumping-off point for the trans-Pacific leg of his journey, after being lost and forced to land about 100 miles north of that city.

He landed at Khabarovsk at 3:20 a. m. Moscow time [7:20 p. m. Saturday, Chicago time]. Latest advices said he was taken to a hotel where he fell asleep immediately and officials had no opportunity to question him as to when he intended to take off for home.

At that time he was three days behind the pace set by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty in their 1931 flight around the world with no chance to challenge their record of eight days 15 hours and 51 minutes. But they were held at Khabarovsk more than a day, which gave him an opportunity to establish a solo record comparing well with theirs.

Flyer Loses Way.

Mattern started for Khabarovsk from Byelaya, Siberia, more than 1,400 miles inland, at 1:50 a. m. Saturday Moscow time [5:50 p. m. Friday, Chicago time]. He passed over Rukhlovo at 9:15 a. m. Saturday Moscow time. Rukhlovo is only 720 miles from Khabarovsk but it was not learned until tonight that he stopped en route at Sofisk.

It was disclosed that he lost his way shortly after leaving Rukhlovo, mistaking the river Zea for the Amur. Attempting to reach Khabarovsk, he finally found Sofisk, about 100 miles north of his goal. It is up the Amur river from Khabarovsk.

Hop from N. Y. for Haiti.

New York, June 11.—(AP)—The monoplane Columbia, eight year old veteran of two trans-Atlantic flights, headed for Haiti tonight on a projected nonstop good will journey of 2,471 miles.

Capt. J. Erroll Boyd, who flew the silver ship to England in 1930, three years after Clarence Chamberlin piloted it to Germany, was at the controls when it took off from Floyd Bennett field at 3:25 p. m. [Chicago time].

Robert G. Lyon, a former navy flyer, accompanied the world war aviator as co-pilot, and H. P. Davis, once a Haitian newspaper man, went along as author-observer.

The trio hopes to complete the flight in 24 hours, remain in Port-au-Prince two days, and they fly the plane back to New York. A stop will be made at Washington on the return trip.

U. S. TO REQUEST MAIL INDICTMENT AGAINST BAINS

Fraud Inquiry Awaits End of Income Tax Quiz.

Federal officials disclosed yesterday that an indictment charging John Bain, his sons and son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, and other officials of the defunct banking chain, with using the mails to defraud will be sought in the early future. Bain and his sons, Robert A. and John, and Fisher have been convicted in the state court.

The elder Bain is under a sentence of 1 to 5 years on a conviction for conspiracy to defraud in connection with the collapse June 9, 1931, of the twelve banks he headed, resulting in a loss of $13,000,000 to depositors. In the same case the sons and Fisher were fined $1,000 each. On May 15 of this year Judge James F. Fardy found Bain, his son, John H., and Fisher guilty of accepting deposits while knowing the bank to be insolvent and sentenced them to 1 to 3 years in the penitentiary. Should they be convicted of using the mails to defraud, sentences up to five years in Leavenworth could be imposed on each count.

Waits On Income Tax Inquiry.

United States Attorney Dwight H. Green refused to discuss the intended action against the Bains, but it was learned in authoritative quarters that he is waiting until the grand jury finishes its inquiry into the income tax affairs of Murray Humphries and other labor union racketeers before presenting the Bain evidence.

A transcript of the conspiracy trial record and all other evidence gathered by the state against the Bains have been turned over to the government by Edwin J. Raber, special assistant state's attorney. Since there is only one substantial difference between a conspiracy case and one in which using the mails in a scheme to defraud is charged—the use of the mails—very little work is necessary on the part of the government in the preparation of its case, federal investigators said. The publication of bank statements in newspapers and the sending of printed matter regarding stock and bond issues handled by the Bains could be easily shown, it was said.

Heavy Borrowing Revealed.

Besides the alleged acceptance of deposits by the Bain group when their banks were known to be insolvent and the floating of bond issues on properties grossly overvalued, the state showed in the conspiracy trial that they had borrowed huge amounts on worthless collateral or none at all. Bain himself owed the banks $680,000 at the time of the crash and trust companies formed by Bain owed as follows: John Bain, Inc., $993,000; the Lews company, $257,000. John H. Bain owed $71,000. Robert A. owed $32,000 and Fisher owed $41,000. Other officers and directors owed more than $5,000,000. Prosecutor Raber estimated that besides the loss of $13,000,000 in depositors' money the loss to the public in stocks, bonds and mortgages approximated $30,000,000.

The proposed indictment would be similar to those in the H. O. Stone & Co. and Corporation Securities company [Insull] cases.

CREDITORS FIGHT DUNCAN SISTERS' PLEA OF 'BROKE'

Hollywood, Cal., June 11.—[Special.]—Vivian and Rosetta Duncan, actresses, are scheduled to appear in court tomorrow to face creditors who have indicated opposition to their being adjudicated bankrupts.

The sisters, who failed to appear a week ago before United States District Judge W. B. James, were notified to appear before Federal Trustee O. T. Gilbank, who is opposing their discharge from debts estimated at about $400,000 or suffer the consequences. The trustee has contended the entertainers have not accounted for earnings aggregating $900,000 for the three years preceding their petition in bankruptcy.

Gregory Ratoff, actor and husband of Eugenie Leontovich, must also appear in Federal court tomorrow. He faces a controversy arising over his plea to be discharged from indebtedness of about $30,000. His creditors assert he failed to properly account for royalties received in recent theatrical ventures.

REBEL WARFARE FLARES AGAIN IN CUBAN PROVINCE

HAVANA, Cuba, June 11.—(AP)—Reports from the interior today indicated scattering revolutionary activity continues in Santa Clara province, where at one time last month approximately 400 rebels were in the field.

Santa Cruz, near Sancti Spiritus, was the site yesterday of fighting between soldiers commanded by Corporal Valeriano Rodriguez and an armed band of unestimated strength, the general staff announced. Its communique said four of the band were killed, among them the reputed leader, one Bernardin Hernandez.

GRIFFIN PLANS FOR NONSTOP WORLD FLIGHT

Kansas City, Mo., June 11.—[Special.]—Bennett Griffin, co-holder of the record for the fastest flight across the Atlantic, who will take part in the American air races at Chicago July 1-4, announced here tonight that he is arranging a nonstop around the world flight next summer. The announcement followed the conclusion of the three day air show staged here by the American Air Race association. The show will have its climax in Chicago next month. Griffin was reluctant to disclose details of the proposed flight other than to say that an airplane he is having especially built will be refueled in midair at six points during the flight.

Eighteen thousand persons watched the spectacular show staged today by a dozen of this nation's most noted race and acrobatic flyers, all of whom will be in Chicago three weeks hence.

From here the pilots will go to Omaha, Neb., and a week later will be in Minneapolis, Minn. After Minneapolis they will be joined by nearly three hundred other crack pilots at Chicago, staging the outstanding aviation spectacle of the year.

Prior to announcing his proposed nonstop around the world flight Griffin won the Fairfax airport trophy in a twenty-five mile closed course race today.

Hoodlums Throw Acid on Restaurant Awnings

Three hoodlums riding in an automobile yesterday threw acid upon awnings on the restaurant of Fred Tantozin, 7058 South State street. Tantozi told police that a similar attack was made a week ago on a store in the neighborhood, but could give no motive for the attack. He said he had purchased union-made awnings.

HOLIDAY MEALS MAKE CHILDREN TOSS ALL NIGHT

Warm Milk Aid to Rest, Physicians Find.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 11.—(AP)—Eating a big Thanksgiving dinner, scientists have found, not only gives little Johnny bad dreams but makes him toss about in his sleep 100 per cent more than usual.

This is one of the results of a new study of children's sleep exhibited at the 84th annual meeting of the American Medical association opening here tomorrow.

The sleep study, made by Dr. Glenville Giddings of Emory university, Atlanta, Ga., shows more accurately than ever before how various influences affect soundness of sleep.

Dr. Giddings also found that, contrary to a well established belief, taking a warm bath before going to bed is not an aid to restful sleep and that children who ate all they wanted of a plain but heavy meal before retiring moved about approximately 105 times during nine hours' sleep.

Those who partook of an ordinary meal moved only 50 to 53 times.

Other discoveries of Dr. Giddings: New toys given to children about 3 in the afternoon produced enough excitement to disturb their sleep considerably during the following night.

Children are most restless during the first and last half hours of sleep.

Dr. Giddings' tests, shown in the exhibit, were made on 23 children in a country school with an instrument known as the "hypnograph," which automatically records movements of a person tossing about in bed.

Tests Boys and Girls.

It consists of a metal plunger attached to the bid spring under the mattress which moves up and down with the movements of the sleeper, registering by an electrical connection on a moving strip of paper. It was first developed by Dr. Samuel Renshaw of Ohio State university.

In the tests the hynograph was attached to the bed of each of the children, half of which were boys and half girls, ranging in age from 9 to 14.

OTHERS ORDAIN 5TH PREACHER IN ONE FAMILY

Auburn, Neb., June 11.—(AP)—Today was a memorable day in the life of the Streng family—marking the ordination by the Rev. Theodore Streng of his fourth son into the ministry and the completion by him of 40 years of service as pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church here.

Mr. Streng's other three sons assisted in the ordination of William, the youngest son, who has just completed his course at Wartburg Theological seminary of Dubuque, Ia. The new pastor soon will take charge at Rock Falls, Ill.

ACTRESS MISSING; POLICE ASKED TO HUNT FOR HER

Los Angeles, Cal., June 11.—(AP)—Fearing his wife, Mary Dorne, may be the victim of foul play or some mental disorder, Eugene Walter, playwright, asked police today to search for the 26 year old actress.

Walter said he had left his wife in downtown Los Angeles Saturday at 1 p. m. and she told him she would return home after shopping. She had not returned late today, however.

Walter, author of many plays and films, including "The Easiest Way," "The Wolf," and other successes, said his wife apparently was in perfect health, mentally and physically, and that no domestic difficulties existed.

"She has either lost consciousness of her identity and whereabouts or has been victimized by some one," he said.

M'MATH GIRL'S KIDNAPERS GO ON TRIAL TODAY

Barnstable, Mass., June 11.—(AP)—Kenneth and Cyril Buck, held in Barnstable county jail, will go on trial tomorrow charged with kidnaping Margaret [Peggy] McMath of Harwichport with intent to extort money.

The court session will open at 10 a. m. with Judge Edward F. Hanify presiding. Elias H. Burwick of Worcester will defend Kenneth and Willard Carleton, Hyannis, is counsel for Cyril.

Each defense lawyer denied his client had any intention of pleading guilty and said they would fight the cases to the end with a firm belief they would win acquittal. Burwick said insanity would play no part in the defense of Kenneth.

OVERFLOW CROWD DEDICATES FAIR'S HALL OF RELIGION

Co-operation of Faiths Is Speakers' Keynote.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

In the presence of a throng which overflowed the large assembly hall into its spacious corridors the Hall of Religion at A Century of Progress was dedicated yesterday afternoon. The keynote, sounded by George W. Dixon and echoed by all other speakers, was the new spirit of coöperation now developing among faiths and creeds.

Dr. Allen D. Albert, representing Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Fair board, declared the Hall of Religion to be the most distinctive building on the grounds. It was the first, he said, to be oversold. He added that the structure was erected by volunteers working under Exposition management.

Sees Passing of Competition.

Dr. Louis L. Mann, spiritual leader of Sinai temple, declared that religions have passed into the third stage of their progress. The first stage was a sort of unity gained by force, which, he said, closely followed the methods of imperially minded nations, able to conquer only by sheer external force. That stage passed, continued Dr. Mann, as military force gave way as an empire builder to economic competition. We are seeing the end of the competitive method of empire building, he pointed out, as well as the demise of competition between religions and sects as a faith building method.

The new world into which we are emerging, Dr. Mann asserted, is one in which empires and religions will be built through coöperative enterprise and mutual tolerance.

Assemblage Voices Dedication.

The service of dedication was led by Mr. Dixon, who is the chairman of the exposition committee on religion. The climax of the service prepared for the occasion was the dedicatory sentence:

"For the realization of an ideal in the cause of peace and tolerance—"

The response, coming from the lips of the assembled throng, representing several world religions, was the declaration:

"Do we dedicate this Hall of Religion"

Speaking on the themes of tolerance and coöperation, Mr. Dixon declared one of the most pronounced advancements in religion has been the growth of tolerance.

Religious Liberty Now a Fact.

"The right of man," said Mr. Dixon, "to worship God according to the dictates of his conscience has long been a formula but now it is a fact. This century has seen the growth and completion of the unwritten Magna Charta of religious liberty!"

Other speakers at the dedication included Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Methodist area of Chicago, Rabbi Gerson B. Levi, spiritual leader of Temple Isaiah Israel, and Dr. Joshua Oden, pastor of the Irving Park Lutheran church.

Notes of a Century of Progress

The Illinois Host building and the Michigan exhibit in the Hall of States are two of the coolest places on the grounds. Both use cooling systems. The Michigan exhibit has a refrigeration plant under the indoor water fall which keeps the temperature of the room cool.

The schooner Bluenose, stationed at the 23d street dock, is a popular concession. It arrived Saturday.

Four lake steamers were put into regular operation yesterday, running from Navy pier and points in the Chicago river, to the 23d street dock at the Fair. They operate on half hourly schedules and have a total capacity of 2,000 passengers an hour.

The hot weather, until the cool breeze struck in the afternoon, forced most of yesterday's visitors to remain inside the exhibit buildings. The roller chair and jinrikisha boys did a rushing business.

Veterans of the second and third American divisions of the A. E. F. who were engaged in the battle of Belleau Woods from June 9 to 11, 1918, held a victory celebration yesterday at the Pantheon. Maj. McCarron of the 6th U. S. infantry was in charge.

The state elementary school commission of Mississippi has authorized summer school credit to teachers attending the World's Fair for at least one week this summer. At least one day must be spent at the Field museum and Art institute and a satisfactory written report of the visit must be submitted by the teachers taking advantage of this offer.

The Italian pavilion, official exhibit of that country is, according to the attendance register, one of the most popular of the national exhibits. Prince Ludovico Potenziani, royal commissioner to the Fair, last night said 100,000 visitors have entered the doors since the exhibit opened. Part of the display is intended to show the growth, both cultural and industrial, in Italy under the leadership of Benito Mussolini.

One of the demonstrations which drew large crowds yesterday was the spectacle of a million volt electric current leaping a three foot gap at the exhibition of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

A fence has been put around the lawn on the east side of the Field museum to prevent people cutting across the grass to reach the 12th street gate to the Fair. The grass was almost completely worn off during the first two weeks of the Exposition.

Two programs of health talks under the auspices of the social works exhibit of the Fair and the Council of Social Agencies will be given in the auditorium of the Illinois Host building tomorrow. The first session is from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., with Dr. Joseph B. De Lee, Miss Marian Rottman, and Paul Fesler as the speakers. At the afternoon session from 2:30 to 4:30 o'clock Dr. I. D. Rawlings, Dr. Max Biesenthal and Miss Edna L. Foley will speak.

Special holiday rates to Chicago from points in the nine states served by the Chicago and North Western railway will be in effect from June 30 to July 4, with a return limit to reach the original starting point on July 7. Round trip coach fares will be 75 per cent of the regular one-way fare. Sleeping car rates will be reduced 25 per cent.

Surrounded by a court of 200 bathing beauties, King Neptune yesterday dedicated Jantzen beach at the World's Fair. The water king was in reality Frank Reiter. Some 3,000 spectators watched a water carnival which followed the ceremony. Stubby Kruger, Hawaiian star; Micky Riley, Olympic diving champion, and Pete Des Jardines presented a three hour program of exhibition swimming and diving.

MOVE TO REVIVE BILL AIMED AT SALARY BUYERS

Some means of resuscitating a senate bill aimed at loan sharks who operate as salary buyers which has been buried in committee in the Illinois house of representatives for a month are expected to be resorted to in Springfield this week. Swift action could effect its passage by the end of the session, which must come by July 1.

Introduced by Senator Francis J. Loughran, [Dem., Chicago] to cure a situation which he described as "intolerable," the bill would prevent loan sharks from collecting as much as 240 per cent interest annually as they have been doing.

TRAP TWO WHO PLOT AGAINST WEALTHY WIDOW

New York, June 11.—[Special.]—Ira Rae Brown, a bartender, and his wife are under arrest, charged with attempting to extort $4,700 from Mrs. George A. Fuller, 383 Park avenue. Mrs. Fuller is the widow of George A. Fuller of the construction company that bears his name.

Last Thursday Mrs. Fuller received a letter in a woman's handwriting which read: "We want $4,700. Don't tell the police. We mean business. Full instructions as to where and how to leave the money will follow in another letter. If we don't get the money your heirs will." There was no signature.

ITALIANS MAY GO WEDNESDAY ON CHICAGO FLIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ORBETELLO, Italy, June 11.—Meteorological reports from the north Atlantic continued unsatisfactory today for the departure of Gen. Italo Balbo's air crusade to Chicago's A Century of Progress exposition. Wednesday is now the earliest date which can be fixed for the takeoff on the first lap of their flight from here to Amsterdam.

Early today the airport personnel, including the pilots who are going to Chicago, attended religious ceremonies incident to the dedication of a monument to 18 war pilots, former members of the Orbetello school, who were buried in a local cemetery. Later on Col. Grandi, commandant of the airport, read a long article recently written by Mussolini appraising Italy's war effort.

Officials tonight said the flight itinerary may be subject to several modifications. If the weather is favorable the crusaders will make no stop in Ireland but fly directly from Amsterdam to Iceland. They have also eliminated a stop at Quebec, going direct from Cartwright, Labrador, to Montreal, thence to Chicago. On the return trip it is likely the armada will fly over London, Paris, Berlin and Rome, giving significance to the recent signature of the four power peace pact between these four capitals.

COVER MARK!

Of vital interest to both men and women

BIRTHMARKS — X-RAY BURNS
BURNS FROM INJURY — ACNE
VARICOSE VEINS — LIVER SPOTS
BROWN OR WHITE PATCHES
DARK CIRCLES UNDER THE EYES
ALL DISCOLORATIONS AND SCARS

Cover Mark has been widely acclaimed by all the magazines represented here. Its discovery was due to a courageous woman with an unsightly birthmark. After years of research she perfected it. In different complexion tones, it blends beautifully with the skin and does not crack or rub off until removed.

Olive oil does wonders for your skin

—and it's olive oil that makes Palmolive green

WHEN the ancients sought protection for lovely skin, they found it in the natural oils of olive and palm. And in more than 3,000 years, nothing has ever been found to take their place.

It is these beauty oils that give to Palmolive Soap its blandness, its mild, gentle cleansing quality. No other fats go into Palmolive. Its rich lather searches the pores for impurities—and removes them thoroughly but in utter safety to delicate skin.

Palmolive soothes and stimulates, bringing to the skin that freshness, that natural bloom and radiance which makes a woman so appealing.

And it is now so inexpensive that it can be used liberally for bath as well as face . . . for the entire family.

Over 20,000 experts advise this: Morning and evening: work a rich lather of Palmolive and warm water into the skin of face, throat and shoulders. Rinse—first with warm water, then with cold.

FAIR IS NEARING MILLION MARK IN ATTENDANCE

Crowds Begin to Grow as Weather Cools.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Total attendance at the World's Fair was brought close to the 1,000,000 mark last night as cool breezes from the lake drew the usual Sunday crowds to the Exposition grounds after the heat had kept many visitors away earlier in the day. When the gates closed Saturday night 909,938 persons had paid admissions since the opening. Total attendance yesterday was 75,951.

Although officials had hoped that the 1,000,000 might be reached in the first two weeks of the present Fair they were still optimistic over the attendance figures. Compared with the figures for the Columbian exposition of 1893, attendance at the present Fair has been more than double except on Sundays, records show.

Bitter Legal Battle.

The Columbian exposition, which opened May 1, 1893, was not permitted to open on Sunday until May 28 and then only after a bitter legal battle which continued until June 11, 1893, when it was finally settled by a ruling of the then U. S. Supreme Court Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller.. On Sunday, May 28, 1893, the attendance was 77,212, compared to 54,921 on Sunday, May 28, this year. Fair officials explained that many of those in that first Sunday crowd in 1893 went mainly to record their approval of the Fair remaining open on Sunday.

On June 4, the second Sunday the Columbian exposition was open, only 56,760 paid admissions were recorded, as compared to 85,315 who attended the present Fair a week ago yesterday. The attendance at the old fair on Sunday, June 11, was 71,213, compared to 75,951 yesterday.

Originally congress had given the directors of the Columbian exposition authority to open the gates on Sunday, but later, when a bill authorizing souvenir coins was passed, a rider disapproving Sunday opening was attached. Opening the gates on Sunday was termed by its opponents as "an assault on the Sabbath."

On the first Sunday opening a majority of the exhibits were closed and all the machinery that could be was stopped. All federal government exhibits also were closed. About all the visitors could enjoy were the Fine Arts building and the beauty of the grounds. The attendance, however, was much larger than the best week day figures.

Give Religious Programs.

The program on that first Sunday opening was particularly religious with the band concert giving as its opening selection, "Nearer My God to Thee," and the visitors joining in the singing of the hymn. Religious services were conducted in Festival hall by a majority of Chicago denominations. Many ministers invited during the first weeks refused to participate.

Later another effort was made to close the Fair on Sunday, July 23, on the petition of stockholders. A lower court fined the board of directors, but this decision was overruled on appeal. This ended the attempts to close the exposition on Sundays, but the general public had become so mixed up that Sunday attendance fell off to an average of 18,000 in August. It increased to 40,000 in September and in October ranged from 82,000 to over 150,000 paid admissions. More than 75 per cent of the total attendance at the 1893 fair was recorded during the latter half of the exposition.

A special featurs of today's program at the Fair is expected to swell the attendance by more than two thousand visitors in a special group. Today will be celebrated as Bankers' day and it is expected that more than two thousand bankers, attending the 31st annual convention of the American Institute of Banking, will attend. They will visit the Fair at 3:30 p. m. and will be greeted by officials, prior to making a tour of the grounds.

A public school music festival and the observation of Arizona day are expected to aid in drawing a crowd.

Ban Mortgage Foreclosures in Nicaragua for 6 Months

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, June 11.—Because of the acute economic situation, congress has passed a law prohibiting the foreclosure of mortgages for a period of six months. The measure also reduces interest on mortgages to 9 per cent from the previous prevailing rates of 12 to 18 per cent. In case of foreclosure only 6 per cent interest can be collected. It is believed the depression will continue until the price of coffee, Nicaragua's chief export, increases.

BALFE M'DONALD STARTS HOME AS MOTHER SLAYER

Nashville, Tenn., June 11.—(AP)—Balfe MacDonald, 17 year old Flint, Mich., youth, today was on his way back home with Michigan policemen to face a charge of slaying his mother.

Balfe, his friend, William Terwilliger, and the policemen had three autos. Terwilliger, 16, will be brought back here later for trial. The two tion here, through letters written to local business men. The boys left Flint early on May 27, the day Mrs. Grace B. MacDonald's body, with the skull crushed by the use of two metal book ends, was found in bed at her home.

Both boys today were accompanied by attorneys. Both had pleaded guilty Thursday before the United States commissioner to charges of mailing extortion notes.

Balfe has denied killing his mother, saying he first learned of her death in a Toledo, O., newspaper the afternoon of May 27. He was "scared to go back," he added, because he could not prove his innocence.

J. Earl Poultney, Flint city detective, declared Terwilliger told Sheriff Thomas W. Wolcott of Genesee county, Mich., that MacDonald had told of striking his mother on the head with a book-end. Regarded as a "problem child" by former school teachers, Balfe's defense will be temporary insanity.

Cut Worms Destroy Corn in Region of Towanda, Ill.

Bloomington, Ill., June 11.—[Special.]—Cut worms have attacked the corn east of Towanda, Ill., so that general replanting is necessary, R. J. Laible, McLean county farm adviser, announced today. H. SKY RIDE VIEW BARES TRAFFIC KINKS AT FAIR

New System to Be Put Into Effect Wednesday.

BY HAL FOUST.

The traffic problem at A Century of Progress, viewed yesterday from the 628 feet elevation of the sky ride observatory platform, presented itself as if on a bas-relief map with miniature vehicles and pedestrians enacting their parts.

At the north end of the Exposition, the trouble spot in the present system, men, women and children could be seen trudging over the foot bridge in front of the Field museum from bus and taxi cab loading and unloading platforms. The passerelle will not be used in the traffic scheme, designed by a committee of engineers, which will be installed between midnight and 6 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Acute Right Turn Eliminated.

Northbound automobiles were watched as they approached Roosevelt road on the inner drive. The motorists kept in lanes painted on the pavement, increasing the capacity of the road and expediting travel. However, the cars left the marked lanes and cut to the right to make the acute turn east into Roosevelt road.

This acute right turn will be eliminted from the new traffic scheme. Northbound automobiles will continue north on the inner drive, as they did before the opening of A Century of Progress.

The observatory presented a detailed picture of Grant park. Near the right margin of this picture, next to the lake, was the outer drive, which is to be used after tomorrow night for Fair traffic only. Loops of pavement now idle, between the Shedd aquarium and the Field museum, will be converted overnight into loading and unloading platforms, with a bus terminal segregated from a terminal for taxicabs and private automobiles.

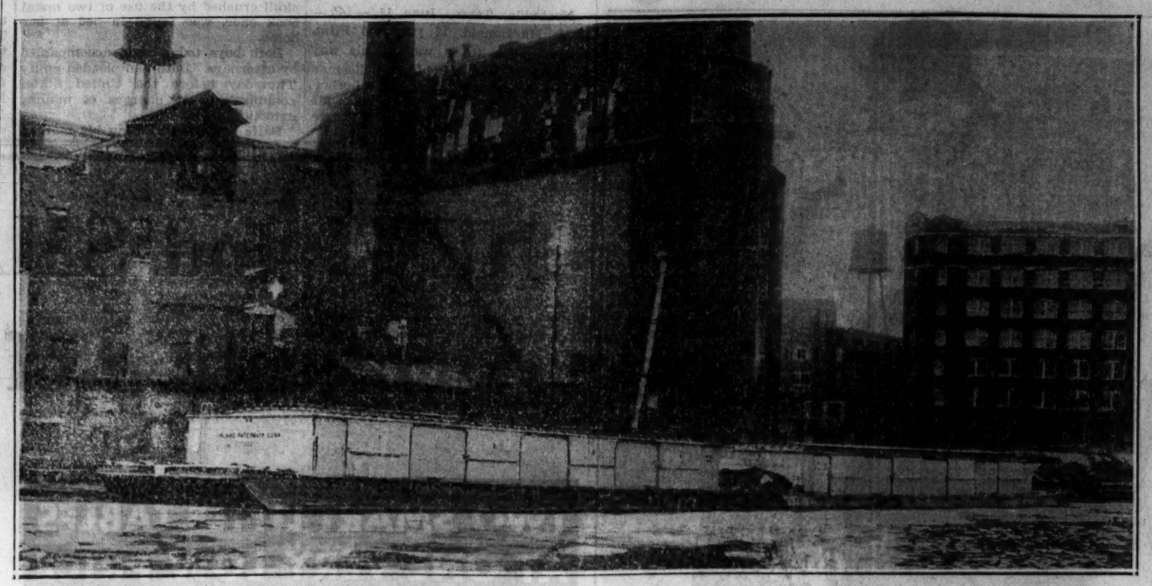
Patrons Ease Traffic Problem.

Looking south and west from the sky ride, tiny figures that were pedestrians could be seen crossing the passerelles to the Exposition gates at 18th, 23d, 31st, and 35th streets. The 39th street gate was behind colorful roofs of Fair buildings.

"Patrons are easing the traffic problem by selecting the entrance closest to the attractions they want to visit," remarked George Barton, Chicago Motor club engineer. "Too much traffic for convenience has been using the Roosevelt road gates. As seen from this advantage, the new traffic scheme may have some tough spots to iron out. However, the scheme has been approved by some engineers whose names are promising of its success."

Among these names are Dr. Miller McClintock, Harvard university traffic research bureau; Leslie Sorenson, city traffic engineer; E. J. McIlraith, staff engineer, Chicago Surface lines; William Sherwood, Chicago Motor Coach company; Maj. E. S. J. Irvine, U. S. corps of engineers, and Ald. John A. Massen, chairman, city traffic committee.

First Cargoes of Corn to Be Shipped Over the Illinois Waterway Arrive



Two barges of corn, the first to be shipped to Chicago over the Illinois waterway, are shown as they arrived at the Farmers' National elevator at 22d and Lumber streets yesterday. One barge was loaded at Peoria and the other at Ottawa. They carried about 25,000 bushles. The steamer W. T. Werner of Memphis, with Capt. W. T. Werner in charge, towed the barges. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Anti-Fascist Editor Dies in Exile of Heart Attack

CHILDREN BEGIN GIVING BENEFITS TO AID ICE FUND

It and Camp Algonquin Need Contributions.

The best friends of THE TRIBUNE free ice fund have started to get busy again this year—the youngsters who spend their vacation time giving benefits for the fund.

The proceeds from the first such benefit arrived yesterday from Mary Virginia Blair, 11 years old; Jean Lois Drake and Barbara Ann Price, each 10 years old, of Homewood. The three little girls put on a show in a garage on last Monday and sold lemonade between acts. They earned $1.50 for the fund.

Two other gifts were received, $5 from "a mother," and $2 from Anonymous. This gives the ice fund a total of $64.50, which is scarcely enough to send ice to many homes. The opening of the ice fund earlier this year due to the heat wave makes it necessary to raise as much money as possible so ice may be sent immediately to the families with small children and where there is illness.

The Camp Algonquin fund will send its first delegation of needy mothers and children to the Fox river camp a week from Tuesday. Gifts received for this fund yesterday were: $5 came from "a mother," $2.50 from L. King White, and $2 each from Gertrude, Louise H., and Kitty. This gives the camp fund a grand total of $158.50. More than $15,000 is needed to keep the camp running at capacity [500 every ten days] until September.

Contributions to both funds are greatly needed. Gifts to both funds should be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower. They will be acknowledged in the columns of this newspaper.

Barges Bring Corn

The first corn to be shipped over the Illinois waterway to Chicago elevators arrived yesterday afternoon in two barges which docked at the elevator of the Farmers National Grain corporation. The barges carried 25,000 bushels of grain. One was loaded yesterday at Ottawa by the Illinois Valley Grain and Barge company, and the other at Peoria Saturday by the Inland Waterways corporation.

PLAN PROTEST ON SLASH FOR STATE NORMALS

Bloomington, Ill., June 11.—[Special.]—An organized protest from civic leaders of the five Illinois cities where teachers colleges are located is being formed here to oppose the proposed reduced appropriation for state normal schools, specially as to that affecting teachers' salaries.

Community leaders at Charleston, De Kalb, Macomb, and Carbondale will join the leaders from Normal-Bloomington to present the matter to the legislators before final action is taken on the normal school appropriation bills for the coming two years.

The total appropriation for Illinois State Normal university in the bill now pending is $822,967, compared with $979,724 appropriated last biennium, a cut of 19 per cent.

Particularly is objection raised to the item of salaries for teachers and other employés of State Normal. This item in the pending bill is $631,779, as compared with $789,724 in the last appropriation. Last year all instructors and employés of State Normal took a cut of 10 per cent. Only recently a second cut of 10 per cent was announced.

FREE RAGWEED OF SOME BLAME FOR HAY FEVER

Medical Journal Tells Clinical Records.

Clinical observations of hay fever sufferers which revealed the kinds of pollen in the Chicago area particularly offensive to them were discussed in a recent article published in the Illinois Medical Journal. The article was prepared by Dr. Samuel M. Feinberg and O. C. Durham, who is chief botanist of the Abbott laboratories.

The data were obtained from the histories of 150 most recent hay fever cases seen in private practice in Chicago and residing either in the city or suburbs. Of the 150 cases 140 had hay fever in the ragweed season, but only 80 of those had ragweed hay fever. The report showed that in 50 cases there was an added midsummer hay fever due to grasses, and nine had hay fever in all three seasons—the tree, grass, and ragweed seasons. In the entire group 68 had hay fever in the grass season.

Sensitive to Marsh Elder.

It was found that 140 of the ragweed season patients reacted also to burweed, marsh elder, and 100 to cocklebur, indicating, the authors stated, some relationship between the active elements of the short and giant ragweed pollen and those of the cocklebur and burweed marsh elder.

"In the majority of instances of grass reactions a positive test to one also resulted in a positive reaction to all of the important hay fever grasses growing here—timothy, June grass, redtop grass and orchard grass. It was found, however, that Bermuda grass pollen which is not to be found in this country, had a negative reaction in a fair proportion of the grass sensitive cases.

"A total of 54 patients reacted to the pollen of one or more species of trees. Only 11 of these had definite hay fever during the season. Of the tree-sensitive cases 35 gave reactions to ash, 21 to cottonwood, 14 to oak, 14 to maple and 3 to elm. In 32 instances definite reactions to Russian thistle were obtained."

Crescent of Weeds Around City.

The authors pointed out that although half the people of the state live in and around Chicago, an area of about one per cent of the state, if this area had no weeds at all there would still be enough pollen throughout the Chicago district to cause severe hay fever symptoms. While much of the pollen is blown in from ths country, they said, there is a crescent of neglected land around the city far weedier than the average farming district.

The suburbs most free of weeds were listed. They include Elmhurst, Evanston, Forest Park, Highland Park [except ragweed in Skokie valley west of town], Park Ridge, Oak Park, Wilmette, Winnetka.

Localities infested by weeds were classified at Blue Island, Calumet, part of Cicero, East Chicago, Elmwood Park, Gary, Ind., Hammond.

In the Chicago area the most active pollens are listed as ragweed, cocklebur, burweed, marsh elder, blue grass, cottonwood tree, and oak tree.

CALL MILITARY PARLEY IN CHINA; PROTEST TRUCE

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, June 12 [Monday].—Generals Pai Chung-Hsi and Tsai Ting-Kai have summoned a military conference in Canton, ostensibly to discuss the anti-communist campaign, but it is believed that deeper motives will be revealed.

Reports from Hongkong say it is understood the southwest council probably will protest again to the league of nations, the soviet government and the signatories of the nine power pact regarding the Peiping armistice with Japan. The Canton faction is determined to oppose the policy of Marshall Chiang Kai-shek at Nanking, even should civil war result.

It is evident Marshal Chiang will be placed in the position where he must declare war against Japan or against Gen. Feng Yu-Hsiang, the northern radical, and Canton.

Contractor Wounded; His Assailant Seized by Police

Herman Deutsch, 45 years old, 3044 North Racine avenue, a contractor, was shot in the left arm early yesterday in front of 3140 North Racine avenue. John Stefano, 3154 North Racine avenue, was arrested and identified as Deutsch's assailant. Deutsch told the police he was walking home with A. H. Laudwig, 68 years old, who lives at the same address, when Stefano assaulted them. The police said Stefano had been drinking.

3 VACATIONISTS KILLED IN CRASH; 2 ARE WOMEN

Bus Demolishes Auto Near Hammond, Ind.

Three Chicago vacationists were killed and a fourth was critically injured early yesterday when their automobile was demolished by a Greyhound interurban bus at Cook, Ind., 15 miles south of Hammond.

The dead were identified as Einar Hessler, 34 years old, 7827 Avalon avenue; Miss Anna Anderson, 38 years old, of the Senate hotel, 1447 East 55th street; and a Mrs. Hedwig Anderson, 35 years old, whose address was unknown to the sister of Miss Anderson, who identified her. The two women were not relatives.

Fourth Victim's Skull Fractured.

Kalix Palmberg, 6916 Indiana avenue, was the owner of the automobile and presumably was driving at the time of the accident. He received a fracture of the skull and other severe injuries, and was still unconscious last evening at St. Margaret's hospital in Hammond, where he was taken.

The party had been visiting at Cedar Lake, Ind., and was on its way back to Chicago at the time of the accident. The Cedar Lake road joins route 41 at Cook, and Frank Landerville of Indianapolis, driver of the bus, told Indiana officials that Palmberg apparently drove onto the through highway without observing a stop sign. The automobile was traveling at high speed and its rear end was struck by the bus.

Dies When Car Hits Truck.

Frank Nikvont, 29 years old, 2217 75th street, Elmwood Park, was fatally injured yesterday when the automobile he was driving collided head-on with a truck at Devon avenue and River road, near Des Plaines. George W. Mezera, 7209 Washington boulevard, Forest Park, driver of the truck, received minor injuries, as did three occupants of Nikvont's car. They were Mr. and Mrs. Julius Heins, 4917 Altgeld street, and Miss Catherine Hansen, 3020 Odell avenue.

A man believed to be John G. Burgick, 25 years old, 1716 Greenleaf avenue, was burned to death last evening when his automobile went off Rand road, near Palatine road, in the Arlington Heights district, and caught fire. Several other motorists were prevented from saving him because of the intense flames. The accident occurred when the car struck a culvert.

The deaths of Nikvont and of the other victim increased the 1933 motor death total in Cook county to 427.

Woman Loses Leg in Crash.

Mrs. Elsie Hohlen, 33 years old, of 2604 Altgeld street, lost one leg yesterday and may lose the other as the result of an unusual automobile accident in Elgin yesterday. She was out driving with her husband, William, when they stopped at South State street park in Elgin to get a dring of water.

Mrs. Hohlen got the water in a cup, and brought it to the car. That done, she stepped around to the rear of the automobile to put the cup in a small trunk attached to the rear. At that moment a car driven by Sigurd Swenson, 2430 Ballou street, Chicago, forced to one side by another automobile, crashed into the rear of the Hohlen auto, crushing Mrs. Hohlen. She was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where surgeons amputated her left leg.

STUDENT KILLED

Myles Egbert, who was graduated from the Chicago Theological seminary last Wednesday, lost his life Saturday night in an automobile collision at Dorchester avenue and the Midway.

FRANCE TO FIGHT AMERICA'S PLEA FOR TARIFF TRUCE

Wants Quota System Set on World Trade.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 11.—The probability that America will be asked to scrap the most essential feature of its program for the economic conference and even revise its traditional tariff legislation was foreshadowed with the arrival here tonight of the French delegation headed by Premier Edouard Daladier.

France is not only unwilling to enter into any reinforced tariff truce as advocated by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, chief of the American delegation, but will attempt to persuade the whole world to adopt the system of import quotas which the American delegation lists as one of the main obstacles in the way of restoring international commerce.

The French delegation sees in a generalization of the quota system the most feasible solution of the present crisis in international exchanges. The French wish to see the conference give birth not to a general customs truce but to a series of "quota conventions."

Say British Use System.

While the French delegation is not unanimously in favor of a quota system—experts in finance are notably understood to be opposed to it—Daladier himself is understood to favor it and it is believed he will make a strong effort to persuade the other nations of its advantages. The French declare that a majority of European nations have definitely incorporated the quota system in their policies and see an indorsement of the principle in recent commercial acords signed between England and a number of other countries, including Germany, Scandinavia, and Argentina.

The French claim that nothing is inherently vicious in the quota system, and that if it has added to the commercial crisis it is only due to the prevailing anarchy of international exchanges. Obviously if the quota system is generalized, the tariff truce envisaged by Hull would be meaningless, since it is based on conventional tariff legislation which depends purely on economic laws to restrict imports by taxing undesired products until their sales price in any given country equals or exceeds the sales price of domestic products of the same nature.

Sets Import Limits.

The quota system on the contrary imposes an arbitrary limitation on the quantity of merchandise which can be imported irrespective of the customs tax imposed. The French admit that under an absolutely unregulated régime of international exchanges confusion is increased when one country arbitrarily limits the quantity of a certain product another country may sell it, but they think this confusion could be regulated by an international accord.

Whereas America envisages a free circulation of merchandise throughout the world, the French system would rather build up a series of partial customs accords between pairs or groups of countries. America, for instance, might have to give up the partial market it now has, say in Switzerland, but would make it up in Spain at the cost of the country which replaced it in Switzerland.

Nullifies American Policy.

The French stand in favor of quotas is sure to lead to a battle royal which threatens to break out almost at the opening of the conference. Even if the American delegation could be persuaded to see good in it, all the United States tariff legislation would have to be revised and most of her existing commercial accords abrogated. It would likewise require a new interpretation of the most favored nation principle which is the basis of American commercial diplomacy.

Nevertheless the French are sure to raise difficulties at the moment Hull brings up the question of a traiff truce. In addition the French do not want to consider such a truce until de facto stabilization of the dollar and pound is realized and there is a general return to the gold standard.

Propose Public Works.

Another French goal is an international program of public works to relieve unemployment and release hoarded money. Raymond Patenotre, undersecretary for national economy, has worked out a vast scheme for financing constructive enterprises. The underlying principle is that all construction loans be guaranteed by the principal governments to overcome the public's distrust of sinking new money in bad loans.

In Europe it is considered that the only form of public work which would be really self-supporting is the development of water power, although the French on their own account are ready to spend huge sums for the development of their African colonies. It is even possible that two great schemes of continental engineers for tunnels under Gibraltar and the English channel may be dusted off again.

any tariff agreement at London beyond a truce on increasing import duties and other trade restrictions. Indications are not wanting that the American delegation will be satisfied under the circumstances with an unconditional tariff truce subscribed to by all the nations to endure for an indefinite period.

Present Truce a Dead Letter.

Only a handful of the leading powers are parties to the present truce. It expires in a few months and is so hedged about by reservations as to be virtually a dead letter. A real tariff truce is one of the major objectives of the American delegation on which Hull will press for early action.

Negotiations for an international agreement on the limitation of wheat production by Henry Morgenthau Sr., Frederick E. Murphy, Minneapolis publisher, and George C. Haas, American delegates to the recent Geneva wheat conference, will be resumed Tuesday with the Canadian delegation and representatives of other wheat exporting countries. The United States is in a strong position to force such an agreement, as under the farm relief law American surplus wheat could be dumped on the world market at a price ruinous to other wheat producing countries.

London Press Pessimistic.

LONDON, June 12.—[Monday.]—(AP)—The question—what if it fails?—was apparently the dominant thought in London newspaper comments today on the opening of the world economic conference.

The Times cited "appalling indications of widespread suffering and demoralization" which the conference is called to combat. It said: "Governments of the world are gathered to face an urgent crisis in the history of modern civilization. They have put their hands to a task they cannot relinguish and wherein they cannot be allowed to fail."

The Post said: "Unless a reasonable degree of success is achieved the world must look forward to far worse times than if the conference were never held."

"Forward or Backward?"

The Daily Telegraph said: "World civilization will move forward or backward according to the results achieved."

The Daily Mail said: "The conference gathers in a spirit of hope rather than optimism. If it dissolves in inconclusive words the human story of the coming years will be a sorry one."

The News Chronicle sees the conference as a conflict between the ideals of nationalism and coöperation, views the mere convening as an initial success for coöperation and believes it ultimately will triumph.

325 to Graduate

The thirty-fifth annual commencement week of De Paul university was inaugurated yesterday morning with a solemn baccalaureate mass in the school church at Webster and Sheffield avenues. The mass was celebrated by the Very Rev. Francis V. Corcoran, president of the university.

Certificates will be presented to graduates of the school of music this evening. Tomorrow night graduates of the De Paul academy will receive diplomas and Wednesday afternoon degrees will be given to 325 university graduates.

Degrees and certificates will be conferred tomorrow on 832 University of Chicago students at the 172d convocation of the university to be held in the university chapel. Advanced and professional degrees will be awarded to 321 students at 11 a. m. and 511 bachelor's degrees will be granted at 3 p. m.

ARMS PACT MUST REVISE NAVIES, FRANCE INSISTS

GENEVA, June 11.—(AP)—In a sentence of five words, "the convention must be general," France served notice to the world today that the projected disarmament treaty must deal with naval questions as well as with the army and the air, because France considers the various arms interdependent.

[The British disarmament plan now under consideration by the Geneva conference proposes to embody the results of the Washington and London naval treaties in the general convention.]

Revise Older Treaties.

The American and Japanese delegates interpret the French declaration, which was filed with the conference today, to mean that the three-power London agreement which limits cruisers, destroyers and submarines, must be revised at Geneva before any general arms accord can be signed.

It may mean also, in the opinion of some authorities, that the French will insist on revision of the Washington treaty which limits battleships and aircraft carriers.

U. S. Status Same Until 1936.

The French delegation, questioned on the matter, confirmed that the declaration implies revision of the London accord, but without affecting the United States, Great Britain and Japan until 1936, when the treaty expires unless the signatories agree otherwise.

A French spokesman said that since the London agreement runs only two years and a half longer France elects not to adhere to it, preferring to have naval limitations incorporated in the Geneva convention.

POLAND LIMITS U. S. IMPORTS FOR 4 MONTH PERIOD

WARSAW, Poland, June 11.—(AP)—The Polish government today prohibited importation until Oct. 10 of a list of products from the United States, Argentina, South Africa, and Australia. The list included oil seed, wool, tanning, chemical products, raw animal fat, solid fats, linen and cloth, and shoewear.

Special permits for importation will be issued upon the basis of compensatory trade.

The prohibition will be effective until the new Polish customs tariff is fixed on Oct. 10 next.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, June 11.—The British government is reported to have made an informal suggestion to the French tonight that they, along with Great Britain, make a partial payment on the debt installments due the United States Thursday, so as to place the chief debtors on the same footing.

The suggestion is believed to have been the outcome of a meeting tonight between Prime Minister MacDonald, Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, and Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade. The amount proposed for the suggested payment is not indicated, and, indeed, it is believed the British government itself does not know just how much it may be necessary to pay Thursday.

The impression here is that the whole situation will be crystallized by tomorrow afternoon, when a report is expected from Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay at Washington on his recent conversations with President Roosevelt. Official announcement of Great Britain's intentions will be made by Neville Chamberlain, the chancellor of the exchequer, in the house of commons Tuesday.

Eric Drummond Slated to Be British Envoy to Italy

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 11.—Sir Eric Drummond, who will turn over the office of secretary general of the league of nations to his successor, Joseph Avenol, on June 30, will become British ambassador to Italy in October, it is understood here. The London conference, beginning tomorrow, will be the last big league conference at which Sir Eric will appear as secretary general, and then only on the opening day.

ZAMORA FORCED TO RECALL AZANA IN SPANISH CRISIS

Ex-Premier Renamed 3 Days After Ousting.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, June 11.—Spotting danger signals just ahead, President Niceto Alcala Zamora tonight faltered in his determination to break up the Republican-Socialist combine that ruled the country for 18 months, until he tripped it up Thursday. He called on former Premier Manuel Azana to form a government on his own conditions.

He did this after Indalecio Prieto, Socialist potentiate whom he had unwillingly charged yesterday with forming a new ministry, appeared at the national palace this afternoon to report failure. Prieto and other leaders of the erstwhile majority, like Marcelino Domingo, who was also to form a government, flatly informed the president that the only man who would be able to assemble a solid ministry from the present cortes is Don Manuel Azana, whom he went to such trouble to oust three days ago.

Confronted by Dilemma.

Zamora thus found himself confronted by a dilemma. He either had to call upon the very politican he had repudiated or summon Alejandro Lerroux, radical Republican party leader, whom the left groups brand counter-revolutionary and who after an inevitable failure to obtain the support of these groups for an all Republican government without Socialists would have asked a decree dissolving the cortes.

That is what Zamora wanted but, it is understood, he learned for sure today what some persons suspected all along, that the consequences of his call the old time republican chief, who has led a ferocious filibuster against the Azana government, would have been serious.

When word got out in Barcelona today that Lerroux had been called to the national palace for consultation the crowds, thinking he was about to be charged with forming a government, rioted. Cries of "Down with Lerroux."

Ready to Revolt.

If Madrid Socialists and other revolutionary elements were prepared to surge into the streets in hostile demonstrations against the leader of the Radical party. They did not, however, when they heard Zamora had offered him nothing. And the Socialist unions, which number more than a million men, were ready to strike at a moment's notice.

So Zamora wavered and there was nothing to do but call Azana and give him a free hand.

Azana conferred late tonight with party leaders. It is evident he intends not only to replace the finance minister and place the ministry of agriculture under two heads—the program for which he was ousted—but also to reorganize the entire cabinet for the coming struggle for power.

Prieto, in relating his effort to form a government, said that Zamora this morning suddenly told him he had to get the Lerroux party into the ministry or obtain their pledge not to filibuster any more. Prieto refused even to try. Zamora said he would try personally to settle the difference between Lerroux and the Socialists.

Tells Zamora to Call Azana.

"By asking the Radicals to desist from their tactics, you would be demeaning high office," Prieto said. "I advise you to call in Azana."

"I can't do that," Zamora answered.

Two hours later he did.

Prieto's revelation of what went on in the palace was interpreted by Zamora's friends as the beginning of a campaign to discredit the president. It becomes clear tonight that Prieto's only reason for attempting to form a government, which the Socialists knew would end fatally, was to show Zamora he had to call Azana. Zamora told intimates two days ago that to do so would humiliate him terribly.

The brightest moment of the republic's first serious crisis was when Miguel de Unamuno, patriarchal philosopher, who goes tieless and hatless, bought a necktie and new hat when he was called to the palace—"out of respect to his excellency," the old rebel said. Street venders are selling Unamuno ties all over Madrid for 50 centimes.

Hacks Brother to Death, Stabs Woman, Kills Self

Richmond, Va., June 11.—(AP)—After hacking his brother to death with a meat knife and stabbing his sister-in-law with the same instrument, Jacob Glick committed suicide today as police sought to capture him. A nephew said Glick was taken to the state hospital at Williamsburg two weeks ago for examination but was released.

PRINCE VIOLATES TRADITION, PERILS HEALTH: ALFONSO

VIENNA, June 11.—(AP)—The Vienna Neue Freie Presse today quotes former King Alfonso of Spain as saying in passing through the Austrian capital on his way to Brussels that he opposed the projected marriage of his eldest son, the prince of Asturias.

"I have had to decline the congratulations of my Vienna friends upon the purported forthcoming marriage of my son," the ex-king is reported to have said, "for I have not given my approval to this marriage. First, I have not approved for reasons of family tradition. Second, because not only my son is not entirely well, but the lady he wishes to marry also has spent the last few years in Swiss sanatoria. Should my son nevertheless marry against my approval, he would necessarily relinquish his title and rank."

Alfonso's eldest son recently announced his intention to marry Edelmira Sampedro, a Cuban girl. It was said that he would voluntarily waive all claim to the Spanish throne at the time of his marriage. The prince was an invalid most of his youth, but recently was undestood to have been restored virtually to normal health.

Seattle Jail Has Berths for an Upper and a Lower

Seattle, Wash., June 11.—(AP)—The King county jail has berths for both an upper and a lower. Oren D. Lower, arrested for a federal liquor law violation, was indicted by the federal grand jury and awaits trial. E. L. Upper, convicted of a Dyer act violation, awaits sentence.

NAZI TROOPERS BEAT CATHOLICS IN MUNICH RIOT

Church Delegates Flee Convention City.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUNICH, Germany, June 11.—A congress of 25,000 Catholics from all parts of the world broke up today when police warned Cardinal Michael Faulhaber, archbishop of Munich, that they would not be responsible for the safety of the delegates.

For three days delegates to the Catholic journeymen's congress had been gathering in this city. The convention had originally been prohibited by the Bavarian government, but eventually was permitted to meet because, among other reasons, Franz von Papen, vice chancellor to the reich, was scheduled to speak before it.

When the first delegates arrived wearing orange colored shirts, Hitlerites objected. They said they considered the wearing of the "orange shirts" to be a misuse of the Nazi brown shirt.

Use Truncheons on Catholics.

Then Nazi storm troopers accosted groups of visiting Catholics and accused them of parodying Nazi anthems. Clashes followed.

Leading members of the congress, it was reported, were assaulted by storm troopers, who tore badges off the delegates and beat them up, even using truncheons. Many delegates fled from the city.

Theo Baldi, leader of the Swiss delegation, had his badge ripped off. He was arrested after he was drawn into a clash with the storm troopers. Nazi auxiliary police demanded to see his credentials and he later was released. Baldi lodged a protest with the Bavarian government and the Swiss consul is pursuing the matter.

Even Priests Are Attacked.

Last night the chief Catholic center was raided by the storm troopers. They tore the orange colored shirts from the backs of the delegates. Eye witnesses said even priests were victims of attacks.

This morning storm troopers surrounded the huge exhibition hall in which Cardinal Faulhaber was scheduled to deliver solemn high mass. Catholics were prevented from entering the building and the mass was canceled.

Later the cardinal ordered all visiting delegates to leave the city.

"Nazi headquarters have informed me that all out of town Catholics must leave Munich by midnight," he said.

Hold Triumphal Marches.

Storm troopers held triumphal marches throughout the city this afternoon.

An official police statement blames the Catholics for the disorders. The statement said the delegates showed "lack of discipline." It adds:

"Widespread bitterness caused by the murder of a storm trooper by Catholics at Haigang, near Forchheim, forced the police, regretfully, to close down the Catholic congress to prevent injury to the clerical offices and the ecclesiastical cloth through excesses."

TEACHERS DEFY SCHOOL CLOSING; PLAN PAY FIGHT

They'll Go to Buildings Today as Usual.

Although school was out for the summer offically last Friday, hundreds of teachers will flock back to the buildings today to furnish the basis for a breach of contract action against the board of education. The schools were closed two weeks early by the board and the teachers want to collect salaries for this two week period.

Facing a $10,000,000 deficit, with employés unpaid for five months and many creditors in bankruptcy because the board could not fulfill its obligations, the school trustees voted unanimously for the early closing as an economy measure. The saving in salaries and operating expenses for the two weeks is approximately $2,000,000.

Act on Mills' Advice.

Wiley W. Mills, former alderman, who is attorney for the Chicago High School Teachers' association, advised the teachers to return to their schools this morning. The teachers were told to sign the time sheets in the buildings that were open and if the schools were closed to send letters to the school board. The teachers will act as witnesses for each other that they appeared ready for work. Some of the buildings will be open because engineers will be repairing equipment.

The teachers will become parties to the Abbe-Rosenheim suit, which was started in the court of Circuit Judge Philip Finnegan in 1931. This action attacked the issuance of scrip by the school board. After $10,000,000 worth of the paper had been distributed among school employés an injunction was issued to restrain the board from issuing more.

Supplementary Bills Filed.

Since the granting of the injunction several supplementary bills to the suit have been filed, among them actions to pay interest to teachers on their back salaries whether they took the scrip or not and to obtain salaries for holidays and a week that they did not work in 1932. The school term was shortened a week last year and teachers were not paid for holidays in order to save money.

The state law provides that the public schools shall be operated for at least nine months of the year. With the two weeks' curtailment this month and a two weeks' delay in opening planned for the fall to save an additional $2,000,000, the school board will keep the system running for exactly nine months.

Warrant Sale Hits Snag.

School board members and school officials are holding periodic conferences with loop bankers in an effort to sell $5,300,000 worth of 1932 tax anticipation warrants held in the city's aggregate of funds. The money received from such a sale would finance a month's pay day for teachers and other school employés.

The plan ran into a blockade when the Illinois Supréme court recently upheld the 15 per cent blanket reduction in 1931 assessments on homes and small flat buildings.

WATER SYSTEM FOUNDERS TO BE HONORED TODAY

Tablets commemorating the work of John Ericson, Dewitt C. Creiger, and Ellis S. Chesbrough, engineer founders of the great Chicago water system, will be placed in the old water tower at Chicago avenue today. Mayor Kelly, Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works, and officials of engineering societies will participate in the ceremonies.

The program will take place at the opening in Chicago of the American Waterworks association convention and will mark a century of progress in waterworks engineering. Speakers will recount the achievements from the days 100 years ago when water was peddled from door to door for 10 cents a barrel to the present, with 70 miles of tunnels now in service.

PUBLIC HEARING TO BE HELD TODAY ON CITY BUDGET

Civic Groups to Scan $124,494,973 Bill.

The city's 1933 appropriation bill, totaling $124,494,973, will be scanned today at a public hearing in the city hall. The hearing, at which representatives of civic organizations and property owners are expected to voice their opinions of the appropriations, was ordered by the city council in conformity with state statutes.

In announcing the hearing, Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the council finance committee, requested all the aldermen to be present, particularly those who are not members of the finance committee, so that they may familiarize themselves with the various items in the budget before they vote Wednesday on a motion to approve it.

Corporate Budget $47,862,815.

The corporate fund budget of $47,862,815, the largest budget included in the appropriation bill and out of which health, police and fire and other city employés are paid, is expected by Ald. Clark to merit the most consideration. The budget is $2,431,019 less than that of 1932, and $15,189,264 less than the 1931 budget which was passed under the administration of a former Republican mayor.

Many of the department appropriations have been reduced from the amounts set up last year, but several chairman of council committees have succeeded in getting committee appropriations far in excess of those used by their committees in 1932.

$300 Fund Raised to $4,000.

The health committee fund was raised from the $300 it has had for several years to $4,000 at the request of Ald. Thomas J. Terrell [29th], chairman. Similarly, Ald. David L. Sutton [8th] plugged away in the finance committee until the aldermen gave his committee on the World's Fair $5,000. The committee had $500 to spend in 1932.

Inasmuch as the amounts will be spent mainly for stenographic service, which the city clerk could furnish for nothing, or for entertainment, these committee appropriations have been termed "nonessential" by several aldermen. Aldermanic courtesy prevented them from being taken out of the budget in the finance committee sessions.

Legislators to Get Report Today on Costs of Beer

Representative George Garry Noonan, chairman of a legislative committee making a study of the costs of making beer, said yesterday that the committee would meet this morning in the city hall and receive the report of an auditor who has examined the books of several breweries. The auditor had reported to him privately that getting information was difficult because of the lack of coöperation by the breweries and the condition of the books of some of them.

Japanese Seek Bread Line; Traders See It in South Seas

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, June 11.—Manchuria may be the life line of Japan and the paradise of the far east, but it is not to this turbid, impecunious, and underdeveloped territory that Japan is casting its eyes today for economic benefits. In fact, it is in exactly the opposite direction, far towards the south of the Asiatic continent, that Nippon looks for the new markets she will need if the enormous monetary outlays she has already expended and must continue to expend to guarantee the maintenance of her so-called life line, are to be met.

Not that the Japanese do not expect Manchuria to develop into a productive territory and a ready market for her manufactured goods, but even they admit that it will be a long time before Japan can obtain any material benefits from Manchukuo.

Rich Regions to the South.

Accordingly, Japanese in influential positions are beginning to see that the country's bread line is in the regions 3,000 miles to the south of Manchuria, an area which is already highly productive and wealthy. It is from this region, which includes French-Indo-China, Siam, the Malay peninsula, the Dutch East Indies, British Borneo, the Philippines, New Guinea, and the Japanese and British mandated islands, that Japan expects to obtain rich natural resources, and it is in these countries that Japan is making a concerted effort to open up new markets for her manufactured products.

Their hold on Manchuria, many Japanese feel, is still extremely weak and is, figuratively speaking, like placing the four fingers of a hand on that part of the globe denoting Manchuria, with the thumb loose. If Japan is to have any sort of grip on Manchuria, it is necessary, they point out, that the thumb hold on to something, and in the present case the south of Asia is the ideal spot.

Java's 40,000,000.

The area of this territory, which the Japanese now term their bread line, is more than 4,000,000 square miles, with a population of 111,000,000. Japanese observers claim that a country like Java, with a population of 40,000,000 and an annual export surplus of about $100,000,000 should be able to feed 50,000,000 more people. Why, they ask, should a good portion of this surplus not be absorbed by Japan?

The total foreign trade of the territory in question is almost $2,000,000,000 annually. The greatest investors are Great Britain, the United States, France, China and Belgium, in the order named. Japan is at present far, far down the line. Foreign investments today total more than $1,500,000,000, of which almost $1,000,000,000 is in agricultural enterprises.

So is it any wonder, the Japanese ask, that they are beginning to cast envious eyes on this far eastern market from which they have, thus far, obtained little?

Japan's first step in breaking into this rich market was in compelling France to lower the customs tariff on Japanese goods into French Indo-China. How much she has accomplished may be realized when it is stated that whereas in the past France made it well-nigh impossible for the Japanese even to consider exporting to French Indo-China, she has finally succeeded in forcing France to reduce its tariff rates to one-fourth of what they were.

Whereas formerly the import duty on Japanese bicycles, textiles, chinaware, and other principal Japanese export items was more than four times the original cost price of the products, this was reduced to a duty of 100 per cent. Even this may appear prohibitive, but the Japanese claim that at this rate they will be able to make considerable headway into a hitherto closed market.

The Indo-China episode has opened Japanese eyes to the vast possibilities in other directions, and many predict that she will succeed in wedging into fields from which she has hitherto been excluded. That she will be able to make considerable headway is plain, some hold, from the fact that her total investments in this territory at present are only $30,000,000.

Japan's Present Share.

According to last year's statistics, Japan's exports to this territory totaled $40,000,000 and her imports $41,000,000. This is but one-twenty-fourth of the total trade of this vast area. Moreover, Japan's exports constitute only one-seventeenth of the total imports of this region, and its imports only one-fortieth of the total exports of the territory.

It is admitted that the inhabitants of Japan's so-called future bread line are not wealthy as a rule, but it is pointed out that this is all the more to Japan's good. This country, it is declared, produces cheap materials and it is only in the matter of low prices that it is able to compete with other countries.

Since last year, when the yen dropped to the 20 cent level, Japanese products have swamped the markets in these regions and it is stated that even European merchants are now handling Japanese merchandise. Japanese exporters are confident that with the improvement in the quality of their products to meet the requirements of the natives, Japan's trade will increase tremendously whether the government succeeds in its present endeavors to have the protective customs tariffs cut further or not.

PAIR SOUGHT AS SLAYERS KIDNAP POLICE OFFICERS

Terrorize Farm Family After Crash.

Wellington, Tex., Junet 11.—(AP)—Two machine gunning motorists terrorized a farm family, kidnaped two officers, and escaped with an injured woman companion whom one called "sweetheart" today, after their new coupe plunged over a road embankment.

Sheriff Dick Corey and City Marshal Paul Hardy, kidnaped in the sheriff's motor car, driven to near Erick, Okla., and left wired to a tree, identified the gunmen as Clyde Barrow, Dallas desperado, and Icy Barrow, his brother.

Steve Pritchard, farmer, was covered by two submachine guns when he went to the assistance of the motorists after the crash late last night.

Daughter-in-Law Is Shot.

At the insistance of the men he bore the injured woman to his home to administer first aid, but pleaded that he be permitted to call a physician.

"We can't afford it," said one of the men.

Pritchard's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jack Pritchard, was shot in one hand when she knocked upon a door of the house. The gunmen punctured the tires of Pritchard's car with bullets.

While one of the men returned to the wrecked coupe to get a rifle, Lonzo Carter, who lives with the Pritchards, slipped away to the home of a neighbor and telephone officers.

Pair Surprise Officers.

Both the terrorists were on guard when Sheriff Corey and Marshal Hardy arrived. They surprised the officers in the darkness, bound them with their own handcuffs, and, taking the injured woman with them, made off in Corey's car.

The officers said they were tied up near Erick early today with barbed wire cut from a fence. They freed themselves 30 minutes later and notified authorities at Sayre, Okla., but the trail of the gunmen was lost on a highway leading toward Pampa, Tex.

The Barrow brothers are wanted for the slaying of two officers in a gun fight near Joplin, Mo., recently.

SHOOT LEADER OF HEIMWEHR IN AUSTRIAN TYROL

INNSBRUCK, Austria, June 11.—(AP)—An attempt to assassinate Richard Steidle, leader of the Tyrolese heimwehr, was made tonight by unidentified men in an automobile. Steidle was wounded in the forearm by one bullet.

The assailants fired at Steidle's automobile as the heimwehr chief was returning to his home here. After firing they fled.

Steidle's heimwehr organization recently has been proceeding in sharp opposition to both the Nazis and the Socialists in the Tyrol.

Bombs Miss Styrian Governor.

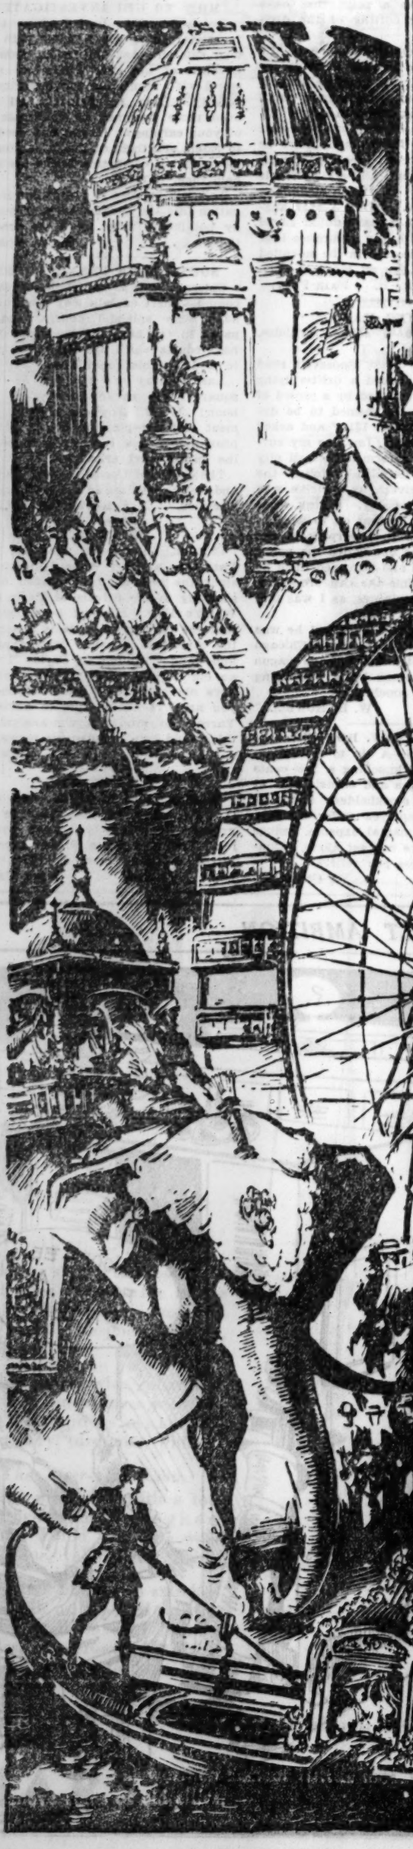
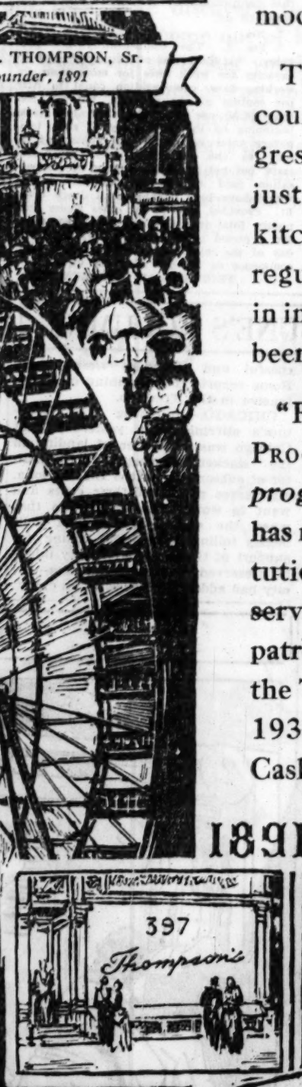
"EXPOSITION of PROGRESS"



JOHN R. THOMPSON, Sr.
Founder, 1891



A tribute to the accomplishments of "A CENTURY OF PROGRESS" . . . a review of our 42 years of service to the American Public thru the World's Fair of 1893 to the World's Fair of 1933

AMONG those to greet the incoming tide of visitors to the World's Columbian Exposition forty years ago was John R. Thompson . . . owner . . . manager . . . and principal employee of a modest little restaurant at 397 South State Street.

Thru the two score years which have followed, countless innovations have continued the progressive pace set by that budding career . . . then just passing its second milestone. The "open kitchen" . . . a pure-food creed long before federal regulation . . . speedy, individualized service . . . in innumerable ways Thompson originations have been the forerunner of modern restaurant standards.

"Progress Week" launches our EXPOSITION OF PROGRESS . . . an event symbolizing that zeal for progress which in the span of two world's fairs has made Thompson's Restaurants a national institution. In the thirty-six principal cities we now serve, 116 Thompson's Restaurants invite your patronage with special festive features. Step in the Thompson's most convenient to you. See the 1933 and 1893 World's Fair pictures . . . ask the Cashier about the World's Fair Souvenir Spoons...

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

AMERICAN MONEY FOR CANADIAN LABOR.

One argument in defense of the St. Lawrence treaty which is frequently made is that the canalization of the river will provide an immense amount of employment for the workmen of this country. This argument departs so far from the truth that it is worth while to state the facts, which are that the United States will have to pay an estimated 178 million dollars for its share of the construction costs on the international section while Canada will pay less than 40 million dollars. Our taxpayers will provide something like four-fifths of the money, but our labor will get considerably less than half of the work.

The treaty provides [article 3] "that in so far as is possible in respect to the works to be constructed, the parts thereof within Canadian territory, or an equivalent proportion of the total of the works, shall be executed by Canadian engineers and Canadian labor and with Canadian material; and in so far as is possible the remaining works shall be executed by United States engineers and United States labor with United States material. . . ." Most of the construction work on the international section is to be within Canadian territory. Therefore, most of the labor and materials used will be Canadian.

This provision of the treaty, like much of the rest of it, evidences the fact that our state department, in negotiating with Canada, was determined to obtain a political advantage for Mr. Hoover in the northwest. It was supposed that the northwest was all atwitter for the construction of the seaway and that the administration which negotiated the treaty would obtain an immense political advantage. How much the northwest really cared for the treaty was shown last November when Mr. Hoover failed to carry a single northwestern state; but meanwhile the Canadian negotiators had capitalized the eagerness of the state department to sign on the dotted line. Our negotiators had accepted a treaty which required the United States to put up the money for the hiring of Canadian labor and for the purchase of the products of Canadian factories.

The Canadians tried their best not to give the truth away, but the moment came when they could no longer contain their glee. That was the moment of the publication of the treaty with all its advantages for Canada and all its disadvantages for this country. A few quotations from the Toronto Mail and Empire of July 19, a year ago, are in point:

"No feature of the treaty is more surprising or more satisfactory than the low cost to Canada at which the undertaking is to be carried out. Because of want of information the press has carried all sorts of extravagant statements as to the heavy financial burden with which the taxpayers were to be saddled in a time of depression. As late as last Saturday a Montreal newspaper estimated that the Canadian people were to be mulcted to the tune of 570 million dollars. All such erratic predictions have been relegated to the realm of the absurd and sublimely ridiculous. The treaty provides that the cost of the deep waterways to the dominion treasury will be $38,071,000. . . ."

By way of contrast: "The cost to the United States is placed at $243,661,000, made up of $178,651,000 to be spent on the international rapids section and $65,100,000 for channel deepening and other necessary works in the upper lakes."

And again: "Most of the construction work will be done in Canada. . . . Though the United States is to provide the $54,718,000 for works situated on the Canadian side in the international rapids section, Canadian engineers, Canadian labor, and Canadian materials are to be used."

And again: "This proviso [that each country's sovereignty over the works lying within its territory 'shall be respected] is deliberately inserted to protect Canadian sovereignty over all structures lying on the Canadian side, even though these structures have been built with United States money."

That is the treaty which American senators are invited to ratify because it will provide employment for American labor. A more dishonest claim was never made. There is surely no need for haste in ratifying such an agreement in the supposed interest of the unemployed of this country. American labor will be lucky if it gets as much as a third of the wages to be paid from the American treasury if the treaty is approved.

COME TO AMERICA.

It is not advisable to take the outbreak of college students too seriously as indications of student morale or student opinion. Youth is or ought to be full of energy and emotion and has little experience to temper its ardors or its easy conclusions. Nevertheless the recent rioting of a few at the University of the City of New York, the flag incident at Amherst, and the imitation among Columbia students of the Oxford Union declaration against fighting for one's country, we think, justify the opinion that something may be lacking in the instruction and influence provided in these institutions. Perhaps it might be well for eastern youth to seek their preparation for American life out west, where, despite exceptions, there is still a robust Americanism, a wholehearted American living, and an untroubled faith in the American destiny. Western parents, at least, might better keep their boys and girls in the heritage they have won and would preserve.

RAILWAY COMPETITION AND THE WATERWAYS.

Some super-heated enthusiasts for the waterways are complaining that the railroads are trying to stifle river competition by rate reductions. This is a curious complaint, indeed, in view of the frequent assertion that one of the principal benefits of waterway construction is the assurance it gives of lower railroad rates. The man who wants waterways in order to whip the railroads into line and then complains when railroad tariffs are reduced gets no medal for consistency.

As a matter of fact, the rate reductions need not be explained in terms of waterway competition at all. The plain fact is that railroad charges are far out of line with commodity values and have been throughout the depression. Rates were increased during the war first 5 per cent, then 15, 25, and finally 40 per cent. At their maximum they were more than 211 per cent of the pre-war standard. They have since been reduced somewhat, but they are still far higher than they should be in comparison with other prices. Until rates are reduced, particularly on large and repeated movements in trainload lots, the railroads are going to be in difficulties. Meanwhile any efforts by the railroads to gain business by lowering their charges are fully justified by the lowering of commodity prices. If the waterways cannot meet the competition the fact should be frankly admitted.

While little attention need be paid the complaints of the waterway zealots, no more should be paid to the bitter cry of the railroad spokesmen who want to extend the system of regulation which has all but destroyed them to their competitors, the trucks and the waterway carriers. What was not good for the railroads will not be good for other forms of transportation. The best interests of all concerned, including the public, which seems never to be consulted, is the freeing of all forms of transportation from hampering restrictions on their freedom to get business.

THE BREWERS' BIG HORSES.

These being inquiring times, with inquisitors seeking what they wot not of to add to the tribulations of which they wot too well, it is in keeping that the Illinois legislature should not be an idle hand asleep in the fence corner undisturbed even by horse flies and dead to the ills of man. Its committees should be, and are, out turning over the stones to see what wriggles forth which undiscovered would have been injurious to the public good. Much good comes of turning over a stone here and a stone there, allowing none to be unturned, and not the least of the good is the clear legislative conscience.

One committee is investigating the production cost of beer in this state. The brewers may have forgotten what puissance doth compose the general assembly of this state. The near beer period was one which knew only the prohibition agent and the needler. It has been observed before that although nothing in the brewing business ever seemed to stunt the growth it had a tendency to be growth from the feet up and to regard the human structure complete at the collar bone. The big brewers' horses not infrequently carried headless horsemen.

Evidently now the brewers emerging from the near beer period have forgotten the legislature and they treat the committee subpœnas and process servers with contempt. The legislators have given warning that if a change of disposition is not manifest by Monday trucks will be sent out to get the brewery books.

Attorney John P. Hart of Aurora, chief counsel for the Illinois Brewers' association, appearing at a recent Chicago meeting, was taken to task for saying of the investigators, in a public statement, that they "were just trying to make a little political capital for themselves." Under rebuke he stood his ground and said that was precisely what he meant.

In the old legislative days, in the old pre-near beer days, when legislators were legislators and brewers were brewers, it would have been understood that there was one superfluous word in Mr. Hart's statement.

Editorial of the Day

ABLE TO REPUDIATE.
[New York Times.]

In the report of the majority of the banking and currency committee of the house, supporting repudiation of what Mr. Roosevelt had called the "covenant" to pay the interest on federal bonds in gold, it is stated that "the government cannot, by contract or otherwise, divest itself of its sovereign power." Nobody disputes this. The federal government, like that of Mississippi, has the stark power to refuse to live up to its obligations. If it chooses to welsh on its pledges there is no means of compelling it to live up to them. It could go even further. Why stop with the mere question of the interest on public debts? It could repudiate the debts entire. What a relief that would be to the treasury, which now has to pay out nearly a billion dollars a year in interest! More than that, congress could confiscate through taxation or eminent domain the property of every citizen of the United States. Who could prevent it? It is said that the Supreme court would hold it all to be unconstitutional and unlawful. But who could enforce the mandate of the Supreme court, provided that congress and the executive stood in the way? The United States marshals are the ordinary means of enforcing a decree of the Supreme court. But congress could abolish the whole lot of them and leave a decision of the Supreme court hanging in the air as a mere brutum fulmen.

It is said that such a radical extreme is impossible. Even the "lunatic fringe" in congress would never think of resorting to it. President Roosevelt would resolutely oppose it. But when the letting out of the waters has begun, where is it to stop? Mr. Roosevelt himself, only six months ago, was loudly affirming that it would be a "libel on the credit of the United States" to go off the gold standard. Now we have gone off it with his consent and approval. No one questions the power of congress to do that or any other wild thing if it so resolves and makes use of the effective means to impose its will. But the question of the credit of the United States remains just where Mr. Roosevelt placed it last November. And the point about the honor of the United States in repudiating the solemn obligation which it voluntarily undertook is left over to trouble and humiliate all Americans who have cherished the patriotic belief that their government would never, no matter what the inducement, violate its plighted word to its own citizens.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

COLLECTING HON. DOCS.

It's the open season now on Hon. Docs. Schools collect Hon. Docs. just as earnest persons collect stamps, butterflies, and old pewter. It's a very interesting sport, and, the open season being short, quite lively and exciting.

It's harder collecting Hon. Docs. in some respects than either butterflies or stamps. Now, in catching butterflies you can sneak up behind them and slam a net down over them and then put a couple of drops of chloroform under their noses and it's all over. The butterfly gets nice and quiet, and then all there is left to do is to take him home, run a pin through him, and stick him up on the wall under his Latin name.

But you can't do that with Hon. Docs. No sirree! If you sneaked up on one and slammed a net down over his head and tried to chloroform him and dragged him over to the college and stuck a pin through him he'd yell blue murder and fight like seventeen wildcats.

You see, in stalking a Hon. Doc. you don't slap a net over him. You slap a gown and a mortar board over him and then pin a degree on him. And you can't chloroform him like you can a butterfly to keep him from kicking or threatening to bolt for the deep woods and the uncut timber.

Hon. Doc.'s a shy sort of creature and very nervous and jumpy. Don't say anything to him about the new million dollar maintenance fund the school is raising or about needing money right away to fix the chapel roof or repairing the stadium. Those things can be taken up after you get him in the collar.

But before you get his degree pinned on him be mighty careful and go slow. A really fine specimen is well worth having, but they're getting scarcer and more timid every year, and since the depression they're so nervous—you wouldn't believe!

THE CRISIS.

An Evil Eye, the tiny night-bulb glowed
Set in the blankness of the high gray walls
That prisoned pain. A ghostly-footed nurse
Moved in a shadow down the corridor.

"Hold fast tonight what we have gained," you said,
And speaking, placed in my reluctant hands
The reins that held those plunging ebon steeds
The untamed leaders of an outlaw herd.
Your gray smile was a moonbeam in the room,
Then . . . dark closed round; grim cañons hemmed me in.

Along thin ledges, brittle with death's frost,
Those screaming stallions tore against the wind;
Across frail bridges, spider-webbed above,
Torrential rivers roaring far below,
Thundered the flailing of unmetaled hoofs,
And where the road's end jutted into air
Around some sudden bend, an icy blast
Flung back to blind my sight, thick-lathered sweat.

When the reins slackened in my tortured palms
I heard the sternly-kind command, "Hold fast!"
So, through the ghastly perils of that night
I brought those wild things, gentled and dull-eyed,
To the tame safety of corralling gates.

ETHELYN BRYANT CHAPMAN.

MAE MURRAY is getting divorced again. When in the world does that girl have time to act in the movies?

IT'S HERE ALREADY—a shortage of real whisky. It has been brought about, so Washington says, by the lifting of the ban on prescriptions. The trouble about making whisky is that it has to be aged from five to twenty years. Suppose we get bit by a rattlesnake this summer? Have we got to sit around and wait from five to twenty years for the only medicine that we are certain will cure us? Just for that the rattlesnakes needn't bite us. What's the use!

SEN. BORAH is quite insistent America should recognize Red Russia. But why must formal government action be taken? We recognize Red Russia without any trouble at all, what with his whiskers, his baggy trousers, his high boots, and his shirt buttoned in the back, to say nothing of the faint aroma of caviar and vodka. Oh, yes, we can recognize Red Russia at any time without the faintest trouble. But we don't want him dropping in to dinner or borrowing the car or signing our name to his checks at the speakeasies.

THEY'RE TAKING the nice black patina off the Federal building and some of the lofty office buildings downtown. Cleaning up, they call it, for the World's Fair visitor. But the somber, dignified black, suggesting age, and grandeur, and dignity, looks so much better than the garish, sickly white that's left when the cleaners get through. Then the buildings look like an eel after it's been skinned.

BRAVADO.

A heart is such a quiet thing!
It breaks without a sound.
'Tis noisest when we're alone
And no one else around.

But should it cry out in the night
Or call your name by day,
I'll turn the lights up very bright
And whistle very gay.

GOHEEN.

MR. FARLEY SAYS he is going to issue lovely purple A Century of Progress stamps commemorating the Fair on the 25th of this month. So he is thinking about postoffice things. Ah, if he could only get his mind off of such little things as stamps and think about big things like postmaster jobs how happy the Democrats would be. And then they could eat.

THERE IS no thorn without the rose. The hot spell last week influenced congress to say it would adjourn within a few days. R. H. L.

RELIEF FOR "ITCHERS."

To the other fellow itching seems a very trifling disorder. Standing on the side lines he is apt to condemn the scratcher and even to say he scratches because it causes a pleasurable sensation. There is some basis for the criticism. Scratching does cause an enjoyable feeling, and men have been known to luxuriate in it. But even in the best of cases indulgence can be overdone and scratching soon causes discomfort.

The sufferer knows that itching knocks at his subconscious self and causes one to scratch without being aware of the fact. It causes scratching during sleep, sometimes without awakening the sleeper and sometimes causing poor sleeping. It may result in a multitude of scratch eruptions. In nettlerash the itching may transcend one's capacity for restraint, and even calm, self-controlled men may indulge in scratching orgies.

Nothing surpasses itching in the discomfort it causes without being dangerous or unimportant from some other standpoint. Certain localized itchings are very annoying.

Physicians have made use of a multitude of remedies for giving relief. Carbolic acid is far and away the best skin sedative, but it has great limitations. If the skin is broken by scratch marks or wounds, enough carbolic acid to damage the kidneys is liable to be absorbed. Menthol and camphor have far less ability to soothe, but they are safe.

Mild massage with ice soothes the itching, but it is not always convenient and some object to the sensation of cold.

The old standby was a wash of soda solution. Since soda solution is not absorbed by the skin, and since there is no special acidity locally, and soda not being anesthetic, it is probable that any relief that followed washing with sodd was due to the heat or the cold of the solution rather than to its mineral ingredients.

For a year or more the use of calcium gluconate by injection and by mouth has been on trial.

The most recent remedy to be suggested is histamine. It is given in very small doses by hypodermic injection and is also being tried as an internal remedy. Histamine is one of the about twenty amines which combine to make proteins. These amines have been known for some time, but not a great deal was known about them. Proteins are jigsaw puzzles, each with something like twenty pieces. The original picture board can be sawed up into pieces according to sawing plans. We know a good deal about the composite picture, but not so much about the separate pieces. Probably the best known piece of the jigsaw is that called histamine. It has some relationship to the skin and also to various spasmodic disorders. Urticaria is something of a spasmodic disorder of the blood vessels of the skin, and is akin to asthma and other spasmodic disorders located elsewhere. Therefore we would expect histamine to bring on nettlerash rather than cure it.

Drs. A. C. Ernstein and B. M. Banks found that it stopped the itching of nettlerash without at first stopping the swellings. If its use were continued it appeared to stop nettlerash in all its phases. Taking the cue from their success in stopping the itching of nettlerash, they tried it as a remedy for local pruritus. They report that it also proved successful in that field.

SUN BATHING.

J. M. B. writes: Will you write something regarding the benefits of sun bathing during the summer months? What are the effects of it on the body? What are the effects when carried too far?

REPLY.

The sun tans the skin and causes it to manufacture vitamin D. This vitamin promotes normal growth, protects against rickets and spasmodic disease, stabilizes the lime and phosphorus in the body, increases the ability to withstand cold, prevents cold feet, and may build up resistance to disease. When carried too far it causes sunburn. It harms the texture of the skin and it may promote senescence.

MYXEDEMA.

M. G. writes: I never connected stomach ulcers with worry, because I have always thought I belonged to the class that did not worry. Still there may be suppressed worry sometimes of which I am scarcely conscious.

Please write something about myxedema. I never even heard the word until my physician mentioned it. What are the symptoms and what is the cure? I am not altogether sure that I want to know all this. It may be best that I do not, but I have much curiosity on the subject, since it was applied to my own case.

REPLY.

When an adult suffers from a marked deficiency in thyroid secretion myxedema results. The corresponding condition in a child is known as cretinism.

The cause is prolonged use of a diet that is poor in iodine. Among the contributing causes is prolonged mental or physical strain. The symptoms are low metabolic rate, tendency to put on flesh, a certain change in the facial expression, puffiness under the eyes, mental and physical sluggishness, tendency to fall asleep. Treatment consists in the prolonged use of thyroid preparations and a diet that is rather rich in sea foods.

ALIEN DEPORTATION.

Chicago, June 5.—[Friend of the People.]—Please inform me if a man from Mexico, not a citizen, marries an American girl who is a citizen of the United States and has not supported his wife and two children for three years, can be deported? L. J. Z.

You are advised that the failure of an alien to support his American-born wife and children may not, in itself, be regarded as sufficient to warrant deportation. As other grounds for deportation may exist, it is suggested that your correspondent call at this office for an interview.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

Chicago, June 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Four months ago while employed in a store I tripped, fell downstairs, and broke my right ankle. I was treated by the insurance company doctor and paid workmen's compensation. My limb is still badly swollen. The insurance doctor insists that I go back to work. If I go back and work one day and am unable to continue work [1] will the fact that I worked one day disqualify me so I will not receive this compensation? 2. Please advise me what to do. E. S.

1. No.

2. See 1. The compensation act provides: "If the period of temporary total incapacity for work lasts for more than six working days, compensation equal to fifty per centum of the earnings, but not less than $7.50 nor more than $15 per week, beginning on the eighth day of such temporary total incapacity and continuing as long as the temporary total incapacity lasts, but not after the amount of compensation paid equals the amounts which would have been payable as a death benefit. Provided, that in the cases where temporary total incapacity for work continues for a period more than 30 days from the day of the injury, then compensation shall commence on the day after the injury."

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 12, 1917.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The period of grace for the slackers expired at 9 o'clock last night. Men over 21 and not yet 31 who have failed to register for the selective draft to the armies that will be thrown against Germany will now feel the strong arm of the government. At the direction of Provost Marshal General Crowder federal and state authorities began rounding up the slackers immediately. Such persons taken into custody will be compelled to register. They will be subject to prosecution for evading the law, but will be released on their own recognizance after being registered.

WAR SUMMARY.—An American sailing vessel was sunk by a U-boat and the crew left to die on the high seas. The crew rowed fifty miles to land. Secretary Daniels says there is a spy in the navy department as a result of letters giving confidential information received by Senator Frelinghuysen. London reports the capture of another mile of German trenches southeast of Messines and much loot. Berlin says British attacks along the whole front were repulsed. Paris reports repulse of German surprise attacks at various points. Berlin claims they were successful and prisoners were taken. Rome reports the beginning of an offensive in the Trentino.

CHICAGO.—Following THE TRIBUNE'S stirring news yesterday that Chicago was in danger of landing in the "slacker" contingent in the matter of subscribing to the Liberty loan, all classes pulled off their coats and went to work. The result was that when the church and school bells began tolling last night—tolling for support of the loan that liberty might be preserved for the human race—the city had added $25,000,000 to its credit.

WORLD'S FAIR QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning A Century of Progress will be answered in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly.

QUESTION—I was told that Dr. Lorenz would be in Chicago to attend the World's Fair. Is this true? Will he hold a clinic, and if so, how could a person attend it?

ANSWER—No arrangements have ben made for Dr. Lorenz to visit the Fair in an official capacity. Whether he will attend the Fair as a visitor is not known. The American Medical association would probably know about any planned clinics.

QUESTION—I have a souvenir of the Columbian Exposition and a penny marked 1833. Do they have any value at this Fair?

ANSWER—The Fair is not redeeming any souvenirs or coins. Write to a dealer in coins for value and methods of disposing of them.

QUESTION—Is there a premium on the World's Fair half dollar of 1893?

ANSWER—Not at A Century of Progress Exposition.

UTILITY RATES.

Chicago, June 8.—I for one desire to protest against this continued sandbagging of one of Chicago's finest business enterprises, the Commonwealth Edison company. I have no defense to make of Sam Insull. He made the Edison company one of the greatest properties of its kind in the world, and went broke in the panic through stock market operations having no relation whatever to the equipment and operation of the Commonwealth company. It is distinctly unfair to the thousands of Edison employés and other Chicago citizens who hold stock in this essential and honestly managed corporation to make it a target for constant attack because of the ignominy now attaching to the Insulls as individuals.

The company was already bearing a terrific burden of taxation and always paying its bills. Those of us who put savings into Commonwealth Edison stock in good faith as believers in Chicago's future and with real pride in the character of its service to the public are willing to take our full stock of blows upon the chin these desperate days. We have seen our shares sell down to a level that spells almost ruin to some and heavy losses of capital to all. We have seen its dividend reduced to five per cent. We have seen James Simpson, one of our most respected business men, placed in Samuel Insull's seat; and this week we see him under political duress at Springfield agreeing to reduce already reasonable rates to a point that calls for a still further cutting of the dividend.

The Edison company was one of the few remaining big solvent Chicago institutions. Therefore it must be soaked. For any concern to show even a small operating profit just now is a crime. In the face of rising costs [now here and only just started] its revenues must be raided and its credit correspondingly crippled. Both federal and state officials are participating in this strangling process. Will Gov. Horner kindly suggest where on earth a man's dollar saved can be invested with any assurance that it will not be confiscated in the so-called public interest? Let's all move to Russia and be done with it. FAIR PLAY.

A DYING MAN.

Chicago, June 6.—I seldom criticize, but here goes:

Passing by 1440 West Roosevelt road at noon today I noticed a drifter lying in a doorway, surrounded by a crowd of curious children. He seemed to be dying, so I called "Police 1313" and asked for help to move him. Imagine my surprise when I was informed that all city squads had been detailed to follow the garbage wagon drivers, as a strike was expected during the day. Giving what little help I could, I went on to work.

The man lay in the doorway in the hot sun until some one called the police again around 2:30 and informed them he was dead. This time the call brought a wagon within five minutes, as I was told later.

He may have been a bum, but he was human, and if it took the whole Chicago police force to watch the garbage wagon drivers while a human being was dying—draw your own conclusions.

W. B. HOWELL.

ADVICE TO GOV. HORNER.

Chicago, June 8.—A tip to Gov. Horner: Never mind knocking a few cents off our monthly gas and electric bills at the expense of stockholders and employés. Most employés suffer by this. Cut down governmental expense, reduce our taxes, then we can get along. Eliminate some of these pay rollers.

A CITIZEN.

FROM A MAN IN PRISON.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 7.—In reply to J. W. Harrison's letter of June 6. His ignorance of prison conditions is highly refreshing. Does he know that the men with the most privileges are the ones who never cause trouble or abuse those privileges? What applies to a few in this instance can apply to the vast majority now incarcerated in our penal institutions. If J. W. H. were ever so unfortunate as to be confined at Lansing his idea of high class club life in prisons would change instantly. He would deprive thousands of men the privilege of witnessing a ball game because 11 men used that as an opportunity to gain their freedom. Little does he realize that men bent on gaining their freedom illegally would never need a ball game or other form of recreation to carry out their plans. Escapes in other penal institutions in wholesale numbers will bear me out on that statement. Penal servitude applied in the right form can be beneficial. It is to that end our prison uplift societies are working. Are prisons merely maintained so when the prisoner is released he is embittered toward society, or isn't it best for society in general and the prisoner himself to try and rehabilitate him? J. W. H.'s attitude seems to be when a man is down try and kick him down further.

EDDIE CANNON,
No. 31566, Missouri State Penitentiary.

HOW TO GET INVESTIGATED.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 7.—How to get investigated! Start a bank with your own capital. Ask no favors from the government, not even a charter. Get a world-wide reputation for integrity and solidity. Obey scrupulously all laws, even those designed to confiscate part of your earnings. If you buy securities to resell, sell them at the price you paid for them. If competing banks are shaky help them to solvency.

This will be sure to prompt an investigation into the conduct of your business by politicians who have no interests therein. H. W. NOREN.

SOUTH PARK TENNIS COURTS.

Chicago, June 7.—Could the south park commissioners explain why certain parks have such splendid courts, and why parks in the back of the yards district have courts which are allowed to remain in a deplorable condition?

Last Sunday the 3 courts at Cornell square were vacant nearly all afternoon! Why? Any one seeking enjoyment will not play on courts with approximately one inch of dust covering the entire court area.

The courts of Cornell, Davis, Sherman, and Gage parks are in need of immediate attention. M. F. KOSTRUBALA, D.D. S.

UNSHOCKED.

Chicago, June 7.—So the Rev. Philip Yarrow is aspiring to be Anthony Comstock the second. I have seen nothing shocking in the Streets of Paris at the World's Fair. It must be remembered that the Streets of Paris is a satire on the American tourists who expect to find naughty things in Paris. There is an old saying, "Tell me what you believe obscene and I will tell you what you are." I should like to advise Mr. Yarrow to study psycho-analysis, for this would help broaden his views.

SAMUEL.

THANK YOU.

Chicago, June 7.—O. K. and double O. K.'s for your editorial "To Congress." Long may you have your being. Your suggestion to our representatives is timely and straight to the point. JOHN CRAIG.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

UTILITY HEARING STANDS DESPITE RATE CUT OFFER

Company Officials to Meet Lindheimer Today.

An expected reduction in the price of gas and electricity to the consumer—to be made voluntarily by the utility companies—will not deter the Illinois commerce commission from proceeding with a hearing to determine whether a further reduction should be ordered, Benjamin F. Lindheimer, chairman of the commission, said yesterday.

James Simpson, head of the Commonwealth Edison company, the People's Gas Light and Coke company, and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, and officials of his companies are to hold an informal conference today with Mr. Lindheimer and other commissioners and the rate reductions are expected to be announced shortly afterward. The conference will be private, Mr. Lindheimer said. Joseph Grossman, assistant corporation counsel in charge of utility rate matters for the city, will not be present, it was stated, although Mr. Grossman said he thought he should be allowed to attend.

Intimates Cut of 3 to 4 Million.

Mr. Simpson intimated to Gov. Horner recently that the companies would be willing to cut their charges in an amount that would save the consumers $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 a year. To do so, he said, dividends would have to be reduced.

Mr. Simpson expressed his opposition to pending legislation intended to give the commerce commission more power in fixing rates. It was understood there would be some talk on that subject in today's conference, although the voluntary reduction would be forthcoming whether or not the utilities and the commission agree on the provisions of the bills pending in Springfield.

Chairman Lindheimer said he hoped to reach an agreement with the utility companies that would avoid any litigation such as followed the order of the commission in 1923 cutting telephone rates. The telephone company obtained an injunction from a federal court, restraining the enforcement of the rate reduction, and the matter is still in the courts, now on appeal to the United States Supreme court, and the old rates are still ecective.

Intended to Offset Decision.

If the present decision in the telephone case stands, the commerce commission will lose much of its power over utility rates, and, it was explained, the bills at Springfield are intended to offset that loss of power. One feature of the proposed law would make the utility set aside a fund each year for the expense of the state or a city in an investigation of the utility's value and financial condition on which rates are predicted.

The commerce commission has asked all utilities in the state to make informal statements on what they are willing to do in lowering the costs to the public, Chairman Lindheimer explained, and the Simpson statement today is to be in compliance with that request. The formal hearings will go on regardless of voluntary reductions, he added, and the commission will make its own decision on equitable rates.

Mr. Lindheimer said he expects to be in Springfield tomorrow to appear before the utilities committee of the lower house, of which Representative Frank Ryan is chairman, advocating a favorable recommendation by that committee on the bills Gov. Horner wants passed.

CLEWS SOUGHT IN SLAYING OF REALTY DEALER

Sergts. Charles Reynolds and Frank Donohue of the coroner's office yesterday were investigating the murder of George Navigato, 37 years old, 5301 Jackson boulevard, a realty dealer, who was shot to death early in the morning as he was about to enter his home. The detectives were convinced the slaying was planned by men who waited for Navigato.

Navigato was married and lived with his wife in the apartment of Mrs. Bridget Cavallo, who said she saw a car parked in front of her home about 10:30 p. m. The car contained four men and it remained there for several hours, she said. Navigato parked his automobile around the corner and was almost in front of his residence when a man on the running board of a passing automobile fired two charges from a shotgun. Navigato fell dead.

Reynolds and Donohue said Navigato had formerly been superintendent of drivers for a laundry company but recently had been doing a small real estate business. He was not involved in any union or racket troubles, they said, and no motive for the killing was learned.

Miss Lillian Anderson, Queen of the Century of Progress, Will Wear These Dilkusha Gowns—Today from 11 to 12 in the Misses' Room

IT WAS AN EXTREME PLEASURE TO DESIGN
THESE DRESSES FOR YOUR EXCLUSIVE USE
AND TRUST THEY WILL MEET WITH THE APPROVAL OF MY AMERICAN FRIENDS
Dilkusha.

Field's introduces that bright, young designer who astonished all Paris with her new ideas

And when we saw her collection we wanted to claim Dilkusha immediately as our own little discovery for America. Such casual clothes could only have come out of her passion for the English countryside where she spent her youth . . . her complete understanding of America can only be explained by her years spent on the American scene. In fact, so well does she know our ways that in these four dresses (designed for us) she chooses linen for "those smart American women who must put everything into the tub." On the Sixth Floor.

The Misses' Room.
Dilkusha stuffed the shoulders, tied three bows on the blouse . . . and marked this linen suit for town. Raspberry, black, white.

The After-Five Room.

Raspberry linen with starched white bib on top—all looking good enough to eat. Sundae shades, also brown and black. Sizes 14 to 18.

Our Washability Expert will be here all this week to show you how "anything can be washed" if you know how.

AIDS OF MORGAN IN TOUCH WITH 18 BILLION GROUP

[Copyright: 1933: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., June 11.—(AP)—Senate investigators of J. P. Morgan & Co. today disclosed evidence that members of that huge banking firm are directors of eighty-nine corporations and banks with total assets of more than 18 billion dollars.

The statistics, gathered to show the extent of the firm's influence and placed in evidence at the closing of the hearing Friday, but just made available for publication today, probably will be used by those members of the investigating committee who plan legislation to limit the concentration of power through financial channels.

700 on Preferred Lists.

The same batch of evidence contained a consolidated list of the selected clients who were sold stock by Morgan & Co. from 1927 to 1929 at bargain prices, showing a total of 700 individuals and corporations.

At the same time the committee made public a statement put into the record by Russell C. Leffingwell, a Morgan partner, in which he lauded the program of President Roosevelt to arrest deflation and to bring about a rise in commodity prices.

Leffingwell, a former assistant secretary of the treasury during the Wilson administration, in discussing tendencies of the time, said the growth of corporate enterprise was drying up private initiative and making "a nation of hired men."

Charts Disclose Hook-Ups.

Elaborate charts showing the extent of directorships held in banks and corporations by Morgan partners were submitted by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel.

Tracing the "corporate relationship of J. P. Morgan & Co." they showed that partners of the firm and its Philadelphia affiliate, Drexel & Co., serve as directors of eighty-nine corporations and banks which have 537 other directors.

These "nonpartner directors" serve on the boards of 2,305 other companies, the tables showed.

"The list of nonpartner directors discloses that 82 appear on the four 'selected lists' of J. P. Morgan & Co. and 8 have secured loans from J. P. Morgan & Co. or Drexel & Co.," it was said in the introduction to the charts.

Vast Range of Interests.

Fifteen banks and trust companies, with total assets of $3,811,411,000.

Seven miscellaneous holding companies, of which three have total assets of $83,786,475, while the others are not recorded.

Ten railroad companies, of which nine have total assets of $3,436,666,000.

Eight public utility operating companies, with total assets of $2,818,-47,000.

Thirty-eight industrial companies, of which twenty-nine have total assets of $6,037,644,000.

Six insurance companies, of which five have total assets of $337,187,000.

FIVE NATIVES OF FAR EAST MADE BISHOPS BY POPE

VATICAN CITY, June 11.—(AP)—Pope Pius bestowed extraordinary honors today on five natives of the Far East, personally consecrating them as bishops in a colorful ceremony at St. Peter's. One Annamite, one East Indian and three Chinese received the mantle.

The consecration was part of the feast of the holy trinity and constituted one of the features of the holy year program. Pius was borne in the basilica on his portable throne, carried by red-clad attendants.

The new bishops are Father G. B. Tong, Annamite appointed coadjutor with powers of succession to the apostolic vicar of Phat-Diem, in Indo-China; Father Attipetty, Indian, coadjutor with succession privileges to the archbishopric of Veraploy, in India; Father Joseph Fan, apostolic vicar of Tsing, Shansi, China; Father Matthew Ly, apostolic vicar of Yachow, China, and Father Joseph Tsoei, apostolic vicar of Yungnien, Hupei, China.

OCEAN THRILLS FOR HONEYMOON OF ROBINSONS

New York, June 11.—[Special.]—With favorable weather to start them off, William Albert Robinson, explorer and author, and his young bride, the former Miss Florence Crane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Crane of Chicago, left West New Brighton, Staten Island, this afternoon on the 32 foot Ketch Svaat on a honeymoon trip to the Galapagos islands.

It was on this tiny craft that Robinson in 1930 completed a round the world voyage described in his book "10,000 Leagues Over The Sea."

Daniel West, cousin of the explorer, is making the trip with the couple.

The first stop on what Robinson said would be a 3,000 mile trip will be Norfolk, Va. He said he expected the trip to the Galapagos islands would take two months and added that two months would be spent on the island. West, he said, would make pencil and brush sketches on the islands.

Mrs. Robinson, said she would stand a four hour on, and eight hour off watch along with her husband and West. Mrs. Robinson has sailed yachts before. Motor power will be used only in calm weather.

ELMO C. LOWE, NOTED CHURCH ARCHITECT, DIES

Elmo Cameron Lowe of Evanston, a fellow of the American Institute of Architects, died of heart disease yesterday in St. Francis' hospital, Evanston. He was 55 years old.

Mr. Lowe was nationally known as a designer of churches. Some of the churches which he created are in Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Cincinnati, Gary, Berwyn and elsewhere. He was educated at the University of Chicago and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Until 1924 he was a member of Granger, Lowe & Bollenbacher. During the war Mr. Lowe served overseas as a Y. M. C. A. secretary.

Surviving Mr. Lowe are his son, William G. Lowe, and a brother, Attorney F. M. Lowe of Highland Park. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 1460 Sherman avenue, Evanston. Burial will be private.

Hayloft, Lanterns, Five Fiddlers Make Barn Dance Great Party

Moon and Lunch Counter Serving Beer Are Added Features of Affair at Dunham Estate.

BY JUDITH CASS.

A HUGE hayloft about one hundred and twenty by sixty feet, with plenty of apertures so that it wasn't any hotter at least than outdoors, dim kerosene lantern light, marvelous music for dancing furnished by five fiddlers, an improvised lunch counter in the center where beer and sandwiches were served, and a great haymow across one end up which the agile could climb and then slide down. These were the main features that went into the making of a perfect party Saturday night out in Wayne.

Add to these a crowd of about two hundred and fifty, all bent on having a good time, and a moon which, though late in rising, was something to make one wax poetical, and you couldn't think of anything else that could have improved the barn dance held in the old barn on the Dunham estate.

In the language of the young, it was a "wow" of a party, and every one who was there voted to repeat it very soon. Those who had planned the party, Mrs. Wirth S. Dunham and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Charles West, Joy Morton II., and Perry Dryden among others, hadn't tried to make "a silk purse out of a sow's ear," so, although the hayloft was clean enough so that light piqué and seersucker frocks weren't wrecked immediately, and the uneven floor was waxed to a nice slipperiness, it still was a barn, with a barn's own peculiar perfume. As an accompaniment to the music there was the whinnying and neighing of the horses that were in the stalls of the barn underneath the loft.

What do you suppose those horses thought of the noise and commotion that lasted until after midnight? Perhaps it's just as well we couldn't understand what our equine neighbors were saying to each other.

Young People Dine At Riding Club.

Quite a number of the young people who had motored out from the city and the north shore for the party dined at the Dunham Woods Riding club and others had picnics under the trees in the lovely woods that abound in Wayne. A crowd of Geneva residents who attended the dance had a picnic supper and swimming party before at the Ralph Davises' hospitable home and it was so delightfully cool there that they found it hard to tear themselves away to go to the barn dance.

Howard Raftery's house party didn't get to the dance at all, so happy were they at the supper party given by Mr. Raftery's mother, Mrs. Edmond Raftery. This caused disappointment to more than one young lady, for one of that party, Lief Buch, is considered one of the best dancers in Chicago and he is in demand wherever there is dancing. In this party, in addition to the two young bachelors already mentioned, were the John L. Cochrans, Miss Peggy Hambleton, Walter Frazier, Shepard Vogelgesang, and the Jack Finlays. The last named couple entertained Mr. Raftery's house party at luncheon yesterday in the charming big old house they have taken in Geneva and which they are busy renovating.

Many Types of Clothes Worn.

Overalls, pajamas, sports clothes, and even chiffon dinner gowns were worn by those who were at the barn dance, but we'll wager those who wore the chiffons won't don them again for a similar party. Some of those who enjoyed the party were Mrs. Dunham's two daughters, Miss Jane Dunham and Mrs. John N. Dole, Mr. Dole, Mr. West, Mrs. Morton and the elder of her two daughters, Betty; Virginia Richards, and Henry Cooke. The last three young people keep their riding horses in the barn and in between dances they slipped downstairs to see their pets.

Every one else was going downstairs in between dances to smoke, for, of course, there couldn't be any smoking in the loft. Others that were there were Miss Nancy Traylor, Miss Helen Marie Castle, Miss Julia Kramer, Miss Virginia Waller, Miss Alice May Dickinson, Miss Betty Smith, Miss Jacqueline Duell and her fiancé, William Joyce Jr.; Miss Mary Dawes and her fiancé, George Schulz; Miss Marion Gordon, the Misses Jane and Mildred Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mayo, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Oates Jr., and the Misses Christobel and Eleanor Wheeler, all of whom had driven out from the city or the north shore for the occasion.

Others were Mrs. Dryden, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan D. McClure, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Carpenter, Mrs. Roemer Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome S. Brewer, Mr. and Mrs. George Michael, the Arthur Meyers, the Harry Cookes and Miss Cynthia Cooke, the Charles P. Rockwoods, the Stewart Watsons, the Edward and David McDougals, Mr. and Mrs. J. McWilliams Stone, Dr. and Mrs. Raymond G. Scott, and George Renwick, all of Geneva; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Degenhardt of St. Charles, and the George Moseleys and their eldest son, Spencer; the Nicholas Remisoffs, the George Woodruffs, the Charles R. Lindsays Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III., all of Wayne.

Catharine Carton To Wed Wednesday.

When Miss Catharine Carton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Carton, weds Paul Plummer Swett Jr. of Hartford, Conn., at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon she will be preceded down the aisle of the Lake Forest Presbyterian church by a maid of honor and four bridesmaids. The ceremony is to be one of the loveliest and most important of this June month of brides.

Miss Eugenie Whyte Carton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence R. Carton of Baltimore and a first cousin of the bride, is to attend her as maid of honor. Two of Miss Carton's most intimate friends in the east, Miss Jane Crary and Miss Jeanne Stanley of Hartford, Conn., are coming to serve as bridesmaids with Miss Margaret McLennan and Miss Elizabeth Byron Smith of Lake Forest.

Young Mr. Swett has chosen his father, Dr. Paul Plummer Swett, for his best man. Josiah Swett will usher for his brother and so well Laurence Carton, brother of the bride.

The other ushers are coming today and tomorrow from all parts of the country. There will be Noyes Crary of Hartford, Conn., John Grandin Jr. of Boston, Eustace Dearborn of Sandwich, Mass., John D. Appel III. of Scarsdale, N. Y., Alfred Bell Jr. of San Francisco, Dudley Brown of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and Herbert Holbrook of Milwaukee.

After Dr. George Roberts, pastor of the Lake Forest Presbyterian church, has read the service, there is to be a reception for the wedding guests at the Cartons' Laurel avenue home in Lake Forest. It was last Thanksgiving that Miss Carton's engagement to Mr. Swett was announced by her parents.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., June 11.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt has as his week-end guests Mr. and Mrs. Baker, son-in-law and daughter of Col. Louis McH. Howe, secretary to the President.

The President attended the 11 o'clock service today in St. Thomas' church, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, and Mr. and Mrs. Baker. Mrs. Roosevelt is spending the week-end with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Paris, in their country home at South Orange, N. J. They are also her godparents and it was in their New York home that the President and Mrs. Roosevelt were married.

Mrs. Van Nuys, wife of the senator from Indiana, left yesterday for their home in Indianapolis, where the senator will join her as soon as the session adjourns.

Mrs. William Fitch Kelley has returned to Washington from Geneva, Ill., where she has been for some time with her son, McClure Kelley, and his family.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kroehl and their daughter, Gwendolyn, of Evanston are at the Shoreham for some days.

Col. Oskar M. Hansen of Chicago is at the Carlton for a short time.

Eastern Sportsmen to Be at Arlington.

The list of boxholders for the reopening of the Arlington Park race track on June 26 contains the names of many prominent eastern sportsmen as well as those of Chicago.

Capt. Marshall Field heads the list of boxholders for the opening. Then there are John Hay Whitney whose name is almost synonymous with Arlington, Austin Niblack, Edward N. Hurley, Lawrence Stern, Laurance H. Armour, John Hertz, J. Clark Dean, George E. Van Hagen, Warren Wright, Albert D. Lasker, Weymouth Kirkland, Edward d'Ancona, Silas H. Strawn, Leeds Mitchell, Robert J. Thorne, Benjamin H. Marshall, Charles H. Schweppe, Knowlton L. Ames Jr., George A. Cooke, Mrs. James Simpson Jr., Otto W. Lehmann, Thomas E. Wilson, Charles H. Swift, Harold Swift, and John Irwin.

Cornelia Fairbanks of West Engaged.

There was mild excitement around this society desk when a dispatch announced the engagement of Miss Cornelia Fairbanks, granddaughter of Charles Warren Fairbanks. A quick telephone call, however, assured us that it was not "our" Cornelia, but rather her cousin, Miss Cornelia Scott Fairbanks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cole Fairbanks of Pasadena.

There are many Chicagoans who will be interested in the announcement of this Miss Fairbanks' engagement to David L. Stone Jr., son of Brig. Gen. David Stone of Washington, however, for she visited "our" Miss Cornelia Fairbanks, daughter of the Warren C. Fairbanks, three years ago and was a popular guest at many parties. The wedding is to take place some time in August.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Fairbanks are now in Indianapolis and will be there most of the summer. Miss Cornelia was up here for a few days last week but returned to Indiana yesterday.

Tea Today for Professor Yashiro.

One of the most interesting gatherings in town today will be the tea the New Orient Society of America is giving for Prof. Yukio Yashiro of Tokio at the Art Institute. Prof. Yashiro, the director of the Art Research Institute in Tokio as well as one of the greatest authorities on the art of Botticelli, is returning from Cambridge where he has been lecturing at Harvard the last six months.

Today he is to lecture at 2 o'clock on Japanese scroll painting in Fullerton hall. This will be followed by the tea and a special exhibit open to members of the New Orient society in the Oriental galleries.

Hostesses for the tea will include Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Edward Warren Everett, Mrs. Yoshio Muto, wife of the Japanese consul in Chicago; Mrs. Daniel H. Burnham, Mrs. Charles H. Chandler, president of the American-Japanese society, and Mrs. George F. Pond.

Luncheon at Art Institute.

At noon tomorrow in the Art Institute restaurant Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson is to be hostess at another of A Century of Progress luncheons for distinguished visitors to the World's Fair art exhibit in the institute.

Tony Sarg is to be one of the guests and Mrs. Rosecrans Baldwin will assist Mrs. Ryerson as hostess. For her table covering tomorrow Mrs. Ryerson

How You Get Into a Barn Dance

Warm Weather Ideal Time for That Reducing

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"On the contrary, Marie," in answer to your query, "the warm weather is a grand time to set about remodeling that figure of yours. It is the easiest time in the world to get the weight down. You haven't the hunger that attacks you ordinarily in cold weather. The daylight saving gives you time on your hands, evenings, now for some good exercise.

Even the indoor exercises that I've been recommending to you recently can be done in grand style now that the warm weather is here. For that loggy feeling you and others complain of, "Marie," get busy on stretching work daily. You do not have to do a great long stretch of these every time. But do two or three or four for ten minutes, morning and night, and you'll recover the urge to get the weight down.

My experience with women on this weight reducing proposition is that the average one of us needs a blow to get us started. The blow may be a mean and meaningful look from a friendly enemy. It may be a cutting remark from the mate, or a veiled hint, according to the tact of the better half. Or it may be for us women a shopping expedition when we discover the only human soul we've been fooling is that shapeless mess confronting us in the mirror.

What happens when we begin putting it on is that the system becomes clogged with a lot of waste and tissue. This is what gives the loggy feeling, the desire to postpone things until tomorrow.

Diet will not restore that feeling of energy necessary to do over the silhouette one-half so well as exercise. One week of exercise, done religiously every a. m., followed by a shower and rub, will set you up marvelously. And today we have become most sensible on this exercise business. No more of those back breaking, joint straining muscle mechanics that formerly made the very thought of exercise a bugbear.

Gershwin in City to Play His Rhapsody

BY EDWARD MOORE.

George Gershwin arrived in Chicago yesterday for his assignment to play his own Concerto in F and Rhapsody in Blue with the Chicago Symphony orchestra at the Auditorium Wednesday night, and full of the belief that a summer series of orchestral music is the best thing that could happen to any city.

"New York, Boston, and Philadelphia have them as a regular thing," he said, "so why not Chicago? I am very glad to see that there is a series here this summer, and I sincerely hope that they will continue regularly. Chicago ought to have a permanent summer home for them, something like the stadium in New York.

"But the concerts ought to have more publicity than they are getting. The whole city ought to be told about them, both because of their cultural value and because every one should know about their gayety. I am not speaking for myself, because I have never played before in Chicago and am not well known here, but for the sake of the concerts themselves."

Mr. Gershwin seemed to forget at this point that his Rhapsody in Blue has made a considerable reputation in Chicago, though he has not been here to play it.

"I have not been doing much during the last year," he replied to a question. "Most of my time I have been studying. You know, I never studied much before. But I am at work in a sequel to "Of Thee I Sing," using the same characters and continuing the story after they leave the White House. I do not know how popular it will be, but it is an interesting experiment. Only the first act is finished.

"And some day I want to make an opera out of 'Porgy.' I have been thinking about it for some time. It has a plot just as vital as the plot of 'Pagliacci,' and it will lend itself to a highly melodic treatment. I want to use a lot of melody with modern harmonization."

The week of music at A Century of Progress started at high speed last night when twenty-five high school bands joined their forces in a massed concert at Soldiers' field. For the three days previous these bands had been among the entrants in the national contest in Evanston, and the concert was something of a summary of what had been taking place during that time.

As during the public demonstration in Evanston on Saturday, some of the most noted band leaders of the country directed the program. There was a special thrill when Arthur Pryor conducted all the class A bands in Wagner's "Rienzi" overture, which had been their contest number, and again when he took all the bands of all classes in Sousa's march "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

This was not the only high spot of the contest. Another came when Miss Dot Slaimers of Boston gave a flashing demonstration of what a competent drum major can do with the mace, the symbol of the profession. She had been the second place winner in the drum majors' contest. A short time before the Triadelphia band of Wheeling, W. Va., illustrated why it had been the winner in marching demonstrations. Among conductors in various massed music were Capt. Charles O'Neill of Quebec, Dr. Joseph E. Maddy of the University of Michigan, Lieut. Charles Benter of Washington, Oscar W. Anderson and Harold Bachman of Chicago, A. P. Enna of West DePere, Wis., William Revelli of Hobart, Ind., Glenn Cliffe Bainum of Northwestern university, and A. R. McAllister of Joliet.

Rose Geranium Scent Captured in Toilet Water

BY RHEA SEEGER.

FOUND . . . a whiff out of your childhood memories of your grandmother—that most congenial person who always returned from her garden with a sprig or leaf of rose geranium twirling between her fingers. Some very clever genius has captured that scent in toilet water . . . it is as fresh, spicy, clean, and unbelievably fragrant as the real stuff picked in a garden. You can buy it by the ounce or a large bottle that lasts for weeks.

This new rose geranium toilet water clings to your 'kerchief, the palms of your hands, and to the lining of your handbag, even longer than perfume. It is unquestionably the most refreshing scent that any fastidious shopper has discovered in years. If you would have something different, something tantalizingly distinctive and something more refreshing than an icy shower, do try a bottle of this new fragrance.

Some one else has been busy perfecting a bar of soap to take under a shower . . . a long, narrow oval cake that can be clutched securely in the slippery fist of the most active bathroom baritone or soprano. You can choose between two flavors, a mixed garden fragrance, and one called June roses, depending upon your preference for sissy or not so sissy perfumes. The best things about this shower soap are the size and shape.

Disgruntled soap retrievers ought to be more than satisfied with the compact hunk of this beige colored soap and the efficient shape that assures good control even though everything else, including the towels, have vanished beyond reach.

Charge Opera Managers with Sunday Performance

New York, June 11.—(AP)—Three officials of the Chicago Opera company, which is presenting grand opera at the old Hippodrome theater for 25, 35 and 50 cents admission, were charged tonight with giving a Sunday performance. They are Cecil Mayberry, 40, manager and director; Orlando Crawford, 22, personnel director, and Ray Gallo, 34, manager for Alfredo Salmaggi, conductor of the company. At last Sunday's performance the officials were warned not to play again this Sunday. They explained, however, that tonight's performance was a benefit.

Good Morning!

The Alps are a long way off, and the heat wave's lapping at the door, but what the hallelujah do we film fans care! For movie theaters are heavenly cool, refreshingly near, and blessedly cheap—I mean the prices. SO—let's all be comfortable in between treks to A Century of Progress, on days when the weather gets beyond the weather man's control.

The Chicago's mighty entertaining picture is the adaptation of Rachel Crother's play presented here by the Theater Guild a short time ago. The screen version is clever, amusing, smartly acted, intelligently directed, and beautifully staged.

Miss Crother's story—a "problem" one, using the old "triangle" plot striking furbished—is worked out to a light, artistic, human conclusion. The beauteous and brilliant young authoress who had thought that a frank, heart to heart talk between a man's wife and the "other woman," who, presumably, is really the right one for the handsome publisher, would result in complete understanding—and the wife's graceful relinquishment of her spouse gets a surprising new perspective of human equations.

"When Ladies Meet" is an excellent title. Because the two women who meet ARE gentlewomen. Lovely situation, really!

Myrna Loy as the authoress and Ann Harding as the wife give delightful performances. Miss Loy will surprise you, I think. You're accustomed to her as a somewhat conscienceless siren. This trip she plays an entirely different sort of character. Frank Morgan as the devastating male is, as usual, rôle perfect. Alice Brady induces laughter as a jittery, good hearted widow who's forever saying the wrong thing. With her lavishly exaggerated accent and mannerisms she seems, at times, a caricature of Ruth Chatterton.

BUT—Robert Montgomery's the one you'll love. Never has he been in finer fettle. He's funny, he's lovable, he's shrewd—and, MY, 'ow 'and-some! He's the lad who loves the maid who THINKS she loves another. And he's the man who WINS the maid when—well, I think I'd RUTHER let the picture tell you about that.

See you tomorrow!

SWELL GARRICK

BY ROY VICKERS

INSTALLMENT I.

A PERFECT TAILOR'S DUMMY.

London—close upon midnight. Bunting and a red carpet at the entrance to the opera house indicated that royalty had been present. Now the last score or so of fashionable hangers on, waiting for their cars, instinctively drew aside as a young man of striking appearance strolled negligently through them.

They nudged each other and whispered, and openly stared at him as they stare at a theatrical celebrity. And he took it all with much the same genial unconcern.

He passed on and spoke to the chauffeur of a limousine.

"I'm alone tonight, Richards. I think I'll walk home. I shan't want you again."

Lyle Garrick was a fraction over six feet high, but he looked shorter because of his perfect proportions. To begin at the top of him, he had a cluster of very short, very crisp golden curls that no amount of brushing would press out. Regular classical features very finely chiseled. Long, golden eyelashes over wide-set blue eyes and a skin like the traditional dairy maid's. When, as very frequently happened, Garrick smiled, his cheeks dimpled and his eyes softened, and if you saw only his face at such a moment you would say that he looked hopelessly girlish. But then, if you knew anything of physiology, you would see that that marvelously moulded body had not been created by tailoring skill but by hard athletic training.

There had been fools who had looked at the dimple and the long eyelashes and made a mistake about Swell Garrick. . . . And there were fools to come.

Garrick strolled away; his thoughts, far from his surroundings, hovered round the person of a young woman whom he had only seen once six months ago. They were melancholy thoughts because he had lost all trace of her, and he had begun to believe that she did not want him to find her.

His way lay through a villainous alley in the neighborhood of Seven Dials. Wandering alone at midnight—the world's perfect tailor's dummy, the fancy fop, Swell Garrick—it was small wonder that a handful of London's jackals thought they had tumbled on easy prey.

He had gone a dozen paces down the alley when a soft footed hooligan behind him flashed a torch that was a signal to his three companions in a darkened doorway half way down the alley, and the flash meant that there were no police about.

An untrained man steps back and holds his arm to ward off a blow. A trained man steps forward. Garrick sprang forward and the gold head of the ebony stick flipped into the eye of the foremost bully.

The stick did no more than startle the bully and spoil his timing. It was Garrick's left on the solar plexus that sent him, a groaning heap, to the flags.

"Come along, you two! Use your boots if you want to . . . that's right!"

The second hooligan had tried to kick, which left him only one foot to stand on when Garrick got home on the point of his jaw. It was about the time when the kick should have landed that he was lying across his friend.

"O, you've got a knife, have you! Better drop it!"

There came a yell of pain as the stick struck the wrist at the angle and with the force required to produce temporary and painful paralysis.

"I'm so sorry," drawled Garrick. "But I thought you did not hear me when I told you to drop that knife. Good evening!"

Garrick walked on and in a minute had utterly forgotten the incident.

On the steps of his house in Marron street, Piccadilly, a young man was waiting for him.

"Hullo, Allstair!"

"If you aren't in a hurry to go to bed, Lyle, can I come in for five minutes?"

There was a slight strain in the voice and Garrick guessed that his friend was in trouble.

Young Allstair was a subaltern in the Guards, generally bubbling with the joy of living, but tonight he looked down in the mouth.

"The colonel's got an idea that all subs ought to be crack revolver shots," he remarked. "I wish you'd give me the hang of the thing."

Garrick suspected that this was not the sole cause of the other's depression, but he answered cheerfully:

"I don't know that I can give you much in the way of theory."

"O, rot! You've got pretty nearly every pot there is for revolver practice."

"That's merely a matter of eye!" said Garrick. 'I suppose I can put 'em there when I'm feeling fit. You can look through my little arsenal if you like."

In a library, which was mainly devoted to books on sports, Garrick opened a cabinet in which were a large number of pistols. Allstair picked them up and handled them with apparent interest.

"Lord, I feel washed out!" exclaimed Allstair. "Give me a drink, there's a good boy, and I'll buzz off!"

Garrick went for the whisky. When he came back into the room he had the distinct impression that something unusual had happened, but was not quite sure what.

It was not until Allstair had finished his whisky and was going that Garrick suddenly realized what it was.

"Well?"

"What have you got in your right hand pocket?"

"Nothing. I must rush off——"

"You've got one of my automatics in your pocket."

Allstair gasped as if he had been struck.

"Quite right, Lyle! I——" He laid the automatic on the table, the one it was loaded. "O, let me go, for God's sake!"

Garrick slipped between him and the door.

"Don't fly off in a huff! You don't imagine I am accusing you of stealing y property."

"I'm not in a huff. Let me go, Lyle!"

"I thought you looked a bit dickey when I saw you. Why did you want at automatic, Allstair? It's the one I told you was loaded."

"I know." Allstair struggled for a moment, then collapsed. "I can't t any rounds for my service revolver. And I've got to get one and use it mned quickly. Let me go, Lyle!"

The steel muscles ever so gently deposited the other in an armchair.

"What's it all about, old man?"

Allstair buried his face in his hands.

"A dud check. It will be presented in three days."

"Well, you ass! How much is it? I can probably manage it."

"No, thank you, Lyle! The only thing I'll borrow from my friends is a revolver. I've been the most ghastly fool. Cards. But the play wasn't straight. I sort of knew it at the time, only I was a bit drunk, and one thing and another——"

Under Garrick's questioning the story came tumbling out.

"I ran across a fellow called Maitland—used to be in the service. I went round to his place. There were two other fellows there and a girl. We played manqué. I won at first. Then they won. There's only one way you can cheat at manqué. And that's by palming in extra cards. Of course they broke a pack at every hand, but I believe they wangled duplicates. I had guessed as much and I tried to get at the cards to make sure, but somehow it didn't come off. I couldn't prove anything, and so I gave a check. It'll be dishonored and I shall be cashiered, and there you are."

"Rot! We're going to do something."

Some Unknown Woman

INSTALLMENT XXXVII.

A QUESTION OF A GIRL.

"Chavel told you he saw Jane shoot her husband," said Fiske.

Jerry was breathing fast now, her face blanched beneath the rouge.

"Yes. . . . He did. And it's true."

"He was in that house; then——"

"I told him to go! I knew about Philip's marriage. He told me himself one evening when he'd been drinking. He didn't remember he'd told me. But it was my idea for José to go there that night. Philip didn't want any one to know he was married. He was getting hard up and he wanted his aunt's money. I told José to threaten him——"

"Why?"

"Because Philip was a beast!" she cried. "Just the very night before I met him at a speakeasy. And he tried to 'warn' me against José. He said he could get José deported."

"Why? For what?"

"For—lies!" she said. Horrible lies he was going to tell about José. Lies! José hadn't done those things——"

"What things?"

"Do you think I'd tell you?"

"You needn't," said Fiske, his voice grown gentle again.

"He went there—just to make Philip stop—telling those lies. . . . And he saw Jane shoot——"

"He was in the house when they came in?"

"Yes. And he saw Jane take a revolver out of her bag."

"Jerry," said her brother, "don't say any more. It's—finished."

Now her fear had risen to panic.

"It's not finished! Jane's the one——"

"Fiske," said Baron, "isn't this—enough? You can see——"

"I'm sorry," said Fiske, "but she'll have to hear the rest. It's due to Jane——"

"I don't much care about what's due to me," said Jane.

But nothing was to stop Fiske now.

"Dinah," he said, "you remember that Chavel and I had a little row outside your door?"

"Yes," Dinah answered almost inaudibly.

"Chavel had a gun on him then. I saw it when I knocked him down. And I took it."

"What of it?" asked Jerry. "If Jane could have one couldn't he——?"

Fighting with the last ounce of her courage, that little panther.

"I've still got it," said Fiske. "And I'd stake anything I've got—or ever will get—that the police can prove it was a bullet from that gun that killed Divine."

"No!" cried Jerry. "You——"

Her brother caught her as she swayed, carried her into the next room and laid her on the bed.

"Poor little devil," he said.

He and Fiske stood looking down at the unconscious girl.

"The trouble is," said Baron, "that the thing's—not finished. It's only beginning. I can see your point of view, of course. You feel you've got to take your evidence to the police. . . ."

"Yes," said Fiske. "I've got to do that. Some one—I don't know who—has started this rumor of Divine's marriage. It's got to be cleared up. No matter how hard the publicity is for Jane. And the police have got to get that gun."

"Then that means that the whole thing's going to be dragged out. I suppose you're right—in a way—but it's. . . . When you think what it's going to mean for Dinah and Jane. And for Jerry. . . ."

Fiske shook his head.

"I don't think there's much to worry about," he said. "Chavel saw me take his automatic. He won't come back. He's got a good head start of the police—and I guess he knows how to look after himself. I can get witnesses to prove that he'd been annoying Dinah, and that I interfered. Your sister needn't be brought into it. And no one needs to know anything about Jane and Dinah having been in Divine's house that evening. I'm hoping we can keep the whole thing pretty quiet."

"Theoretically you're right," said Baron. "I mean—it's a citizen's duty, and so on, to turn that gun over to the police. But if you—didn't, there'd be nothing to connect any one of the three girls with the case——"

"And nothing to prevent Chavel from coming back and making more trouble. You see, there can't very well be a trial until he's caught. And I don't think he ever will be."

"You're right, of course," said Baron again. "It's justice, and so on. But the police probably will get Chavel—and when they do, he'll talk."

"Well," said Fiske with a sigh, "then I'll be out of luck. Because I gave Chavel every cent I've got so that he could get away—quick—and far."

A shadowy smile crossed Baron's face.

"New England conscience," he observed.

"Well," said Fiske, flushing a little. "After all. . . . When it's a question of a girl you—you're interested in——"

"O, quite!" said Baron, and held out his hand.

Fox Officials Seek Return of Helen Mack

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 11.—[Special.]—The Fox studio, which two years ago let Helen Mack go after using her in casual parts in two unimportant program pictures, today is angling to get her services, at considerable expense. But Radio studio, which gave the former Rock Island, Ill., girl a contract when Fox let her go, finds Miss Mack too valuable to loan out. She's already worked in "Sweepings," "Jamboree," "Melody Cruise," is currently in "Fogbound" and has been cast for "Little Women" and will get the rôle at first intended for Constance Bennett in "Aggie Appleby, Maker of Men."

Radio is going to make a full fledged star out of Zasu Pitts. Coming after more than ten years in films, Zasu refuses to get over excited about it. She's always been one of the most popular actresses with the public and the most steadily working of all feminine players. Miss Pitts has a second contract with still another studio — Universal—to co-star with Slim Summerville in three feature length productions.

Chick Chandler whom RKO-Radio has featured in a succession of fast stepping wisecracking comedy parts took his day off last Friday and drove the long fatiguing drive up the mountains to Mount Wilson observatory and for what reason, do you imagine? To listen to a lecture on astronomy.

Madge Bellamy, who was one of the big stars in films at the advent of sound pictures, but who has not appeared often in the last few years, is playing lead to Buck Jones in the cowboy story, "Gordon of Ghost City," at Universal. Bill Desmond and Francis Ford of the old timers' contingent are in the cast.

For the first time since she's been in Hollywood Sylvia Sidney is to be called on to sing in a film. She and Maurice Chevalier together will sing "It's Oh, It's Ah, It's Wonderful" in a new type Chevalier story, "The Way to Love."

From a general outline of the story it is reminiscent in theme of "Seventh Heaven." Chevalier finds Miss Sidney as the knife thrower's girl in a carnival and strives for weeks to bring a smile to her sade face. He finally makes the waif smile and the couple find a homeless dog which shares with them an idealized hovel in the Paris roof tops. Gene Fowler and Ben Glazer wrote the story.

Boys' Clubs to Sponsor Revue of Radio Stars

The Chicago Boys' clubs yesterday announced plans for a radio revue, in which stars of the two broadcasting chains and all of the principal Chicago radio stations will appear on June 26 in the Auditorium theater.

Proceeds of the entertainment will go to the clubs, which in addition to four city clubhouses and summer camp at Winona Lake, Ind., are this year attempting to provide equipment for Chicago public school playgrounds. The board of education, because of its financial difficulties, has been unable to provide athletic equipment or supervision for the playgrounds during the summer and the clubs have undertaken the task in an attempt to combat juvenile delinquency by providing play facilities in the crowded sections of the city.

Members of society have taken an active interest in the revue, and the majority of the boxes in the famous horseshoe of opera days have been sold. Members of the Junior league will sell flowers and candy. The Junior City club and a number of other civic organizations are aiding in ticket sales. Tickets are on sale at the Auditorium, Lyon & Healy's, Marshall Field & Co., and Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co.

Fish Block.

BY NANCY CABOT.

You mightn't believe that diamonds and triangles could be so arranged as to simulate fishes. But here is such a pattern, demonstrating a great deal of imagination and originality. This "Fish Block," like so many of the marine quilt designs, comes from the little fishing villages and seacoast towns of Maine where the livelihood of the inhabitants comes from the sea.

For a quilt pattern of this design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Rabbi Freehof Tells U. of I. Class Not to Chase Happiness

Urbana, Ill., June 11.—[Special.]—"The value of education is in its resourcefulness," declared Rabbi Solomon B. Freehof of the Kehilath Anshe Mayriv temple, Chicago, this afternoon as he delivered the baccalaureate address to approximately 1,900 seniors at the University of Illinois. "The educated man will not rest his security upon a few things and will not base allegiance to life upon a few interests. He will not let his sense of significance depend upon only one possible achievement," Dr. Freehof told his audience.

"He who expands the limits of his mind, who extends the circle of his interests, who strengthens the possibility of achievement in varied fields may not always be happy, but he will conquer most of the miseries of life and will attain a supreme blessing, a quiet, joyous mature senerity.

"The surest way to be miserable is to expect always to be happy. To count on unbroken joy is the most tragic miscalculation of which the erring human mind is capable. Life's books balance only when we add the deficit to the other side of the ledger. The rainbow chasers will get plenty of exercise, but will stumble ultimately into the swamp of despair."

Barn Dance at Dunham Is Great Success

Huge Hayloft, 5 Fiddlers Are Features.

has chosen green linen. The centerpiece of flowers will be made of blue larkspur.

At her second luncheon this week on Wednesday noon, Mrs. Ryerson is to have as her guests the twenty-five members of the Museum Directors' association with Dr. Robert Harshe, the director of the Art institute, as president.

Margaret Grover Tagmose, soprano, is to give a recital at 8:30 o'clock this evening at the Three Arts club, 1300 North Dearborn parkway, with the assistance of Margie Shea Lehman and Marian Carlson, dancers. Allen Coe is to be the accompanist.

Interested in the recital, part of the proceeds of which are to go to the United Charities, are Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hampden Winston, Dr. and Mrs. Otho Fisher Ball, Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph T. Winston.

After the recital Mrs. Tagmose is receiving a few of her friends at her mother's apartment in the Seneca hotel. In August she is to sing at A Century of Progress.

Dinner Dance for Italian Flyers.

The Saddle and Cycle club has been chosen for the dinner dance to be held in celebration of the arrival in Chicago of Italy's minister of aviation, Gen. Italo Balbo, and his flyers. Invitations for the party [the date of which awaits the arrival of the air squadron] went into the mail Saturday, and just to be sure that nothing will conflict, all of the guests have marked at least three or four days the end of this week with red pencils.

Mrs. Walter P. Paepcke is receiving the acceptances for Mrs. Harold Strotz, who is chairman of the dinner dance committee.

Prince Potenziani and the Italian Consul General Giuseppe Castruccio and Mrs. Castruccio, are to be the honorary hosts and hostess. The other hostesses will be Mrs. Laurance H. Armour, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. Philip B. Maher, Mrs. Neil Cowham, Mrs. Charles F. Glore, Mrs. John Wentworth, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, Mrs. J. Russell Forgan, Mrs. Paul Butler, Mrs. Kenneth Curtis, Mrs. Russell P. Kelley, and Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr., who with Mr. Faurot moved out to their Riverside home Saturday.

Miss Grace Dewes Leaves for East.

Miss Grace Dewes and her former classmate, Miss Cordelia Crane of Wilmington, Del., who has been visiting Miss Dewes and her mother, Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes, went east Saturday. Miss Dewes is returning to Bryn Mawr to receive her diploma—she really was graduated last February as she lost a half-year of college when she stayed home to make her debut a few years ago—and will remain east to visit friends for a few weeks. Her younger sister, Elizabeth, will be home the end of the month from Dobbs Ferry, where she has another year of school before attending Bryn Mawr as her mother and sister did.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Marshall of Hubbard Woods are going east for the graduation of their daughter, Janet, from Bryn Mawr college on June 13. Miss Marshall has been news editor for the last two years of the Bryn Mawr News, president of varsity dramatics during her senior year, and is graduating magna cum laude.

Miss Frances Wood, daughter of John C. Wood of Hinsdale, will be among those graduating from the Chevy Chase Junior college at Washington, D. C., Monday.

Mrs. James O. Hinkley gave a dinner for Miss Maroussa Russell and Mr. George Voevodsky Saturday evening at her home in Lake Forest. Mr. and Mrs. Hinkley are going to be in Lake Forest this summer. Mrs. Hinkley expects her niece, Mrs. William B. Schrauff of Long Island, and her husband and little son, for a visit in July, as well as her nephew, Cleaveland Putnam and his wife, who will be driving east from Tucson.

Since Mrs. Marion Brown Elliott is still ill in New York and will be there for another month under the doctor's care, and Paul Wilder Jr. is just recovering from measles, the wedding of Mrs. Elliott to Mr. Wilder Sr. has been postponed until July or August. Mr. Wilder and his son are leaving the end of this week for California, where the marriage is to take place in Mrs. Elliott's home.

Mrs. Eliot P. Goss is here from her home at Waterbury, Conn., visiting her parents, the John Sheppard Stones, in their Astor street apartment. While here she is taking part in the Junior league play, "The Captivity of Eleanor Lytle," which the league is presenting three times a day three days a week in the Children's theater on the Enchanted island. Mr. Goss may drive west in a week or so to motor his attractive wife home.

Frosted Drinks Will Quench Summer Thirst

BY MARY MEADE.

We have an unquenchable thirst this summer — a thirst for frosted somethings that tinkle in glasses. Luckily it has been a boon in helping us to decide what to offer the acquaintances who drop in. You see, there are the Acquaintances, the Special Friends and the very Extra Specials who all seem to be dropping into the city for the World's Fair. The Specials and Extra Specials we invite to dinner, but the Acquaintances may drop in just any time for an hour's chat.

With a shelf and the refrigerator stocked with assorted fruit juices and dainty little packaged cookies, it is no trouble to prepare simple but novel refreshments for these hot days, then the chatting will be twice as enjoyable.

Here is a beverage which may be prepared and bottled now, and you will pat yourself on the back a dozen times for having done it.

PINEAPPLE GINGER FLIP.

Parings from a fresh pineapple.
¾ cup sugar.
1 teaspoon ground ginger.

When using a fresh pineapple, wash it thoroughly, then remove the skin as usual. Pour the boiling water over the skin, add the sugar and ginger, and let this stand until cold. Strain and keep in a cool place.

Another concoction you may prepare now and keep is

RASPBERRY VINEGAR.

4 quarts raspberries.
Sugar.

Crush 2 quarts of the raspberries, pour the vinegar over them, cover and let stand 2 days. Strain, pour the same vinegar over the remaining raspberries, crushed, and let these also stand for 2 days. Strain and measure the vinegar. Now to each pint of liquid add 1 pound of sugar, bring slowly to the boiling point and boil 5 minutes, skim, turn into jars or bottles and seal. Use 1 to 2 tablespoons of this sirup to a glass of fresh or charged water, and much crushed ice.

Now here come a few more of our summer favorites, but if your thirst is still unquenced why not let us send you our leaflet of summer beverages? Just send in a stamped addressed envelope and you will be keeping that beverage shaker busy all summer.

BANANA AND STRAWBERRY PUNCH.

1 orange.
2 cups strawberries.
2 cups sugar.
1 cup lemon juice.
6 cups cold water.

Add the juice from the orange to the crushed bananas and stir in the strawberries sprinkled with sugar. Strain all through a fine sieve; then pour the lemon juice and water through the sieve. Mix, chill, and serve in glasses with a strawberry floating on the top.

Next another trick for getting junior to drink his milk.

ICED MINT COCOA.

1½ cups boiling water.
5 sprigs mint.
⅔ cup sugar.
1 quart milk.
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Stir the cocoa and 1 cup of the boiling water together until it forms a smooth paste. Cook for half an hour in the top of a double boiler. Pour the other half cup of water over the mint and simmer for 5 minutes. Strain and add to the cocoa with the sugar. Cook for 5 minutes; then combine with the scalding milk and vanilla. Ice and serve.

Happy Medium 'Twixt Doormat, Idler Sought

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"It doesn't pay to do so-and-so for a man. He doesn't appreciate it."

How often you and I have heard that refrain! Funny thing, though, how more often you hear it from the lips of a woman whose marriage is not a notable success!

Hearing it recently from one who was on the warpath looking for a successor to the one "who didn't appreciate it," we wondered if it isn't more often a defense alibi than a sincerely thought out conclusion. Not that we are of the opinion that there isn't something to the oft-repeated charge. But the loudest complainants so often being natural born slackers, we wonder!

We're speaking, of course, of women doing home chores day and day out; getting meals, doing the washing and ironing, the sewing or darning; perhaps saving window washing bills, wall papering, plumbing, etc.

One day one of the least complaining of these women confronts herself with the question of whether she's getting the appreciation deserved. Whether it wouldn't be better if she stepped out of the thrifty, industrious wife class and played at the less useful and perhaps more ornamental rôle!

Not infrequently such wives are perfectly justified in feeling a sense of the injustice of things. Never a word of appreciation is volunteered by the man. Indeed, he sometimes minimizes the work done. In which event, the wife is smart who sets about establishing a different rôle for herself. There are certain things men set little value on in a woman. A too willing sense of personal duty and sacrifice is one. A woman simply has to know when to pull in on the duties and demand a bit more for herself.

But taking marriage by and large and husbands and wives the same way, the woman has her household job mapped out for her; the man his. And when each attends to his and her knitting in a conscientious way, there shouldn't be injustices felt.

The man isn't often heard to say: "It doesn't pay to do so-and-so. She doesn't appreciate it!" A fact we recommend as food for thought to wives who think they're the only ones not appreciated.

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

This new and interesting jumper dress is as attractive for the normal figure as for the miss. The front buttoned guimpe and wrapped skirt effect are slenderizing. Navy blue crinkled silk crêpe for the jumper with a crisp white organdie plaided in blue for the guimpe, or a gray crinkled silk crêpe for the jumper with yellow silk crêpe for the guimpe are both chic suggestions.

The pattern, No. 3362, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 2⅝ yards of 39 inch material for the jumper and 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material for the guimpe.

MINUTE MYSTERY
BY H. A. RIPLEY

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

A SIGNIFICANT FACT.

"The murderer climbed up to Lord Melford's opened bedroom window all right," insisted Detective Sergeant Boland, addressing Prof. Fordney. "We discovered, you know, that all the entrance doors were locked on the inside and all the windows but the one in question were fastened. See those footprints in the flower bed!"

The two men were standing directly below his lordship's window when the Scotland Yard man grasped Fordney's arm in excitement and pointed to the ivy-covered wall of the old mansion. Ten feet from the ground, and leading to Melford's window on the third floor, the leaves were stripped and broken. "See, professor, I was right. That's how the murderer did get in! Let's have another look inside."

"All right, sergeant."

Lord Melford lay on his bed, his throat cut, the pillow and spread covered with blood. One arm dangled over the edge. The night lamp was still burning. Walking to the opened window, Boland discovered fresh scratches on the outside sill.

"That clinches it, professor. Gosh, I'd like to find you wrong just once! Your theory that it's an inside job and that the murder did not make his entrance by the window is all shot now. The only one to gain by Melford's death is his nephew and—I don't believe he'd have the courage for a job like this."

"Appearances are deceiving, old fellow—you've learned that. I'm really surprised that you've overlooked such a significant fact." Fordney carefully examined the window sill as he spoke. "Do you see what I mean?" he questioned.

WHAT WAS THE SIGNIFICANT FACT THAT BOLAND OVERLOOKED?

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

It's hard to practice the things we know. But it's much harder to practice them if we don't know them.

So, many mothers of experience know that a hungry, tired child isn't responsible for the way he acts. Yet, because of a belated dinner, or a lingering afternoon visitor, their children's bedtime or mealtime will be delayed beyond the danger point, and then they find themselves with a cranky, irritable, tempery, possibly disobedient child on their hands.

And then, being weary themselves, they may scold or punish. But if they do these things it is at least against their better judgment—they know better and usually avoid such scenes. They do try to practice what they know about tired children.

But the entirely inexperienced mother often doesn't know these things to practice. She may learn them eventually, but in the meantime both she and her small child suffer.

A tired little child should not be disciplined. There's just one thing to do with a small boy or girl who is tired, and that is to get him or her into night clothes and bed just as quickly and calmly as possible. What shall you do about crossness or irritability or disobedience? Ignore it. Overlook it. Be as soothing and gentle as you can. Sometimes you can tell a small story or chat about something which takes up his mind. But the very, very tired small one who is past his time for bed often can't even listen to anything.

You know how it is with yourself. Haven't you been too tired to eat, or talk, or think? Well, little children get that way only with this difference: that they don't realize what is the matter with them.

Sometimes I've heard an older child say, "I don't know what's the matter with me! I'm hungry," or "I'm tired." But not the little one.

So, don't expect anything at all of a tired child. Overlook his little ways, get him quickly and lovingly to bed, and you'll be his Balm of Gilead.

Paris Sponsors Rich Spice Colored Brown for Formal Afternoon Wear

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—An odd shade to come out in warm weather is bobbing up around Paris. The French call it Marron d'Inde, or East Indian brown, and it is a rich, spicy shade that looks gorgeous in lacquered satin. That's the material that some of the dressmakers use to make up afternoon frocks in this color, toning it down with the plain, or crêpe, side. If you happen to have white or golden hair, spice brown will do it proud, and it is most agreeable and different.

The Philippe et Gaston dress shown today is one of the first to appear in this brown. It is done in lacquered satin and combines the crêpe and the bright side.

The silhouette of the model is rather straight up and down and seems to be molded at the waistline because there are twelve small tucks above and below the sashline on skirt and blouse. No seam separates the front of the sleeves from the body of the dress in front, but in back, as you can see in the small sketch, there are squared seam joinings. The sleeves start on a straight road at the shoulders, puff out in lacquered satin bands above the elbows, and then straighten out below.

There's a brown lacquered satin dicky in the front of the blouse, a dicky that comes right up to the base of the throat, and is trimmed with a flower of pinky mother-of-pearl.

The long sash of lacquered satin is cut on the bias, so it hangs limp.

Scientific Way Cleans Dull, Stained Teeth Faster And Better . . . Makes Teeth Whiter . . . Try It

DON'T be fooled into believing that your teeth are naturally dull, off-color, or susceptible to decay simply because brushing fails to keep them sound or make them white. Remember this:

Any preparation that polishes teeth and fails to kill germs—millions of germs that swarm into the mouth and cause most tooth and gum troubles—ONLY HALF CLEANS TEETH.

One dental cream in the world that kills troublesome germs as it cleans the teeth is Kolynos. Try it—a half-inch on a dry brush, morning and night. Soon your teeth will look cleaner than ever before.

This unique, scientific dental cream contains two priceless ingredients that give the teeth a DOUBLE-CLEANSING. As one foams into every crevice, over every tooth surface and washes away food accumulation, stain and tarnish—the other kills millions of germs.

Thus, in a remarkably short time, teeth are cleaned right down to the beautiful, natural white enamel—without injury. They look more attractive than you ever believed possible. They are safeguarded against decay.

No, you can't get by with dull, HALF-CLEANED TEETH. Don't try to. Start using Kolynos. Overnight your teeth will show great improvement. Your mouth will feel cleaner and fresher. Get a tube of Kolynos from your druggist today.

CUBS SPLIT; SOX WIN, 6 TO 1, AND LOSE, 5 TO 3

NELSON RESCUES BRUINS AFTER 5 TO 4 SETBACK

Drives In Run for 9-8 Victory.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., June 11. — Mild little Lynn Nelson was the main hero today in the belated matter of the Cubs beating the Cincinnati Reds. After the Cubs had gone down in defeat in the first game of a double header, 5 to 4, for the fifth setback in five games played at Redland field, Lynn took over the pitching chore when his team was trailing, 7 to 4, in the second game. Nelson not only did a swell job of relief pitching but he also singled and scored the run in the eighth that produced a 9 to 8 victory.

The Cubs, following the first game this afternoon, had a season record against the Reds of one victory and six defeats. And when Cincinnati rose up for five runs off Bush in the fifth inning of the second game, it appeared that the day was destined to end with the Cubs showing a record of seven defeats in eight games with the Reds. This fear was emphasized when Jim Bottomley drove in a run with a triple in the sixth to give the Reds an 8 to 4 advantage.

Tie Score in Seventh.

In the seventh, however, the Chicagoans concluded that the Red menace had exceeded the limits of mere monotony. Aided by two errors, the Cubs made two doubles and two singles count for four runs and eliminated their old foe, Red Lucas.

In the next inning Nelson led off with a single to right and eventually got home, when, with the bases loaded, Benton hit Stephenson with a pitched ball. Nelson didn't allow a hit after he had been put in the running, the early triple of Bottomley's being the only safety off his pitching.

Grimes Blasted Out.

The Cubs lost the first game because old Burleigh Grimes generously was given another starting assignment after losing four straight. Burleigh was chased in the first inning as a result of a deluge of base hits to center field, and though Bud Tinning pitched and batted well the rest of the way the Reds, through brilliant fielding and throwing by Bottomley and Hafey, were able to keep ahead after the four run advantage gained in the first inning.

FIRST GAME

After the Cubs had wasted two hits in their end of the first inning, the Reds went about the business of curling Grimes' once famous victory whiskers. Adams opened with a single to center and stopped at second on Moore's single to center. Hartnett took Bottomley's bunt and forced Adams at third, but Hafey doubled to center, scoring Moore and Bottomley. Rice's single to center scored Hafey and drove Grimes to cover.

Tinning came in and pitched a single to Morrissey. He walked Bluege to fill the bases. Hemsley flied to Stephenson and Rice scored. Johnson fanned.

Cubs Chase Johnson.

In view of the fact that Si Johnson slapped down the Cubs with a 1 to 0 masterpiece the last time the Cubs and Reds met, four runs seemed enough to make the contest a breeze for Si. But a Cub run in the third and two more in the fourth brought about his retirement.

English opened the third with a single to center and pulled up at second while Bill Herman was beating out a single to Bluege. Babe Herman fouled to Hemsley, but Stepnenson's single to center, filling the bases. Demaree flied to Moore and English scored. Grimm popped to Adams.

Campbell batted for Hartnett to start the fourth and singled to center. Koenig batted for Jurges and doubled to left, Campbell stopping at third. Tinning then cracked a perfect line single to center, scoring Campbell and Koenig. Frey relieved Johnson at this point. Tinning went to second on English's sacrifice, but the Hermans couldn't get him home.

Two Errors Help Reds.

Two errors gave the Reds a run and led to a big jam in the fifth. Moore was safe on Bill Herman's fumble and went to third on Bottomley's single. Hafey fanned. Rice grounded to Bill Herman, who threw to the plate in time to get Moore, but the ball got away from Campbell, Moore scoring, Bottomley reaching third and Rice second. Morrissey was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Bluege flied to Babe Herman and Stephenson made a circus catch of Hemsley's drive to the left field fence.

The Cubs made a run in the seventh and were prevented from tying the score by a great throw by Hafey. Bill Herman pushed off with a double and went to third on Babe Herman's tap to Morrissey. Stephenson singled to left, scoring Bill Herman, and reached second on Demaree's out. Grimm shot a long single to left, but Hafey gave his famed throwing arm a workout and speared Stevie at the plate.

SECOND GAME

Lucas' support abandoned him for a time in the first inning, enabling the Cubs to score two runs without get-

SIMMONS GETS 2 HOME RUNS, 2 SINGLES IN FIRST

Errors Help Tigers Beat Lyons.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox heaped a lot of vengeance on their old pal, Vic Frasier, yesterday and then swooned under an aggravated attack of generosity. They, or, to be more explicit, Mr. Al Simmons, mauled their former teammate so relentlessly in the first half of a double header that the bothersome Tigers took it on the chin, 6 to 1. The Sox entertained some 24,000 spectators with a brilliant, persistent fight in the second game, but toward the finish began giving away runs with such abandon that Ted Lyons was forced to take the count and let Lynwood [Schoolboy] Rowe register his third straight triumph over the south siders. The score was 5 to 3.

The murderous hitting of Simmons in the first battle was a great help to Milt Gaston, although he didn't need as much help as he got. Simmons hit two singles and two homers in four appearances. With his first single he accomplished nothing, but the second one sent in a pair of runs. With the first of his two homers the Sox picked up three more. When Al turned loose his second circuit wallop, making nine for the season, the bases were empty, but he still had the honor of personally driving in all the runs off Frasier.

Sox Play Santa Claus.

The big heartedness of the Sox in the nightcap began to bother Lyons in the second inning. The Tigers were given a run on a blunder by Jim Dykes. That put them in front, 2 to 0, but the home trops tied the score in the fourth. The inning would have been far more strenuous for the Schoolboy if Harry [King Kong] Greenberg hadn't stepped in with a sparkling play just when it was greatly needed. Then nothing much happened until Luke Appling surrendered another tally to the invaders in the eighth. The Sox retrieved this, for which they were grateful to the same Greenberg, but the outcome was settled in the ninth when a crazy throw by Red Kress set the Tigers in motion.

Simmons failed to hit in five attempts against Rowe, but even this wasn't sufficient to prevent an increase for the day in his league leading batting figure. When the afternoon's work started he was sailing far out in front of the field with a more .378. After the first game he leaped up to .390, but the five blanks put a kink in that mark. He slipped back to .381, or three points over the previous day.

FIRST GAME

Gaston began his afternoon's work with a display of wildness that threw a scare into everybody except the Tigers. He walked both White and Owen. Gaston picked up Gehringer's bunt and threw out Owen at second, White taking third. White scored on Stone's liner to Simmons.

Simmons' first hit put Frasier on the spot in the home second, but nothing happened. Appling bounced to deep short. There was no chance for a play at first, so Rogell shot the ball to second and Simmons was nipped. He would have beaten the play but slid too soon and stopped short of the bag. Appling then stole second, and continued to third on Desautels' bad throw. Kress fanned, Dykes walked, and Berry ended it with a fly to White.

Along Comes Simmons.

Frasier's old weakness on control got him in the third and Simmons stepped in just when he could do the most harm. After two were out Haas and Swanson walked. Simmons hoisted a short fly to center and Gehringer ran back, announcing to his nearby teammates that he would take care of everything. He failed to reckon with the wind and the ball was carried out of his reach for a single, Haas and Swanson scoring.

Mr. Simmons was up again in the fifth, so the Sox added three runs. Haas singled to left with one out. Swanson bunted to Owen, and would have been out at first if the lanky Greenberg hadn't dropped the throw. Frasier threw only one ball to Simmons, and Al sent it on its way into the right field seats, Haas and Swanson scoring ahead of him.

In the seventh Simmons looked over one bad pitch before blasting homer No. 9 into the right field seats. Before the inning closed Kress singled for the last of the ten hits off Frasier.

SECOND GAME

Lyons was an effective workman in the second game until after he had set down the first two men to face him. Then Gehringer sent a drive into right and it bounced off the top edge of the wall for a triple. He scored when Stone's grounder went past Lyons' feet for a single.

A run that put the Tigers in front by 2 to 0 in the second was instigated by Greenberg and was completed on an error. Greenberg doubled off the left field barrier. Rogell popped out trying to bunt. Dykes fumbled Hayworth's roller, Greenberg taking third. He scored on Rowe's long fly to Simmons.

The Sox were pretty tame under Rowe's influence until the fourth and

Three Title Contenders to Appear During Session.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The Lincoln Fields 12 day racing season which opens this afternoon is particularly important because the meeting will bring, in a few days, the first appearance here of those three much discussed contenders for championships, Gallant Sir, Trace Call and Mata Hari.

These horses are after three distinctly different crowns, representing the three great divisions in American racing. One, before the season ends, may dethrone Equipoise as the handicap champion of America. That is Gallant Sir, the champion from the Pacific coast.

Another, Trace Call, may step into the muddled 3 year old title chase and by late summer or early fall demonstrate that he can whip every colt and filly of his age.

The third one, Mata Hari, will begin a Chicago campaign at Lincoln Fields with the idea of capturing the 2 year old championship.

None on Today's Card.

None of these much discussed horses is on today's opening program. In fact, when their appearances do come within the next two weeks, they will be all too brief, serving mainly as an introduction to the greater championship events in which they must take part later in the season.

The mere fact that they are on the Chicago scene is the important thing. When they strip for action the turnstiles should play a tune that will be particularly pleasing to the ears of the folks in the counting room.

When the bugle calls the field out at 2:15 o'clock for the first race this afternoon it will be the first time that early summer racing has been offered at Lincoln Fields. The early indications are for a bumper opening crowd, so the decision to stage a part of its 32 day program at this time evidently has been approved by most of Chicago's racegoers.

Ravenswood Purse Is Feature.

The mile and a sixteenth Ravenswood purse is today's feature. It comes sixth on the program and has attracted a field of 13. Uncommon Gold, Cold Check, C. V. Whitney's Habanero, Col. E. R. Bradley's By Gracious and the Audley Farm's Dusky Devil were all mustering support last night and it shaped up as one of the most wide open races run this season in Chicago.

Twelve or more were named for each of the other races. If the handicappers think they are going to have any picnic making the winners pop out of the magic box they should stop and think the situation over again.

Two stake races are to be run during the meeting. The first is the Debutante on Saturday. In this race the fleet Mata Hari will get her introduction to a Chicago crowd. She will have to be at her best to make an auspicious beginning here, for among her opponents will be the unbeaten Miss Patience from Audley farm. Miss Patience has five victories to her credit.

Gallant Sir Runs June 24.

The Francis S. Peabody Memorial handicap on June 24 is the event in which Gallant Sir is expected to make his first start of the year here. He will not get a crack at Equipoise in this race but many of the other leading handicap performers will be among his foes.

Trace Call will go to the post likely this week in an overnight handicap. He has been turning in splendid training moves for three weeks following a coughing attack which kept him out of the Kentucky Derby.

Thor Captures French Derby from Camping

CHANTILLY, France, June 11.—(AP)—Marcel Boussac's Thor captured the French Derby at 2,400 meters today, winning by a length from Baron Edward de Rothschild's Camping, with Leon Volterras' Casterari third. The victory was worth 250,000 francs [about $12,000 at current exchange] to the owner of the winner and 25,000 francs to the trainer. Thor paid 18 francs 50 centimes for five francs in the betting.

Grove Grabs the Glory But Earnshaw Saves His Future

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, June 11.—There is an interesting contrast in temperaments in Connie Mack's baseball club this year, with Mose Grove, the barefoot slinger from some little never-heard-of-it place up in the Maryland hills, pitching in turn and out to carry the team along, and George Earnshaw, a college taught man and a bit of a toff, socially, not only unable but unwilling to pack his own weight on the pay roll.

Intellectually and socially Mr. Grove is strictly a sand-lot character compared with Mr. Earnshaw who has his nose deep in a lot of college books without any pictures in them and, by right of birth, is eligible to fan soup with the Philadelphia Wideners and Stotesburys. Down on his own home grounds, Mr. Grove busts crackers into his soup on a revolving stool at the elite lunch and trades talk with the brakeman of old 97. For reading he favors westerns and funny papers.

One Rises as Other Falls.

Mr. Earnshaw's failure and humiliation and Mr. Grove's success and no claim are related, to some extent, as cause and effect. When Earnshaw, applying that logic which he learned at Swarthmore college, remarked last winter that the Yankees were likely to win the American league pennant this year he was talking good sense but bad judgment. Old Mr. Mack admires intelligence in his athletes but holds that a man who is smart enough to discern that his own ball team hasn't got what it takes to win a pennant, ought to be smart enough to keep his judgment to himself lest he scare off the customers who contribute the money which pays him a handsome honorarium.

So Mr. Mack by way of discipline

GEORGE EARNSHAW. LEFTY GROVE.

and also by way of retrenchment, took a deep cut at Mr. Earnshaw's salary and Earnshaw, resenting this abridgement of his right to babble that which he calls his own mind, stuck his thumb in his mouth and set out to establish a sulking record which would stand for all time.

It Must Be Thorough.

Ordinarily Mr. Earnshaw, to my own knowledge, is too wise, if not too temperate, to spend any evenings peering dreamily into the upturned bottom of the ale pot. He was teetotal for a long time when the Athletics were winning pennants and explained to me that drinking, when he drank at all, was no half-hearted or part time pursuit. When he drinks he drinks but when he lets it alone he

Toronto and Swedes Take Soccer Games

BY OFFSIDE.

The Toronto Scots won the open soccer football championship of North America from the Stix, Baer and Fuller team of St. Louis at Soldiers' field yesterday. The score was 2 to 1.

Earlier in the afternoon the Swedish-Americans won the first of a three game series for the Peter J. Peel cup from Sparta, 1 to 0. Despite this double attraction the event drew only 5,000 spectators who appeared lost in the massive stadium.

The Stix and the Scots are national champions, respectively, of the United States and Canada. They battled on about even terms the first twenty-five minutes, displaying brilliant soccer and making several scoring threats.

St. Louis First to Score.

The break came for St. Louis when Billie Gonsalves, fleet 200 pounder, headed the ball into the net on a cornered kick from Wee Willie McLean. Goalie Wallace, who played despite a dislocated thumb, did not get close to the ball.

The Scots tied the score after ten minutes of the second period. After drawing the Stix defense out, Phillips kicked to Stevens, who booted to McManus and the latter hoisted a fast one that Goalie La Barge didn't touch.

Stevens passed the ball from near the goal to the corner and McManus lobbed it in front of the goal. Graham then dashed in and headed the ball into the net to give the Scots a 2 to 1 lead which they held for the remaining five minutes of play.

Halquist Scores for Swedes.

In the curtain raiser Halquist of the Swedish-Americans took a pass from Erickson and scored the only goal just before the half ended. Sparta was unable to make good on several excellent opportunities in the second half.

Eugene James, Bradley Jockey, Drowns in Lake

Eugene James, 20 years old, jockey who rode Burgoo King to victory in the 1932 Kentucky Derby was drowned yesterday in the lake at the foot of Walton place.

EUGENE JAMES.

James and Edward [Kid] Hogan of Kid Howard's gymnasium and Mickey Farr, assistant to Nate Lewis at the Chicago Stadium, left Hogan's room in the Delaware Towers, 25 East Delaware place, at 6 o'clock to take a cooling dip in the lake. James suggested a swim out to the breakwater and did not heed Hogan's warning that the water was too cold for such an effort.

Hogan said he followed James, but the jockey who was a considerable distance ahead, began to tire and turned back. Hogan also turned back and reached the shore exhausted. He heard James crying for help and asked for volunteers from the crowd to aid his friend. Buck Sway, 1737 West 13th street, swam out to where James had gone down and brought the body ashore.

James was one of the several jockeys developed by Roscoe Goose, himself a former rider but who is now training a stable racing in Chicago.

James grew up in the vicinity of the Churchill Downs track in Louisville and showed so much interest in horses that in 1928 he attracted the attention of Trainer Goose who obtained the lad's contract.

It was in 1930 that James showed so much promise a number of wealthy owners started bidding for his services. His contract finally was purchased by the late Joe Leiter of Chicago. After Leiter's death Col. Edward R. Bradley purchased the contract from the Leiter estate.

A short time later James rode Col. Bradley's Burgoo King to victory in the Kentucky Derby and followed up this triumph a week later by winning the Preakness on the same colt.

He was hopelessly overweight at the beginning of the present season, scaling 130 pounds or more. Despite his inability to do any riding he continued in the employ of Col. Bradley who considered the boy one of the best riders ever to wear his green and white jacket.

The body will be sent to Louisville for burial.

WALSH GETS 70 IN NORTH SHORE OPEN GOLF MEET

Leads 1st Round; Lafoon Has 145 for 36 Holes.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The strain of playing three days and 72 holes in the National Open tournament was not too much for a number of golfers, so they hied themselves over to the Sunset Valley Golf club in Highland Park yesterday to seek a share of the $1,000 purse in the sixth annual North Shore open.

The tournament this year is being conducted differently than in other years, with an 18 hole round scheduled for yesterday and another over the same distance for today. Special permission was granted to several out of town players to play the full 36 holes yesterday so that they might return home sooner.

Guldahl Takes Day Off.

Ralph Guldahl, the big St. Louis boy who took the first professional prize in the National Open, turned up at Sunset Valley with the intention of playing, but shortly after he arrived he decided he was too weary from his pursuit of Johnny Goodman on Saturday. He will return to Sunset Valley this morning to play 36 holes, starting at 10:30 o'clock.

Because of the arrangement whereby players from other cities were allowed to play two rounds, while others contented themselves with one, there are two leaders in the North Shore open this morning.

Walsh Has Best Round.

One is Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr, runner-up for the national professional championship last year, who cut two strokes off par with a 70, the best single round of the day. Ky Lafoon, long driving Denver professional, took the 36 hole lead by putting together rounds of 72 and 73 for a 145. Among others who played the full route were Bill Schwartz of St. Louis, 74—73—147; Bob Barnett, Washington, D. C., 71—76—147; Orville White, St. Louis, 76—72—148; Al Espinosa, Akron, O., 71—77—148; Bobby Cruickshank, Richmond, Va., 72—77—149; Carl Rocco, Cleveland, O., 75—75—150, and Frank Schwartz, St. Louis, 78—72—150; Mel Shorey, Washington, 76—75—151; Ray Schwartz, St. Louis, 75—80—155; Ralph Beach, Baltimore, 80—75—155.

Two Sunset Valley stars are leading the amateurs. They are Dick Martin, Chicago district amateur champion, with a 72, and Bill Chambers, with a 73. Martin will do some hustling today to get in his second round, for he is being graduated from the University of Illinois law schol at Champaign. He plans to hurry back to play the final 18 holes.

Dodson Shoots 71.

Leonard Dodson of Springfield, Mo., who submitted the best district qualifying score in the country in the trial for the National Open three weeks ago a 139, also was under par with a 71, as was Joe Paletti, competing unattached. Harry Cooper of Glen Oak

Eddie Collins, Art Fletcher to Coach A. L. Team of Stars

[RESULTS OF POLL ON NEXT PAGE.]

Connie Mack, who will manage the greatest team the American league can present, has chosen two veteran coaches to assist him in the game of the century at Comiskey park July 6. They are Eddie Collins, one of the most brilliant infielders baseball has developed, and Art Fletcher, former shortstop with the New York Giants and now a coach with the New York Yankees.

The invitations to Collins and Fletcher were extended by William Harridge, president of the American league. He received their acceptances yesterday.

"I thought I had enjoyed every thrill there was in baseball in my years as a player, manager, and coach," Collins said, "but to have a part in the greatest game of all time is an experience any man would crave. Only the best get into this battle. I consider it the highest compliment that can be paid a baseball man to be invited to participate."

Fletcher Stars in Illinois.

Fletcher, who was a stenographer in Collinsville, Ill., before he discovered he had baseball talent, was equally pleased with his appointment. He has been on the coaching staff of the Yankees for several years. He got his start in baseball with an Edwardsville, Ill., team in 1906. He went from there to Dallas in the Texas league and after an exhibition game against the Giants in the spring of 1908 he was signed by John McGraw. He became regular shortstop in 1911 and was one of the National league's standouts for a decade.

The game of the century will be homecoming for Collins, for he was a member of the White Sox as player and later as manager from 1915 to 1926. He was such a good second baseman that he made hard chances appear easy. Before coming to the Sox he was a member of the Athletic teams that played so neatly and efficiently that the customers ceased to appreciate their work and Connie Mack had to break up the combination.

With Boston Now.

Collins went back to Philadelphia in 1927 to assist his old boss, Mack. He did some playing and some coaching. His legs failed definitely the following year, so he was forced to limit his activities to the duties of an assistant manager. He is now serving as business manager of the Boston Red Sox.

Gabby Hartnett, Cubs' catcher, continues to be the heaviest vote getter in the National league. Today's standings give him a total of 121,454, more than three times the number of Jimmy Wilson of the Cardinals, his nearest rival.

Lon Warneke, who in the last publication of the poll had almost overtaken Carl Hubbell for pitching honors, has lost ground. He was only 206 votes behind the Giants' southpaw Saturday, but he now trails by 5,691. This is due chiefly to heavy returns from New York where Hubbell has strong support.

Special from Detroit.

The fight for utility positions in the infield is a merry scramble. Woody English of the Cubs and Pepper Martin of the Cardinals are neck and neck at third base and Hughey Critz of the Giants is giving Bill Herman of the Cubs lively competition at second.

Tickets for the game are still available in the reserved grandstand sections. The price is $1.10. There has been no increase in admission fees for baseball's biggest game. Bleacher seats, which also will sell at the every day price of 55 cents, will not be on sale until the day of the contest.

If you want to make sure you will see the game, mail your application today to the All Star Game department, Comiskey park, Chicago. Inclose money order or cashier's check and a self addressed, stamped envelope.

Billy Burke Given Tenth Place on Ryder Cup Team

New York, June 11.—(AP)—Billy Burke, former National Open golf champion, tonight was named to the tenth place on the American Ryder cup team.

The appointment, announced by George R. Jacobs, president of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, came as a surprise, particularly in view of Burke's failure to finish in the money in the 1933 open, concluded yesterday at Chicago.

Burke scored 305 for the 72 holes and landed in a tie for 33d place.

The P. G. A.'s failure to include Burke when the team was selected several months ago aroused a storm of protest among his fellow pros, particularly Gene Sarazen. Nine members of the team were selected at that time, with the tenth place left open for the winner of this year's open in the event he turned out to be a native born professional not already named to the squad.

Meet Britons June 26.

The sensational victory of the Omaha amateur, Johnny Goodman, upset this arrangement, but the executive committee and tournament committee of the P. G. A. decided that Burke should be given the tenth place.

The other nine members of the team which will leave shortly to meet a squad of British pros at Southport, Eng., June 26, include Capt. Walter Hagen, Sarazen, Craig Wood, Olin Dutra, Leo Diegel, Densmore Shute, Horton Smith, Ed Dudley, and Paul Runyan. All of these except Dudley and Runyan led Burke in the open last week.

GOODMAN SHUNS REWARDS

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Most of the golfers who competed in the national open tournament which ended Saturday, packed up their clubs yesterday and headed for home. Championship tournaments may come and go, but the average professional must earn his living by sticking to business at the club where he is lucky enough to have a job.

Inasmuch as Johnny Goodman, the champion, is an amateur he didn't have to worry about getting back to a job at any club. Instead he was planning to return to Omaha and resume his work with an insurance company. He denied having any intentions of becoming a professional, so as to capitalize on his newly acquired fame.

It is estimated that the national open championship is worth $50,000 to a professional, for he can collect sizeable and numerous fees for exhibition matches, lessons, writings and moving picture work.

Goodman Shuns Reward.

However, Goodman said he intended to pass up these rewards and follow the example of the amateurism set by Bobby Jones. Although he is himself too modest to express a hope that he will prove capable of filling the place in golf left vacant by Bobby's retirement, there are many who claim that Goodman is a second Jones.

It must be remembered that his victory Saturday was no freak. His brilliance was not a flash in the pan. Despite the fact that he is only 23 years old, he has been playing excellent and consistent golf for a long time. In 1929 he beat Jones in the first round of the national amateur at Pebble Beach, Cal., and he has been an important factor in many other tournaments since.

The close finish of the three day battle for the national open championship was particularly surprising in view of the fact that both Tommy Armour and Goodman threatened to make a runaway of the contest at certain stages.

TRACK STARS TO FEATURE FAIR'S COLLEGE NIGHT

Finals of National Meet Saturday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The World's Fair committee has named Saturday night college night, and quite appropriately, since the track and field stars of the nation, many of them veterans of the United States Olympic team, will engage in the twelfth national collegiate meet that evening in Soldiers' field. No greater attraction in which colleges are featured is scheduled at A Century of Progress.

Since many of the concessions are arranging college parties after the meet, and the track and field program has been rearranged so that the spectators will have the same panorama provided in the recent Western conference games, it is hoped that Chicago's interest in the meet will be increased. The attendance at the Big Ten games indicated that alumni and college support can be obtained.

Sections for Alumni.

Tickets to the finals Saturday night, including admission to the Fair and the federal tax, are $1.50. Tickets may be obtained at Spaldings, 211 South State street, in sections reserved for alumni groups. Otherwise admittance is catch as catch can, although all seats will command a view of the 15 events.

The week will bring the greatest parade of athletes this year in the United States. Not only are the outstanding stars of the universities slated to attack a series of records, which already have been advanced to points considered impossible a decade back, but 400 high school boys from 25 states will go through their paces on the same days. The preliminaries in both meets will be held Friday afternoon, with the finals of the prep competition Saturday afternoon and the university runners and jumpers beginning their finals at 7:45 p. m.

Prep Boys Have College Skill.

Incidentally some of the boys in the high school meet, many of whom will be the college stars of the next Olympics, are capable of entering the N. C. A. A. competition right now with fair assurance of placing. One of these is DeMaris of Eugene, Ore., who has thrown the javelin nearly 206 feet. Jesse Ownes, Negro sprinter from East Tech, Cleveland, has a mark of 9 6-10 seconds in the 100 yard dash, while John Graves of Cherokee, Ia., holds a state record of 1 minute 52 2-10 seconds for the half mile, which is better than most college men can do.

Judging from their records this year and their performances last season in the N. C. A. A., several southern university entrants may be expected to win first place medals.

Hardin Leads Southerners.

Glenn Hardin of Louisiana State, co-holder of the Olympic 400 meter record, probably is the best all round performer of the group. The 400 meter race is not on the N. C. A. A. program, but Hardin has run the 220 yard low hurdles in 22 9-10 seconds, the best mark in the country this year. Jack Keller, defending champion and holder of the N. C. A. A. record, was one-fifth of a second faster last year, but he'll have to step up his pace to beat Hardin. Hardin also won the Southern conference quarter mile this spring in 47 3-10 seconds.

Another Louisiana State athlete is Jack Torrance, whose 265 pounds make it possible for him to throw the 56 pound shot 52 feet 8¼ inches, which is just one-quarter of an inch farther than the accepted world's record.

Five Accidents Mar Auto Race; Fox Is Hurt

Five accidents involving four drivers marred the running of the four event auto race program at Roby speedway yesterday. One of the drivers, Malcolm Fox of Philadelphia, who figured in two crashes, was in St. Margaret's hospital in Hammond, Ind., last night with a brain concussion.

Fox, whose car figured in the crash in which Lester Spangler and his mechanic, G. L. Jordon, were killed in the Indianapolis race on Memorial day, plunged through the fence in the first race. He came back for the second race and went over an enbankment when his carburetor jammed, preventing him from shutting off his motor going into a turn. At 10 o'clock last night he was still unconscious, but hospital officials said he would recover.

Cooper Sterling of Milwaukee and Speedy Zauer figured in another crash, when their cars locked wheels in the fifteenth lap of the fifty mile feature race. The locked cars tore down 150 feet of fence before they rolled over an enbankment. Neither driver was seriously injured.

Clay Corbet of Columbus, O., won th first two events—a five and a ten mile race— and held the lead in the feature until the forty-ninth lap, when his car broke down. The feature went to Sam Hoffman of Omaha. A. Insinger of Chicago won the third race, another ten mile affair. Summaries:

5 MILE HELMET DASH—Won by Clay Corbet, Columbus; Sam Palmer, Indianapolis, second; Malcolm Fox, Philadelphia, third. Time, 3:52 4-5.

10 MILE ELIMINATION—Won by Clay Corbet; Sam Palmer, second; Sam Hoffman, Omaha, third; Lou Schneider, Indianapolis, fourth. Time, 7:47 4-5.

10 MILE ELIMINATION—Won by A. Insinger, Chicago; Art Foley, Chicago, second; Frank Brisko, Milwaukee, third; Doc Shanebrook, Rockford, fourth. Time, 8:02 2-5.

50 MILE FINAL—Won by Sam Hoffman, Omaha; Sam Palmer, Indianapolis, second; Frank Brisko, Milwaukee, third; Doc Shanebrook, Rockford, fourth; Maynard Clark, Stanwood, Ia., fifth. Time, 42:42 4-5.

TWO CRASH AT EVANSTON.

Two drivers at the Evanston Speedweey had narrow escapes yesterday. Cowboy O'Rourke ran off the track and John Gruber's car somersaulted into a smashup.

O'Rourke was only slightly shaken, but Gruber was taken to Edgewater hospital, where it was found he had a badly wrenched back and severe cuts about the head. Both mishaps occurred near the southwest turn.

Pena-Milling Bout Tops Ring Card for Week

The 15 round bout between Johnny Pena, New York featherweight, and Varias Milling of the Philippine Islands at Mills stadium Wednesday night will head a busy boxing schedule in Chicago this week. Shows are offered every night except Saturday and Sunday.

Many fans believe the match between Pena and Milling will go the full distance. It was this belief that caused Sammy Wolff, Mills stadium promoter, to arrange the bout. Wolff is attempting to give fans an opportunity to view a 15 round encounter in this state for the first time in 35 years. Milling and Pena have the energy and stamina to travel the distance at top speed.

If there is a knockout, Milling probably will be the one to deliver it. He is a harder hitter than Pena. In their first meeting at the Chicago Stadium Pena punched too fast and often for Milling, but the Filipino's superior hitting earned him a draw. This was at eight rounds. They boxed a 10 round draw later at the Stadium. This time Pena finished fresher, although Milling did not retreat at any time.

The first open air card is to be offered at Shewbridge field Thursday with Andy Di Vodi, New York welterweight, opposing Puggy Weinert of Brighton Park. Billy Cepak, Sparta stadium promoter, will present his second outdoor show Friday when Harry Dublinsky, west side boxer, faces Frankie Hughes of Clinton, Ind., in the 10 round main event. Promoter Grant Kromenaker of Northwest stadium will offer Eddie Gill, St. Charles, Ill., middleweight, and Karl Ogren of Chicago in his windup match Wednesday. The schedule:

MONDAY.

TUESDAY.

At Western stadium, Western and Devon avenues—Danny Delmont vs. Don Messina [6], Norman Brown vs. Solly Dukelsky [6], Leo Ranieri vs. Fred Hawkette [4], Oren Miller vs. George Williams [4], Johnny Reba vs. Gordon Roth [4].

At Coulon club, 1154 East 63d street—Eddie Chinski vs. Eddie Smith [5], Artie Mitchell vs. Johnny Fitzpatrick [5], and four other bouts.

WEDNESDAY.

At Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue—Johnny Pena vs. Varias Milling [15], Marty Sampson vs. Joe Reguzzoni [8].

THURSDAY.

At Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets—Andy Di Vodi vs. Puggy Weinert [10], Jack Ripp vs. Roy Moore [6], Eddie Steigal vs. Jack O'Brien [6], Izzy Lubansky vs. Art Donovan [6], Oscar O'Hanion vs. Eddie Evans [4].

FRIDAY.

At Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue—Harry Dublinsky vs. Frankie Hughes [10], Kid Irish vs. Johnny Fitzpatrick [6], Laddie Tonelli vs. Young Scotty [4].

At Rainbo Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue—Seven professional bouts.

Jack Dempsey and Max Baer will open an exhibition tour at Pittsburgh, Pa., Thursday. Dempsey is to referee Baer's exhibition against sparring partners. . . . Pete Wistort, South Chicago heavyweight, is in the east serving as sparring partner for Jack Sharkey, who will defend his heavyweight championship against Primo Carnera at New York on June 29. Les Kennedy, who recently knocked out Stanley Poreda, has been hired as a boxing partner by Carnera.

Otto von Porat, Norwegian heavyweight, will leave on June 24 for Oslo, Norway, where he is booked to box Pierre Charles in July. . . . Mike Dundee, Rock Island, Ill., lightweight, is due here Wednesday to begin workouts for his match with Roger Barnard at Flint, Mich., June 19. . . . Eddie Shea, south side featherweight, was compelled to postpone his scheduled contest at Louisville, Ky., June 19 against Cecil Payne because of an injury to his hand received when he knocked out Joe Rivers last week. . . . King Levinsky is to appear before the Illinois athletic commission today.

Twelve amateur bouts between boys from the Bishop Quarter school, Oak Park, will be held tomorrow at Edward Hines hospital. Albert J. Horan, chief bailiff, is sponsoring the show.

An intercity tournament between amateur boxers from Aurora and Bellwood will be held tonight at Belwood, Ill. . . . Jackie Brown, flyweight champion, is booked to defend his title against Valentine Anglemann at London, England, tonight.

PARKER BEATS LOTT; RETAINS KENTUCKY TITLE

Louisville, Ky., June 11.—(AP)—Frankie Parker of Milwaukee successfully defended his Kentucky tennis singles championship by defeating George Lott of Chicago, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2, 8-6, in the finals of the state tournament here.

Bonnie Miller of Los Angeles defeated Jane Sharp of Pasadena, Cal., 6-1, 2-6, 6-4, for the women's title.

Grant Beats Hines to Win Cotton States Net Title

Fort Benning, Ga., June 11.—(AP)—Bryant Grant of Atlanta today won the cotton states tennis singles championship from Wilmer Hines of Columbia, S. C., 6-3, 9-11, 5-7, 6-0, 6-4.

How They're Voting on National League Stars

The baseball fans of the nation will decide who will play in the game of the century at Comiskey park July 6. Fifty-five newspapers in all sections of the United States have invited fans to help pick the National and American leagues' greatest players.

The Tribune is offering $500 in cash prizes to the fans who come closest to naming the teams. The first award of $250 will go to the person who comes closest to naming the starting lineups [batting order] and the three pitchers for each team in the order they work. The fan who selects the National league's starting lineup with starting pitcher will receive $100. A similar prize will be presented for the American league team. Fifty $1 prizes will be distributed among the fans who can name the six pitchers.

In case more than the allotted number qualify for the awards, the prizes will go to those whose selections reach The Tribune first.

DO YOU REMEMBER WAY BACK WHEN:

WE kids put a gold double eagle under a paper and rubbed it with the flat end of a pencil to make "play" money?—J. V. Gould.

We used to "run a kite down" that dived too much by putting our arm over the string and going toward the kite until it was nearly over our head as we neared it, then we put on an extra piece of tail or a weed?—John Pals.

Wrist watches were first sold, men were ashamed to wear them lest they be called "sissies," but the war changed all that?—H. D. Willis, Eureka, Ill.

Ed Myer of Streator, Ill., brother of Billy Myer, the "Streator Cyclone," and Pete Boyle of Chicago battled in excess of 50 rounds hard by the grain elevator in the hamlet of Evans, Ill., Myer going most of the route with a broken wrist [1895]?—F. H. Ong, Wenona, Ill.

John W. Kelly, "The Rolling Mill Man," sang the Homestead strike song in the old Park theater, just south of Congress on State?—Apron Man.

We were sent to the corner saloon with a gallon bucket for 10 cents' worth of beer, the bucket well greased with pork rind so we'd get a full measure of beer without foam?—E. T. G., Oshkosh, Wis.

Hugo Bezdek, then of the University of Chicago, presented the championship cup for lightweight Rugby football in Cook county to the Pioneers with Bill Kendrick as captain and Ted Kendrick as coach [1903]?—Old Santiago.

This song enjoyed a vogue in 1897

Took a parlor car to Carson City
To do a blacksmith up in hunks.
He came back a few days later,
His features more than morbit.
The blacksmith lunged his hammer arm
And the blow almost killed Corbett.
H. A. W., Rockford, Ill.

In 1869 Ashland avenue was a dimly lighted street and the lamps were not kept clean so it was known as "Lovers' Lane"?—S. M.

C. S. Brownell, 163 South Water street, advertised, "new dried apples, just received in barrels and for sale to the trade on liberal terms [1886]?—L. C. O.

J. B. Sullivan & Bro., 266 North Clark street, were wholesale and retail dealers in white lead, oils, colors, window shades and all types of plain and ornamental glass [1880]?—Warsaw, Ill.

The Lilliputians, a troupe of German midgets, made their annual appearance in "The Toy Shop" and mother took us to see them as the event of the year [1883-1890]?—Harvey Helper, Waukegan, Ill.

Our "beaus" bought us 15 cents' worth of chocolate drops in a paper bag?—N. E. Goddard.

To denote soundess we'd say "As strong as the Bank of England"?—M. B.

Gripmen on cable cars had to pull a cord just before reaching the next street and the street indicator was placed above the front door of the car?—A. C. Stratton.

Unless one rode in the Ferris wheel, he had "missed" most of the World's Fair of 1893?—J. M. S.

University of Notre Dame had both a grammar and high school (The high was discontinued about 1915 and the minims in 1929)?—Ed Schneider.

At Wilce & Co., 22d and Throop, shavings piles were so high we boys tumbled from a springboard off the roof into the shaving pile at noon hours ('80's)?—Emil Busack.

We went to dances at 8 p. m., danced until 4 a. m., and thought we were unpopular if we missed the dance?—I. M. B., Neenah, Wis.

PIRATES CAPTURE DOUBLE HEADER FROM CARDINALS

Score 10 Runs in Ninth to Win First Game.

St. Louis, Mo., June 11.—(AP)—Snatching victory from an almost hopeless handicap in the first game today, 11 to 7, the Pittsburgh Pirates held the St. Louis Cardinals scoreless in the second game of a double header while they garnered three runs.

The Cardinals had the first game virtually salted away, 7 to 1, in the ninth, when Pittsburgh knocked Bill Hallahan and Tex Carleton from the mound, scoring 10 runs in the inning, which Dizzy Dean finished. Scores:-

INDIANS, 1; BROWNS, 0.

Cleveland, O., June 11.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians, playing their first game under the managership of Walter Johnson, barely managed to give him an opening victory today by scoring one run in the tenth inning to defeat the St. Louis Browns, 1 to 0.

Oral Hildebrand singled after two were out in the extra inning to drive in Joe Vosmik with the winning run. Hildebrand, who received credit for the victory, had been sent to the mound in the first half of the tenth, after Mel Harder let the Browns fill the bases with only one out.

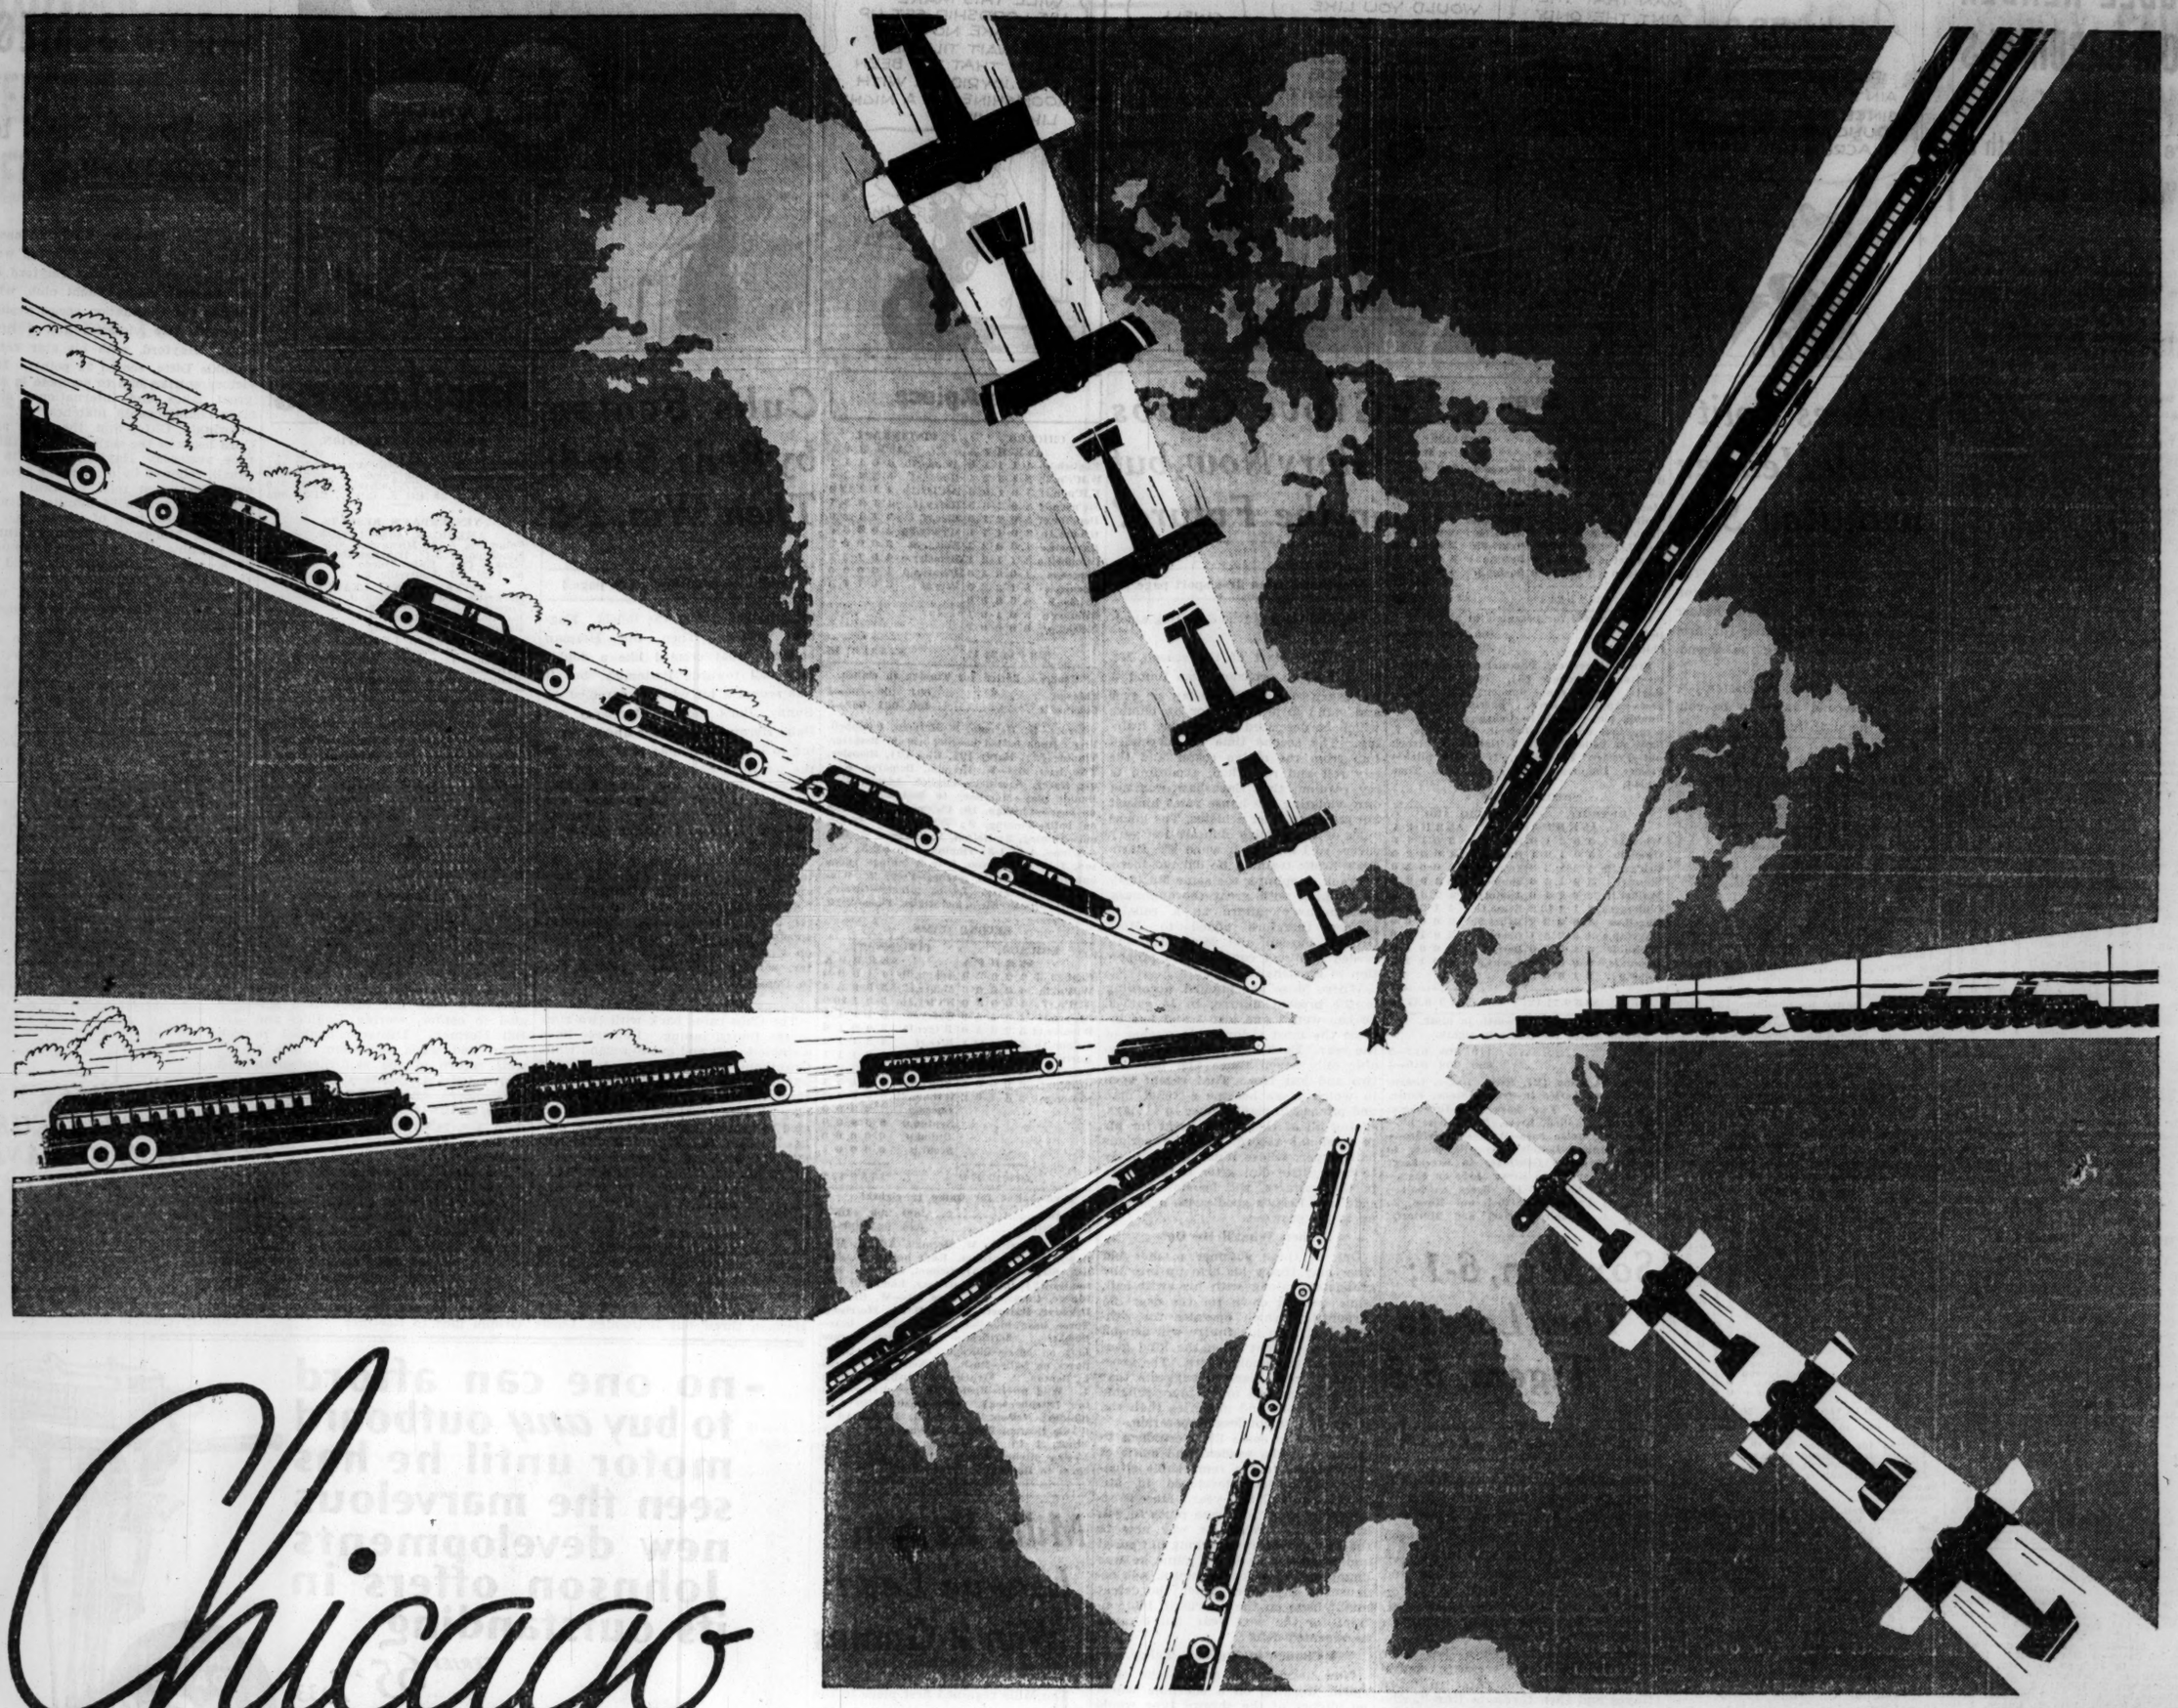
then, after tying the score, were cut short by a dizzy play on the part of Greenberg. Appling opened with a double over first base. Kress bounced a two bagger off the wall in left and Appling scored. Dykes walked and the two runners moved along on Grube's bunt. Lyons singled to right, scoring Kress and putting Dykes on third.

Then Hayes banged a low liner close to first and Greenberg smothered it. He touched first to retire Hayes and then threw to Rogell, who tagged Lyons. The Sox raised a big howl about Dykes having crossed the plate before Lyons was retired, but Umpire Geisel thought differently about it.

Lyons' only pass of the game made up part of the setting for the run that put the Tigers ahead for a brief spell in the eighth. Gehringer walked after Owen had been retired. Stone fouled to Grube. Lyons' first pitch to Walker was right down the middle and the young man cracked it for a single to center, putting Gehringer on third. Then Greenberg grounded to short and Appling grabbed the ball but lost it again when he stumbled. Hayes tried to reach out for it while keeping his foot on second to force Walker, but the latter was safe and Gehringer scored.

Swanson and Simmons were put out of the way on pop flies before the Sox started to work on restoring the tie in their half of the eighth. Appling contributed a single to center and raced to third on Kress' single to right. A pass to Dykes filled the bases and Webb was ushered forth to swing for Grube. He poked an easy grounder to Rowe, who took careful aim and threw perfectly to Greenberg. The latter obligingly juggled the ball, so Webb was safe and Appling scored.

A fluke started the Tigers on the way to their two winning runs in the ninth. Hayworth lifted a pop to short center and Haas couldn't reach it, so it dropped for a double. Schuble took Hayworth's place as base runner. Rowe bunted to Kress, who for some unknown reason figured he might get Schuble at third. He heaved the ball past Dykes, Schuble scoring and



Chicago

AMERICA'S 1933 SALES MECCA!

Conservative estimates indicate that over 15,000,000 people will attend A Century of Progress in Chicago this year. and that about two-thirds—10,000,000—will come from beyond the Chicago 40-mile area which in itself constitutes an annual $2,000,000,000 market.

If each of these visitors spends only $50 while in Chicago that small individual expenditure alone will increase Chicago's 1933 sales figures by $500,000,000! These hundreds of millions will be spent again and again by Chicagoans during A Century of Progress and after! Chicago will once more lead the country to better business as it did with the Columbian Exposition in 1893.

Most of the millions of visitors coming to Chicago know the Tribune. They will use it as their buying guide. Just as 600,000 families in Chicago and suburbs accept the Tribune as their buying guide, day after day, year after year! Just as over 150,000 other able-to-buy families in the territory adjacent to Chicago.

Tribune advertising rates are already the lowest per thousand in Chicago. The preponderant coverage among these millions of extra buyers who will come to the World's Fair will be without any extra cost to Tribune advertisers!

Your advertising in the Tribune this summer will do both a local and a national job—at one cost. A Tribune representative will be pleased to outline for you the sales opportunities presented by Chicago this year. Ask him to call.

DAMAGED CROPS FEDERAL POLICY, SEND GRAINS UP

Prices Now Highest in Three Years.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain prices are around the highest in three years. Deferred futures of wheat are in the low 80's, the December delivery getting up to 81 cents in Chicago on Saturday. At the same time December corn reached 52 cents, oats were up to 32½ cents; rye, 65⅝, and barley, 42 cents, the highest figures being at the close.

Trade expectations are that there will be sufficient buying, based on inflation, to carry prices irregularly higher. It will be no surprise to see wheat at 90 cents and some of the enthusiasts are predicting a dollar, the winter wheat crop being the smallest since 1904.

Short Crop Sufficient.

Estimating spring wheat at 262,000,000 bushels, there would be a total wheat crop of 603,000,000 bushels, compared with 727,000,000 bushels harvested last year and a ten year average of 848,000,000 bushels. There is enough wheat in the country, even with a short crop, for domestic consumption and to leave a liberal quantity for export.

Harvesting of winter wheat is on and new wheat has appeared in southwestern markets and has sold readily.

Wheat traders have never encountered a wheat situation like the present. A few, after studying conditions closely for months, say that the grain trade, like all business interests, has been practically reorganized, and those who expect to make money working on the old principles may be disappointed.

The government influence is so strong and working in so many lines cribs that had to be sold at extremely that it would be no surprise to see an official announcement from Washington at any time that would bring about a new speculative era.

Long Lines Reinstated.

Many of the outside holders of wheat sold out early, which had a depressing influence, but during the last few days a reinstating of sold out lines, combined with a large volume of new business, carried prices up rapidly and made one of the strongest closings of the season, July wheat being 76¾ to 76⅝ cents; September, 78⅜ to 78½ cents, and December, 80¾ to 80⅞ cents. Net gains were 4 to 4¼ cents on wheat, with corn up 1⅝ to 2¼ cents, oats, 4¾ to 5½ cents; rye, 1⅝ to 3 cents, and barley, 4⅜ to 4⅝ cents.

A feature of the government crop report is that it estimates the four southwestern hard winter wheat states to have 127,000,000 bushels and the six soft winter wheat states 125,000,000 bushels, while the final last year in the southwest was 209,000,000 bushels and in the middle west 122,000,000 bushels. There are intimations that the final returns of both sections will be below the present level. Prices in Chicago for the week follow:

Corn Planting About Finished.

Indications are that corn planting is practically finished, or will be this week, except in locations where the ground is too wet or covered with water. There is likely to be a reduction in the total acreage and the condition of the crop probably will be lowered. Traders who sold corn short early in the week because of sunshine and drier weather were among the active buyers at the close, due to the advance in wheat.

Cash corn markets were unsatisfactory, there being too much low grade corn from Iowa held in open cribs that had to be sold at extremely low prices. At the close July was 45¾ to 46 cents; September, 48⅞ to 49 cents, and December, 51¾ to 51⅞ cents, making net gains of 1⅝ to 2⅛ cents and establishing new high levels for the season on September and December. Prices for the week follow:

	July.	Sept.	Dec.
Monday	43⅝-45	46¼-47⅝	49 -50½
Tuesday	44 -45½	46⅝-48⅛	49½-50⅝

Oats Damaged by Heat.

High temperatures damaged the oat crop seriously. Many oats in the best sections of the middle west and west are said to be heading short and caught in a critical condition, suggesting a crop of light weight grain. Cash interests for weeks bought heavy weight oats of the 1932 crop and have good profits, as oat prices have practically doubled from the low prices of the season. The close Saturday was at the highest prices of the week, July being 29 to 28⅞ cents, September 30⅛ to 30⅜ cents, and December 32⅜ to 32¼ cents, making the best gains of any grain 4⅜ to 5½ cents.

Cite How U. S. Spends More, Takes in Less

How the depression has increased federal expenditures, lessened revenues, and enlarged the debt is shown in a study entitled "Federal Finances, 1923-1932," to be made public today by the national industrial conference board.

Increases in the expenditures for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1932, compared with 1929, totaled 1 billion 189 million dollars. Federal tax collections declined 1 billion 539 millions from 1929 to 1932. In the same period the net debt of the United States increased 2 billion 483 millions.

The largest single expenditure for 1932 that resulted from the depression was 500 million dollars for the capital stock of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. This expenditure was in the nature of a capital advance and the entire amount is theoretically repayable to the treasury. Such losses as result from the operations of the corporation, however, will tend to reduce the repayments.

Land Bank Expenditure.

The 125 million dollar subscription to the capital stock of the Federal Land banks is also classified as an expenditure resulting from the depression. Except for the depression there would doubtless have been no occasion for the government to participate in an increase in the capital stock of these banks.

Net advances on account of the agricultural marketing fund amounted to 136 million dollars for 1932. There was no comparable expenditure for 1929. Although the agricultural marketing fund did not owe its existence to the depression, the entire range of activities of the federal farm board and its subsidiary and allied organizations was influenced by the unusual conditions that developed. This was particularly true of the operations of the Grain and Cotton Stabilization corporations.

Expenditures for public works, including advances to the states for road construction, increased from 201 million dollars for 1929 to 507 millions for 1932. Legislation enacted for the purpose of alleviating the effects of the depression through construction activities and a speeding up of projects for which provision had been made were the principal reasons for the increase of more than 300 millions.

Postal Deficit Increases.

The postal deficit for 1932 was 203 million dollars, an increase of 117 millions over that for 1929.

Expenditures other than those attributable to the depression, or affected by it, were 31 million dollars less for 1932 than for 1929. Exclusive of tax refunds there was an increase in expenditures so classified amounting to 81 millions.

The effects of the depression on expenditures and receipts of the federal government first showed themselves clearly in the figures for 1931. In the two years 1931 and 1932 expenditures increased from 3 billion 294 million dollars for 1930 to 5 billion 7 million dollars for 1932; receipts dropped from 4 billion 178 millions to 2 billion 121 millions; and net debt rose from 15 billion 985 millions to 19 billion 225 millions.

It is noteworthy that tax receipts, the main source of federal revenue, fell off sharply from 3 billion 468 million dollars to 1 billion 769 millions. Roughly one-half of the federal revenue is derived from income taxes on individuals and corporations. In the last two years income tax receipts dropped from 2 billion 411 millions for 1930 to 1 billion 57 millions for 1932.

Customs receipts also declined to a very low point in consequence of the collapse of world trade. Revenue from tobacco taxes, on the other hand, has not been greatly affected by the depression. In 1930 the tobacco taxes yielded 450 million dollars and in 1932 only a little less than 400 millions.

Radio Company Reports Sales Gain 20% in Month

F. A. D'Andrea, president of Fada Radio and Electric corporation, announced yesterday that sales in May were the largest for any month this year, representing an increase of 20 per cent over those of April and more than 300 per cent over those of May, 1932. The company has been operating its plants on a full time schedule for several weeks.

FAIR WEATHER AHEAD, TRADE LEADERS STATE

See U. S. as Leaving Slump Behind.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 11.—[Special.]—Barometers of national recovery still show fairer weather ahead, and business and governmental leaders, reviewing the signs of the last week, are more than ever hopeful of leaving the storms of depression definitely behind.

Prices are still in a gradual rise, factories are increasing production, carloadings and bank debits—the most sensitive reflections of better times—are favorably on the climb.

Definite figures on unemployment conditions are imposible of compilation as yet but the department of labor finds a striking tendency toward more optimistic reports.

Carloadings, which show indisputably the movings of commerce, were well up above the 1932 figures in the current figures, for the week ending June 3, with 508,234 cars loaded this year as against 447,408 last year, an increase of 60,822, or 14 per cent.

Steel Orders Pile Up.

Steel orders, another index regarded with great faith in diagnosing the national condition, were piling up in May faster than they could be filled, even though the steel mills were operating at a pace nearly 100 per cent above that of the preceding month. The May increase constituted the second monthly advance. Unfilled orders on May 31 totaled 1,929,815 tons as against 1,864,574 on April 30.

Leaders in the steel industry were reported planning a 10 per cent wage increase on July 1.

Bank debits, showing circulation of money and credit, increased 27 per cent in the week ending June 7 over the preceding week, which was 2 per cent tbove the total of the corresponding week of last year. Bank debits for the week were $7,216,000,000, as compared with $5,675,909,000 in the preceding week.

Wholesale price indices compiled by the department of labor show a steady rise in the last five weeks, the average for all commodities, based on an index of 100 in 1926, was 63.8, as compared with 61.9 on May 6; 62.3 on May 13; 63.0 on May 20, and 63.3 on May 27.

Chain Store Sales Gain.

Noted during the week were various optimistic occurrences in trade. A nation-wide chain merchandise concern reported sales up 14 per cent in May over last year. In April they were up 1.8 per cent, but the first three months of this year had shown declines of 10.3 per cent for March; 11.7 for February, and 6.4 for January.

Reports compiled by the Edison Electric institute showed a fifth consecutive weekly gain in electrical power output. The week ending June 3 showed a gain of 5.8 per cent over the same week in 1932.

Postal receipts, rated by Postmaster General Farley as "undeniable evidence that business throughout the country is on the upgrade" were 24 million dollars in May as against 22 millions in May, 1932, a gain of 3.68 per cent.

The most significant thing, in the sight of many observers who are watching all the spectacles of this greatest show on earth—the conquering of depression after nearly four years of the worst travail—is that all these favorable symptoms have shown before the Roosevelt program of recovery has been anything more than started.

Confidence Is Restored.

It is not that they take credit away from the President but that they find his early and dramatic actions restored the confidence and dissipated the trepidations of the people and started the natural laws governing the economy of the country into activity. These observers are somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of having the administration go too swiftly into the radical and drastic measures placed by a congress which on the whole, despite its eleventh hour rebellions, has been docile in voting great powers to the President.

Farm prices have risen without the artificial methods authorized in the agricultural relief bill which Secretary Wallace is now about to put into effect. Bank credits have been relaxed to a considerable extent without more than an almost imperceptible start being made on the far-reaching inflationary powers given to the President.

Industry shows definite signs of wakening without any help—or hindrance—from those who will administer the still-to-be-passed industry control bill.

The President has put 225,000 men to work in the forests, relieving unemployment to that extent but he is scheduled soon to embark on an immense 3 billion 300 million dollar public works program aimed at providing work for a million men.

CHICAGO STORES FIND TRADE GOOD; BUYERS IGNORE HOT WEATHER

A great number of buyers visited loop department stores last week despite the uncomfortable weather, and gains of recent weeks at both wholesale and retail were retained.

Local steel mills expanded their operations, building permit totals rose slightly over those of the preceding month, and electric power made the biggest gain relative to production in the parallel week of the preceding year, since early in 1930, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Chief among the new trends in retail activity was the strong demand on the part of the buyers for semi-luxurious and more costly items. Expensive house furnishings, electric refrigerators and out-of-season apparel items, such as women's mink coats, sold unusually well.

There was also the usual heavy demand for summer items, and gains, as a whole, were spread more evenly throughout the various departments in the stores. Business at wholesale continued to expand, with orders for fall delivery noticeably in excess of last year.

GOODYEAR RAISES COTTON WORKER PAY 10 PER CENT

Akron, O., June 11.—(AP)—Goodyear Tire and Rubber company announced today that the wages of more than 4,000 workers in four of the firm's cotton mills would be increased 10 per cent tomorrow. The announcement did not indicate whether the raise was a restoration of previous cuts. The mills affected are at Rockmart, Cedartown and Cartersville, Ga., and Bedford, Mass. Workers on an hourly basis and on piecework schedules will be given the increase.

Fisher Body Subsidiary to Give Employment to 300

Ferriday, La., June 11.—(AP)—Officials of the Fisher Lumber corporation, a subsidiary of the Fisher Body company, announced that the sawmill plant of the company here will resume operations tomorrow and that 300 men will be called back to work. Officials said the increasing demand for automobile bodies made reopening of the plant possible.

Kelvinator Reports Sales Much Ahead of Last Year

Electric refrigerator sales of the Kelvinator corporation from the beginning of the fiscal year on Oct. 1, 1932, on June 8 moved above the total for the full year 1932, according to H. W. Burritt, vice president in charge of sales. Actual shipments, he said, exceeded those of the previous full year at the close of business on Friday.

Chain Store, Mail Order Sales Close to Year Ago

Sales of twelve chain store and mail order companies for May or for the four weeks' period ended May 20 aggregated $72,935,991, against $73,089,442 for the same period last year. The decrease of two-tenths of one per cent compares with a drop of 5.83 per cent in April as against the same month in 1932.

Continental Assurance Co. Declares Usual Dividend

The Continental Assurance company of Chicago has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents, payable June 30. The company increased its business last year, it was said, and has not only maintained an unbroken record of dividend payments but also added substantially to surplus.

R.F.C. Reduces Interest Rate as Trade Aid

Washington, D. C., June 11.—(AP)—The Reconstruction corporation today made another contribution to the administration effort to affect business recovery by reducing its interest charges one-half of one per cent and loosening the dividend requirement on preferred stock in banks.

The interest rate on all loans, except to railroads and closed banks, was fixed at 4½ per cent and the dividend requirement on bank preferred stock at 5 per cent. The rate for closed banks is 4 per cent and railroads 5 per cent.

The 4½ per cent rate brings the charges on self-liquidating loans down to the figure contended for by Senator Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] and New York officials seeking to borrow money for great construction projects in that state. The 4½ per cent rate applies for the first five years of the life of the loans.

The dividend requirement of banks selling the corporation preferred stock was lowered in an effort to induce more banks to issue this form of stock and strengthen their cash situation.

Text of Statement.

The text of the corporation statement issued by Chairman Jesse H. Jones follows in part:

"The directors of the Reconstruction Finance corporation have authorized another reduction of one-half of 1 per cent in interest rates and also a reduction of 5 per cent, for the first five years, of the dividend rate on preferred stock in banks.

"A condition precedent to the reduction of interest rates is that the banks, insurance companies, mortgage companies, etc., shall pass the interest reduction along to their borrowers, and that all borrowing corporations, including railroads, shall, if they have not already done so, adjust their salaries, fees, an doperating expenses in keeping with the conditions that have made it necessary for them to borrow from the corporation, and in a manner acceptable to the corporation.

"This reduction will give the railroads a rate of 5 per cent, and all other borrowers, except closed banks, a rate of 4½ per cent. Closed banks will get a rate of 4 per cent.

Inducement to Roads.

"The directors are also considering a further reduction of one-half of one perecent to railroads which pay their loans within a period of two or three years. This extra reduction, if made, would be at the time of payment of the indebtedness to the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

"The principal purpose in reducing the dividend rates on preferred stock to banks is to encourage them to strengthen their capital structure where desirable, but not actually necessary. A great many banks have indicated that they would be willing to issue preferred stock and sell it to the R. F. C. if the dividend rate was lower.

"To enable the corporation to make this interest reduction, Secretary Woodin has agreed to reduce the interest charge to the corporation by the treasury from 3½ per cent to 3 per cent.

"Interest reductions will be adjusted to all borrowers regardless of the rate that the notes bear, and the directors have no doubt but that all borrowers will readily meet the conditions imposed, as was recently the case when the Southern Pacific railroad reduced salaries, attorneys' fees, etc., on receiving a large loan."

BANKERS, REALTORS MEAT DEALERS OPEN CONVENTIONS HERE

Chicago will be the host this week to a considerable number of national associations. A Century of Progress is the attraction which induces many of them to hold their annual conventions here this year. Among the interests which will be represented are banking, real estate, meat packing and hardware.

The American Institute of Banking will bring some 1,500 persons to its annual meeting. Delegates will participate in Bankers' day at the exposition today and the general meetings will open at the Palmer house tomorrow.

There will be another 1,500 here to attend the annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards at the Stevens hotel. Registration and preliminary meetings will be held today and tomorrow and the general sessions will start on Wednesday and extend through Friday.

Around 1,000 members of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers will start a four day convention at the Congress hotel this morning. The opening session is to be addressed by Harold H. Swift.

The American Oil Burner association will discuss the provisions of the industrial recovery bill when its convention opens this morning at the Stevens hotel.

The National Retail Hardware association will open a three day convention this morning at the Knickerbocker hotel, while members of the National Tea and Merchants association will assemble at the Edgewater Beach hotel for the first session of a five day convention.

Rise and Fall of Chicago's Banks Is Told

Frank R. Elliott, president of the Chicago Clearing House association, cites some interesting figures on the development of Chicago banking in the last 15 years.

In 1913 Chicago had 34 banks. By 1921 the number had climbed to 174. In the frantic twenties another 46 banks opened their doors in Chicago until in 1929 there were 220 banks operating within the city limits. Today there are 47 banks open in Chicago.

The figures tell their own story but not the whole truth. Mr. Elliott pointed that within the period in which the violent readjustment was taking place in Chicago banking there was not a cent lost by out of town correspondent institutions who had balances with banks affiliated with the clearing house.

The inherently weak banks were weeded out in 1931, he said. The banks that closed in 1932 were sound institutions and paid out anywhere from 75 to 85 per cent of their deposits before closing up. The outlying banks have staged a comeback since the expiration of the moratorium with deposits showing gains of 50 to 100 per cent, he declared.

Members of Chicago financial houses belonging to the New York Stock exchange are finding themselves in something of a dilemma. Many of them had hoped to see A Century of Progress without serious financial loss to themselves by taking out of town bank customers through it and placing the damages on the expense account. Then it was recalled for them that they must report to the New York Stock exchange how much they spend on the bank customers, what position the customers hold with their banks and what their own relationship is with the customer. All which may cause them to think before they spend too much on the customer from out of town.

There is evidence from all sections of the country that farm taxes are being reduced. As this has been one of the impediments to the sale of farms for months, news of reductions in taxes can serve now as an incentive to buy in the various communities where some headway is being made toward lower taxes. Arthur Schwarzkoph and A. W. Blank report a reduction of about 12 per cent in La Porte county [Indiana] taxes.

American Airways Carries Most Express During May

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 11.—American Airways, subsidiary of the Aviation corporation, carried 27,604 pounds of air express during May, a new high record for one month. This figure represents an increase of 27.8 per cent compared with April, the former record month, and of 101 per cent compared with May, 1932. For the first five months of this year the increase was 149.6 per cent compared with the corresponding period of 1932.

BUSINESS GAINS SERVE AS TONIC TO STOCK MART

Shares Again Move to Higher Levels.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 11.—The stock market last week made another stride in its convalescence and what is most encouraging is the fact that the price line continued the upward slant without the aid of another "shot in the arm," which, it was asserted a week ago, was needed.

Not only has the market moved along without another injection but it has been able to do so in the face of two or three developments that might have been expected to curdle sentiment.

Business News Good.

Wall street continued to gorge itself on news of improving business, with plentiful indications of increased production and more active trade. Flight-lighting reports of industrial rejuvenation was an increase in steel output to around 44 per cent of capacity, and acceleration of this trend is presaged by the bright outlook in the motor trade. At the same time prices, and even wages, are clinging to an upward trend in steel, automobile, and other heavy industries.

This swelling of production and consumption is quite naturally reflected in railroad traffic, with loadings last week again higher than in the corresponding period of a year ago. Electricity output topped last year's figures for the fifth consecutive week. Statistics of mail order houses and other retail lines all bore witness of improvement.

Fall of Dollar.

While this all-important tonic continued to pour fresh blood into stock values, the upward rush of share, bond, and commodity prices was accompanied and probably abetted by a sharp fall in the dollar against foreign currencies, the American unit being quoted at about 20 per cent discount.

In fact, developments in the currency market have forced the business situation to yield the spotlight to projects, actual or imaginary, which the Roosevelt administration is seen designing for further "inflation" and depreciation of the dollar.

Attitude on Gold.

Expectations are growing that this country is indifferent to a return to gold and that the administration is intent on measures to debilitate the dollar in terms of other moneys. There was high excitement at times in the street over the dollar's decline and reports of the establishment in the near future of an "open gold market."

Saving by Mail PLAN

IT'S A GREAT THING TO OWN . . . a thousand dollars. That sum is worth far more than it used to be a few years ago. And it is one thing that can today be profitably acquired by setting aside small installments each pay day.

For families who would like to own such a sum of money, this old conservative bank has developed the "Saving by Mail" plan. Many heads of families have told us this plan is helping them to put money in the savings bank regularly, every pay day.

What is there to the plan? It is simple. It gives you a means of saving that is as convenient and time-conserving as paying your bills by mail. To get all the facts, send this coupon direct to the Savings Department. There is, of course, no obligation to you.

STEEL MAKERS WEIGH EFFECTS OF U. S. CONTROL

Limit Future Price Quoting; Output at 48%.

Steel works operations, encouraged by a broadening demand, advanced one point to a national average of 48 per cent in last week, according to the magazine Steel.

While inquiries for prices in the third quarter are insistently multiplying, steel makers prefer not to commit themselves, since they are uncertain how the federal industrial control bill will affect their costs.

"It now appears," says Steel, "that they will limit contracts to one month, or even shorter periods, after July 1 and until the industrial situation becomes clearer.

"Prospects for wage advances in July are becoming more definite; employé representation plans for contacts between employers and employés on wages and working conditions are being fostered by federal legislation.

Predict Higher Prices.

Sheet specifications at Pittsburgh, where four mere blast furnaces were blown in during the week, are the heaviest in two years, and one northern Ohio sheet interest has raised its operating schedule for June to 100 per cent. Operations of tin plate mills are close to 90 per cent.

Demand for farm implements, rails, structural steel, plates, and pipe is furnishing a broad foundation for the market. The increase in farm implement orders is enabling some of the middle western manufacturers to schedule operations this summer.

"Reflecting a stronger demand for wire, the leading interest is opening all departments of its works at Farrell, Pa., on regular eight hour turns," says Steel.

Railroads are buying sparingly. Ten thousand tons of rails are to be placed by the Norfolk and Western this week.

Structural Awards Decline.

Structural steel awards for the week decreased to 5,499 tons. A tentative award of 3,225 tons for a health center in New York has been made. For the Rip Van Winkle bridge at Hudson, N. Y., 12,000 tons are about to be placed. The Richfield Oil company, Los Angeles, has awarded 1,500 tons in plates for storage tanks. The Pan-American Refining company is negotiating a sizable tonnage for refineries at Texas City, Tex.

Steel reports that "pig iron already released in the great lakes district for June shipment represents a heavier tonnage than all shipments in May. The movement of coke is the best in fifteen months."

Steel's iron and steel composite this week has risen 16 cents to $28.75; the finished steel composite, 20 cents to $45.30, and the scrap composite, 9 cents to $9.46.

Guardian Life Insurance.

Investors' Guide: Kindly send me available information on Guardian Life Insurance company of New York City. —V. H. R.

Answer—Guardian Life Insurance company [N. Y.] was established 77 years ago. It started out as a stock company, but has since retired all except $5,000 of its capital stock and is now a mutual.

Insurance in force at the close of 1932 totaled $493,331,000, a 4.45 per cent drop from $516,201,000 at the close of 1931.

Against outstanding policies the company set up a policyholders' reserve of $74,967,000. Other liabilities, including $1,000,000 reserve for contingencies, amounted to $15,329,000.

To cover these liabilities the company reported admitted assets of $95,505,000. Real estate totaled $7,804,000, a $2,500,000 increase during the year; mortgages, $50,894,000, a $2,500,000 decrease; bonds, $7,807,000; cash, $983,000, and policy loans, $22,783,000.

Real estate comprised 8.8 per cent of invested assets; mortgage loans, 57 per cent; policy loans, 25.6 per cent, and bonds, 7.79 per cent.

Income exceeded disbursements by $3,304,000 in 1932. In 1931 excess of income over disbursements was $6,744,000.

The company realized 5.36 per cent return on invested assets in 1932, against 5.4 per cent in 1931, and 5.8 per cent in 1930.

During 1932 only 49.2 per cent of expected mortality occurred, against 47.2 per cent in 1931, and 49.9 per cent in 1930.

California Packing.

Investors' Guide: I would like your opinion of California Packing corporation 5s, due 1940.—D. J. O.

Answer—This company is one of the leading fruit and vegetable packers. During the last two years the sharp declines in selling prices precluded the possibility of operating at a profit and entailed substantial inventory losses.

During the year ended Feb. 28, 1933, the company lost $3,742,000 before interest of $779,000. In the preceding year loss before interest of $890,000 was $4,077,000. In the Feb. 28, 1931, year charges were earned 1.19 times.

The company reported current assets of $22,517,000, and current liabilities of $2,641,000 on Feb. 28, 1933.

There has been some pickup in the price of the company's products since the close of the last fiscal year. Although working capital of $19,875,000 is in excess of the $14,182,000 5 per cet debentures, due 1940 [the only funded debt outstanding], the bonds are currently regarded as somewhat speculative in the absence of profitable operations.

PRICES OF BONDS EASE FOR FIRST TIME IN MONTHS

U. S. Securities Continue to Hold Steady.

New York, June 11.—(AP)—After advancing to new highs for the last year or more during the early part of last week, the bond market ran into difficulties and prices suffered the first sizeable relapse in about two months.

Declines were principally confined to specialties, secondary rails, utility issues and German obligations. United States government securities, although dull most of the time, were steady to firm and highest grade corporation maturities generally followed a fractional range.

Just what affect the sharp drop of the American dollar in foreign exchange markets had on bonds was a matter of some debate. Banking circles were watching Washington closely as well as the European situation. Business and trade news continued highly satisfactory and fears of drastic inflation were inclined to ebb. It was pointed out, however, that the dollar had sagged to a discount of about 19 per cent in terms of currencies now tied to the gold standard and that this might be considered another form of inflation which would naturally tend to raise prices.

Carrier liens reflected uncertainties connected with the unexpected reduction of the Santa Fe's preferred dividend and a reaction of Chicago & Northwestern issues following rumors, officially denied, of plans for a reorganization of the road's financial structure.

Bonds of Western Union and Postal Telegraph turned exceptionally heavy when the amendment to the railroad bill, permitting mergers of telegraph and cable companies, was eliminated. Loans of these companies lost most of their previous advances which had been predicated on reports of consolidation negotiations.

GREAT NORTHERN BOND PROGRAM WINS SUPPORT

William P. Kenney, president of Great Northern Railway company, announced yesterday that holders of more than 60 per cent of the $41,963,000 of 4, 4½, and 6 per cent consolidated mortgage gold bonds due July 1, 1933, of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway company, assumed by the Great Northern, have already deposited their bonds under, or otherwise assented to, a plan providing for the extension of the maturity to July 1, 1943, with interest at 5 per cent and a cash payment of $38.10 per $1,000 bond, giving an effective yield to maturity of 5¼ per cent. In addition, holders of a substantial amount have indicated an intention to assent.

The plan for extension has received the approval of the interstate commerce commission, as well as the consent of over 96 per cent of the holders of Great Northern Railway company first and refunding mortgage bonds. Holders of the consolidated bonds desiring to accept the extension are asked to make deposit with J. P. Morgan & Co., New York, depositary, or the First National Bank of St. Paul, St. Paul, Minn., subdepositary.

Independent of the call for deposit of the bonds, the First National bank of New York announces that it "will purchase at the principal amount thereof and accrued interest any of the above mentioned bonds not deposited for extension under the plan and agreement dated May 6, 1933, which may be tendered to it prior to or on July 1, 1933."

A. F. HALL URGES SOUND POLICIES FOR INSURANCE

Fort Wayne, Ind., June 11.—[Special.]—Arthur F. Hall, president of the Lincoln National Life Insurance company, in welcoming delegates of the Life Office Management association to their convention here, appealed to life insurance companies "to develop and adhere to sound principles of management to the end that those whom we serve will enjoy maximum safety at a minimum cost, consistent with the standard of service rendered."

"Notwithstanding the recent trend towards currency inflation," he said, "I believe that most of us are convinced business in the future will be conducted upon a lower price level than experienced between 1925 and 1930. Lower yields on securities, losses on investments and properties owned, continued excess mortality on certain classes of business and disability losses—all will tend to reduce the dividends of virtually all life insurance companies and perhaps our surplus. We must meet the situation by reducing expenses of operation.

VIEW FROM REAR OF WRECKAGE SHOWING REMAINS OF CABIN IN WHICH NINE PERSONS WERE KILLED. Figure 1 points to skeleton of cabin of the airplane Northern Light in which the bodies of nine persons were found burned beyond recognition. The figure 2 points to charred framework of the plane's vertical stabilizer and rudder. Spectators who witnessed the crash were unable to approach the wreckage to aid the victims because of the intense heat of the gasoline fed flames.
